Answer—I know of none, except the microscope test—that is, supplement the child's diet with an abundance of calcium and vitamin A, and see whether general health and well being improve. Mr. Health Director if 50 such improvements are evident in ten cents and stamped envelope bearing your address I will send you "The Calcium Shortage" and "Milk" which probably get insufficient calcium and vitamin A. Incidentally a quart of milk and some greens daily.

Olives

What is the food value of olives? Is it all right to give them to a two year old child? (Mrs. C. J.)

Answer—120 to 140 calories per pound—about three times as many calories as boiled potatoes. Ripe olives may be fed to a child five or three years old, green olives after the age of seven years.

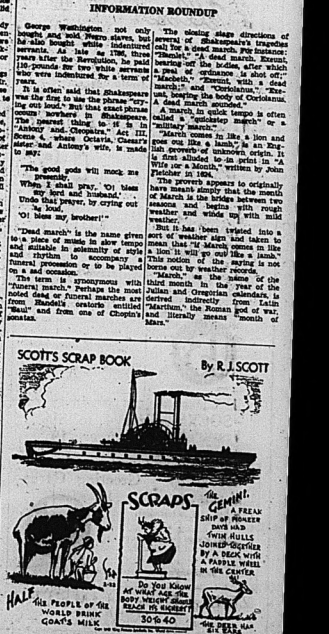
INFORMATION ROUNDUP

George Washington not only boasted and was a strong man, but he also fought while indentured servant. He was only 17 when three years after the Revolution, he and two other men of three white servants who were indentured to them, fought a bear.

It is often said that Shakespeare was the first to use the phrase "every inch a king," but the exact phrase occurs nowhere in Shakespeare. However, it is found in "Antony and Cleopatra," Act III, Scene 13, where Octavia, Caesar's sister and Antony's wife, is made to say:



"The good gods will mock me when I shall pray, 'O! bless my lord and husband.' Undo that prayer, by crying out as loud, 'O! bless my brother!'"

"Dead march" is the name given to a piece of music in slow tempo and suitable in character or style for a lion! it will go out like a lamb." a funeral procession or to be played on a sad occasion.

The term is synonymous with "funeral march." Perhaps the most noted dead or funeral marches are Chopin's Marche Funebre in C Minor and from one of Chopin's sonatas.

The closing stage directions of Julius Caesar, Act V, Scene 5, read: "Exeunt." "Exeunt" is the plural of Shakespeare's irregular verb "Exeo." "Exeo" means "I go out." "Exeunt" means "they go out." "Exit" is the singular of "exeunt" and means "he goes out." "Exeunt omnes" means "they all go out."

"March," the name of the third month in the year, is from Julian and Gregorian calendars, is derived from the Latin word "Martium," the Roman god of war, literally means "month of Mars."

Jolliffe Wants Socialized Medicine And "Its Rival Systems" Tested In Separate Areas in Ontario

Toronto, Feb. 22 (CP)—A scientific testing in three or four experimental areas in Ontario" of the system of socialized medicine "and its rival systems" was urged today in the Ontario legislature by E. B. Jolliffe, C.C.F. leader.

Speaking in the Throne Speech debate, Mr. Jolliffe said that because of the present shortage of both personnel and buildings it would be several years before a full-fledged system of modern health service could be established in Ontario "no matter what approach we adopted."

"There are many who, like the C.C.F., favor socialized health services. Others favor a type of health insurance such as the Haggarty plan which has been under consideration at Ottawa while still others defend the present system and oppose both socialized health services and health insurance."

He suggested thorough testing of the three systems "by the use of controlled and recheked observations and experiments objectively recorded with complete statistics". In "three similar areas in Ontario, with the consent of the people in these areas."

"Three areas in Ontario should be selected, and they should be comparable areas, similar in their population and other features. They should contain both city people and country people so that results could be obtained under both rural and urban conditions."

Seek Dominion Assistance.

In one area would be a complete system of socialized health services, "staffed by people who believe in that system." In the second a health insurance scheme would be set up under the Haggarty plan, operated by its opponents. In the third area, under direction of the Ontario Medical Association, "you could let the present system operate just as it does now, except that a team of statisticians would collect complete statistics on the results."

Such an experiment "had never been done before in any country and no scientific comparison of the various health schemes is available," Mr. Jolliffe said.

Dominion assistance should be sought in conducting "this great experiment," in Ontario, "probably the only province where such an experiment could be made."

The Throne Speech admitted that "there is a fatal lack of reliable information as to the cost of operating comprehensive curative health services." The plan suggested would not only provide information as to cost.

"It would also show the number of personnel required in relation to the population, the hospital accommodation and equipments required, the administrative problems which might arise—in fact it would be a mine of information on which governments of the future could base their policy."

Fifth Army Gains Up to 1,000 Yards Near Monte Belvedere

Rome, Feb. 22 — (AP) — Fifth Army troops, exploiting a surprise assault which recaptured Monte Belvedere 30 miles southwest of Bologna, gained up to 1,000 yards in a new local attack today against stiffening German resistance.

American troops pushed forward first east of the 2,500-foot peak which they first won and then lost last November to a German counter-assault. Furious fighting raged in the area today.

Elsewhere there were only minor clashes and patrolling.

QUESTION NOT DISCUSSED

London, Feb. 22 (CP)—Foreign Secretary Eden informed the House of Commons yesterday that the question of establishing a provincial German government in the Russian-occupied section of Germany was not discussed at the Crimea conference.

SLIGHTLY WARMER TEMPERATURES IMPROVE ROADS

Night and Early Morning Conditions Dangerous in Most of Province

Toronto, Feb. 22—(CP)—Meteorological Bureau officials reported today a "freeze over" of roads throughout the southwestern part of the province but forecast slightly moderating temperatures would improve dangerous road conditions in some Ontario centres.

Although temperatures were forecast to drop slightly in Western Ontario tonight and Friday, rain and sleet continued today in the Lower Lakes Region, Georgian Bay and the Ottawa area.

At Kingston, danger of serious flood conditions continued as rain which started late last night continued to dissolve snowbanks piled high in the streets. Bus traffic was interrupted as slush and water inches deep covered roads and sidewalks. Walking was hazardous on icy pavements.

Roads in the areas of Lindsay, Pembroke and Bracebridge remained hazardous due to ice conditions.

90 With Fractures In Toronto.

Toronto hospital authorities reported today 90 people have been treated for fractured limbs as a result of falling on slippery streets last night and this morning.

Hospitals in Hamilton, London, Guelph, Galt, Chatham and Windsor were reported treating fewer cases as a result of last night's freezing rain storm that swept across Southern Ontario tying up air and motor transportation and covering roadways with ice.

Icy conditions of wires were giving both the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Telegraph companies considerable trouble in transmitting Morse messages in the Western Ontario area.

Hydro wires were down in many sections of the province. Stores and homes in a number of towns were reported without electric power, the heaviest damage occurring in the Guelph area at Marden and Richwood.

Hundreds of workers were sent out by the Ontario Department of Highways and municipalities throughout the southern section of the province to sand roads and clear away flooded areas.

Little Fear of Floods.

Officials in London held little fear of floods after an all-night rain melted some of the winter's accumulation of snow. Officials said the water is draining rapidly into the soft ground. Mild weather melted ice on roads leading into the city.

While most bus services continued to operate in Southern Ontario, many schedules were disrupted. Service north of Newmarket and west of Brampton were temporarily suspended. All plane service to and from Toronto was grounded.

Rural roads in the St. Thomas area were impassable as rain and snow filled ice ruts, while roads in the Barrie district were described as "like glass."

Hon. Earl Rowe Challenges King To Produce Papers

Wexford, Ont., Feb. 22 — (CP)—Hon. Earl Rowe, Progressive Conservative Member of Parliament for Dufferin-Simcoe, challenged Prime Minister Mackenzie King last night to make public all correspondence, correspondence and memoranda regarding Defence Minister McNaughton's release from command of the Canadian Army overseas.

In an address prepared for delivery before the Wexford Progressive Conservative Association, Mr. Rowe added:

"I also challenge Mr. King to tell the people if the man he now says is to be Minister of National Defence, whether decided or not, was not relieved of his command overseas because he was either unfitted or incompetent for the task.

"Mr. Howe said that if Mr. King insisted on "flouting" the will of the people by retaining Gen. McNaughton as Minister of Defence and continuing a two-army policy, then he would withdraw from the Prime Minister to set up a Commonwealth representative of all parties to "review the record of the echelon officers overseas and let the people have the facts regarding reinforcements during the past nine months."

Asks Few Questions

Referring to charges by John Bracken, Progressive Conservative National Leader, in the One North by-election campaign that draftees en route overseas had dumped their rifles and ammunition overboard, Mr. Rowe said:

"May I ask Gen. McNaughton a few questions the people now have a right to know;

"1. Did this troopship load of N.R.M.A. soldiers land in Britain without their guns in the personal possession of the troops?

"2. If they did, why?

"3. How many of the troops were fined the price of their guns and 50 days pay?

"4. If they didn't land in Britain without their guns, why has the answer been withheld since Feb. 1 when Mr. Bracken demanded an answer?

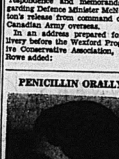
Victory Day Committee Alters Original Plan

Hoping not to be caught napping in the event of a quick termination of hostilities on the European front, the Belleville Victory Day Committee has revamped its former program of celebration at a meeting held in the City Hall yesterday.

According to the new plans completed at the meeting, Victory Day celebrations will start with a special program to be held on the lawns of the County Courthouse in which Mayor Fothwell, the Municipal Band and school children will take part. City ministers will give addresses.

At 2.30 p.m. public services will be held on the Armouries lawn, or in the Armouries if the weather is inclement. These services will be held under the auspices of the Ministerial Association, and will take the form of thanksgiving and prayer.

At 7.30 p.m. all churches will be requested to hold special services for their respective congregations.



At 8.30 the Rhumen Club will sponsor a mass gathering at the Fair Grounds, where bonfires will be lit and effigies of Europe's arch criminals burned. If weather does not permit this part of the celebration will be held in the Market Square.

Later a monster dance will be held in the Market Square or the Armouries.

The meeting yesterday emphasized the fact that the time of the announcement of Victory, will coincide with the Events programmed for that time. In other words if the announcement is made at nine-thirty p.m. the celebration will start with the bonfire at the Fair Grounds. The preceding events on the program will take place the day following.

An advertisement outlining the events and their times will appear in this newspaper on Saturday, and the committee requests the public to clip it and keep it for reference purposes.

PENICILLIN ORALLY

A method whereby penicillin, so-called "wonder drug," can be swallowed in capsule form has been perfected by Dr. Raymond L. Libby, biochemist, Stamford, Conn., where he made the discovery. Until his method was announced, injections had been made the sole way of using penicillin, but Dr. Libby found that by suspending the drug in certain digestible oils, it could safely be taken orally.

Facial Weariness Apparent From Tension and Anxiety

By HELEN FOLLETT

FOR MORE than three years now, most of us have been living in a nightmare of weariness. We note the weariness in the faces of our friends and, that ever present companion, the woman in the looking glass.

The stress and anxieties of war have left their marks on us. We have attended to our beauty chores as in the past, because there is no time; but of health and well being, we must be ever mindful.

Nervous System.

A day may bring continuous attacks upon the nervous system. There is the need or hurry to get through necessary duties, and that is wearing. The sound of a bell ringing or the slam of a door may make one jump. If that is happening to you, my friend, you must find time and opportunity to relax. Untie your nervous knots, put yourself together again.

Whenever you sit down, let the body relax and go limp. Withdraw muscle control completely. Close your eyes. Close the doors of your mind. Five minutes of limpness is a help. If possible, snatch a little sleep during the day. And do get to bed early one can always manage to do that, if one tries.

A Comfortable Bed.

Don't forget that the best contribution you can make to your health, beauty and looks is a comfortable bed. The mattress should be soft enough to relieve the pressure of the body, spring enough to give resiliency to your turnings and changes of position.

There should be a current of air in the bedroom, but it should not blow upon you. Covers should be sufficient to provide warmth, but not be heavy.

If you are over-fatigued when you retire, try deep breathing exercises, that often will quiet the nerves. Invite the sand man to hurry along.

Lie on your back, hands at the sides. Take a slow, deep inhalation through the nostrils, exhale slow-

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Careless shampooing is a menace to your beauty. Be it ever so smooth heads, and beautytorians are short of women among them because shampooing is going on now than ever before. Some girls are attempting this job for the first time, don't know much about it, with the result that tresses are no longer silky but are summed and starched with soap. They look very bad. The hair doesn't like it. It also feels like a greyish look.

Then there is dandruff. This is a curl, is likely to come in flood of tears when it is being arranged into the nifty coiffure.

The wrong soap—any cleansing agent that isn't bland—can raise the mischief. All soaps that are congenial to the complexion may not be suitable for combing and the hair. In one week the feminine head becomes pretty dusty, to put it mildly. There is not only a accumulation of atmospheric filth, but there are dead skin cells and the scalp, deposits left by the sweat glands, and a certain amount of oil exuded by the sebaceous glands. That combination is not easily dislodged; to remove it requires floods of hot water, foaming suds, plenty of elbow grease.

If you have not found a shampoo medium that you like, take a small bar of castile soap and place in a quart mason jar; fill the jar with boiling water, add one half teaspoonful of borax, and let it stand three days before using. The amount will serve for eight or ten shampoos.

Give the hair a thorough rousing brushing. Be sure to have a clean comb to use after the ducking. Brush the hair forward over your face. Hold your head over the bathtub, turn on the spray with a strong current of hot water. It is best to start with a rinsing to remove surface dust.

Half fill a timbler with the clear top liquid of the soup, and add an equal amount of hot water. Pricking the scalp. This first soapy rinsing is not likely to foam up thick-ly. Don't keep on with the rubbing, distributing the soap over the hair. Then spray with water as hot as can be comfortably endured.

The second soaping should be a gentle one, not a scrub. Keep adding a little hot water as it encourages the soap. Another rinsing, another soaping. This is rarely always necessary unless the hair has been very much neglected for a final flourish with the bath spray.

Don't fancy that you can rinse your hair in the wash bowl. A current of water is necessary to remove all traces of dead matter, upon the shafts, your permanent will be in the form of a gorgeous crash, uniform, complete with bandolier and decorations.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

SOLVING A NAME PROBLEM

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I have a name-problem. Will you please help me? I have recently been granted a divorce, and I am in doubt about what name to use for socially, and when signing business letters. My maiden name, Anne Davis, and my married name was Mrs. John Starr. I have been reading your column, that you are going to tell me that my correct name should now be Mrs. Davis Starr,—but I think that is hardrid! And I definitely do not want to use that.

Please tell me what form of name I can use on my new visiting-cards. Informals, and so forth. And what form of name I should use when I sign my letters.

I would like to add that all the letters I have received recently from friends are addressed to "Mrs. Anne D. Starr", but you have written that this is not correct.

Divorce

I never, in my column, use a reader's "real" name, but in your case I would particularly like to (although I didn't!) for I'm sure that all readers would agree that the new combination of names you now could and should use, is not only correct but also exceptionally harmonious and exceptionally distinguished. By using the correct form of name (I've changed it to Davis Starr), you show that (1) you know what's right; (2) you have a sense of name-rhythm; and (3) you're using the form of name that makes your status entirely clear. So, quite naturally, I wish you had told me why you think this correct and distinguished form of name is "horrid"!

Really "horrid" is for your friends to take for granted that you will of course wish to be addressed as "Mrs. Anne D. Starr"! Socially this is the low in name-forms, for married woman, widow, or divorcee. To combat this social blunder, you must decide immediately about your name-problem, and make this preference clear in no uncertain terms.

The only alternative between the correct form you think is "horrid" and the "Mrs. Anne D. Starr" you think is horrid, is for you to use "Mrs. Davis Starr" for such good form as Mrs. Davis Starr", or "Mrs. D. Starr", which usually and naturally lets people suppose by through the lips, forcing stale air from the lowest cells of the lungs.

That the "A. D." stands for, for example, "Arthur David."

Let's say that you decide on Mrs. A. David Starr. Then you would use this on your visiting-cards. Informals, and as the name you write in full when signing under your signature to business letters or letters to anyone who must be informed of your formal name. For example:

Yours very truly,
(for Arthur David)
Very sincerely yours,
Anne Davis Starr
Mrs. A. Davis Starr

BIRTHDAY GIFTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been going with a young man for several months, and at Christmas time we gave each other gifts. His birthday comes this month, about three weeks before mine. Do you think it would seem too forward if I gave him a birthday gift?

J. C.

Since you and this young man are such good friends that you give each other Christmas presents, it would be very natural for you to give him a birthday remembrance, too. Just judging by the gifts you mentioned giving each other at Christmas-time (I'm omitting the item of engagement ring for fear of "identification" should the young man read this), I think you and he are giving each other gifts that are too personal and expensive for just a friendship. They are more appropriate for an engaged couple to give to each other!

DOGGIE STYLES

The war has had its influence on fashions for dogs, take it from Antoinette Behrs, who made a career of terrier toggery. Miss Behrs, a niece of Countess Tolstoy, went into the dog haberdashery years ago and is about the leading authority on this subject in America. Above are two of her creations. Top, a miniature French poodle in custom-made raincoat with scrupulous overseas cap. Bottom, a bow to our Russian Allies in the form of a gorgeous Cossack uniform, complete with bandolier and decorations.

The Marry Go Round

What Do You Like Best About Her—Or Him?

What do you like best about your wife? Or your husband?

I don't mean what makes you LOVE him (or her). That is probably because he's handsome and personable or brilliant and because she's beautiful or charming or cute —or "just because." Any old reason will do.

You can "fall in" love blindly but you've got to like her or him with your eyes wide open. And you'd be surprised to see how much more it takes to like a man than to love him. Women have "loved" villains and philanderers and wife-beaters. And men have "loved" selfish gold-diggers and grafters and double-crossers — but they didn't know why.

You nearly always know why you like anybody—even your wife or your husband, if you stop to think. And it's the most important thing to know about the person you plan to spend your life with. More important than the color of her eyes or the size of his bank account—or both.

You may like your husband because he admires you extravagantly, and constantly tells you so. Of course, you do! It's almost impossible not to like anybody who frankly admires you. That's human nature.

Or you may like your wife (or husband) because she (or he) is unsurgical—because you are "on the same wire", because you are kindred spirits—or because you can read each other's thoughts.

Every man likes a wife who's a sympathetic understanding and full of thoughtfulness, who knows just when to say the cheering word —and when to keep quiet. And every woman likes a husband who is thoughtful and tender and keeps up the little attentions of his courting days.

Of course a man likes a wife he can be proud of, who is a good mixer and makes a smart appearance. And naturally every woman likes a husband whose accomplishments and success she can brag about.

You see how many, many things it takes to make two people actually like each other—even when they think they are in love.

Perhaps we'd be astonished to know how many married couples have gone on for years mating a happy life together after that first romance they call "love" has worn off. And we might be surprised to learn how many of those who separated who are still in love—but just can't like each other!

MARMORA

Swine Course Held at Marmora

Marmora — Two days' Swine Improvement course, sponsored by the Livestock Production Service of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, was held in the Council Chamber in the afternoons and evenings of Monday and Tuesday. The attendance of farmers from Marmora Township at the lectures was very gratifying. The lecturer on Monday was Dr. R. B. Murray, V.S., of Stirling. He spoke in the afternoon on swine diseases and their control, Bang's disease in cattle, calfhood vaccination, and hot fly control in horses. In the evening the speaker chose the following subjects—mastitis in cattle, and control measures, and Warble fly control and mineral deficiencies in cattle. On Tuesday afternoon and evening Dr. Deschenes H.D. of the Livestock Production Service gave lectures and demonstrations under two headings, first, a study in swine carcasses; second, breeding and feeding for market requirements. The carcasses used were in the form of lectures, procured from farmer's hogs, shipped from the Marmora district. R. J. Fab, agricultural representative for Hastings County, presided at these meetings, which were fell by the local farmers to be of a most helpful character.

FO. W. F. Moran Believed Killed

Trenton, Feb. 21 — Missing since last November 4th, Flying Officer Walter Franklin Moran is now reported believed killed according to official information received here by his mother, Mrs. F. Moran.

A message from the R.C.A.F. casualty office reads "Regret to advise International Red Cross quoting German information states young Flying Officer Walter Franklin Moran lost his life November 4th, but does not give particulars. Pending further confirmation your son is to be considered missing, believed killed. Letter following."

Flying Officer Moran enlisted in September 1942, trained at Lachine, Moncton, Wheatville, Que. and No. 4 A.O.S. London, Ont., where he graduated as a Navigator, November 26, 1924, going overseas in February 1944. Previous to enlisting he was taking a medical course at Queen's University, Kingston. He had taken part in several successful bombing operations over Germany before being reported missing.

A twin brother, Wing Commander Charles Moran, D.F.C., with considerable time overseas with a Canadian Mosquito squadron, was on his 35th trip was forced to bail out of a Mosquito, the first to do so from this type of ship, he drifted on his life raft for several hours before being picked up by a rescue launch. He is now stationed on the East Coast in Canada.

Chinese Capture Silver, Lead Mines

Calcutta, Feb. 22 (CP) — Troops of the Chinese 200th Division today captured the rich Baldwin silver and lead mines 22 miles north of Lashio, scoring the greatest Allied victory in Burma since the capture of Myitkyina.

The mines, described by authorities as capable of producing enough lead to supply the entire Japanese war machine, were left intact by the enemy.

The Japanese gave up the mines almost without a fight, although they are among the most valuable in the east.

British troops, meanwhile, enlarged their bridgehead on the Irrawaddy at Singu, 40 miles north of Mandalay, capturing the village of Zigon, after an advance of several miles against stiff opposition.

In the Myitmu sector 35 miles southeast of Mandalay, British and Indian forces established a bridgehead on the east bank of the Irrawaddy in a stretch of ten miles and a depth of six.

Whitehall Notebook

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 22. (CP) — Five by-elections are pending in the United Kingdom and there are likely to be contests in at least four of them.

As the first general election since 1935 is expected to be held later this year, the "miniature election" provided by the by-elections probably will bring plenty of fireworks, and indicate what will be the main issues of the smaller parties when the National vote comes.

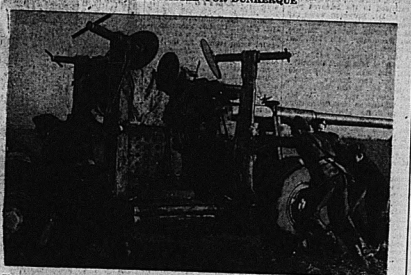
Three by-elections will be the first in which the new, up-to-date voters' register will be used. The vacant seats are:

Conservative — Chelmsford, won in 1935 by the late Col. J. R. Macnamara with majority of 16,654; and Newport, won in 1935 by the late Sir Reginald Clarry with majority of 1,846.

Labor—Neath, won by acclamation in 1935 by Sir William Jenkins who in 1931 had majority was 12,664; and Motherwell, won in 1938 by the late J. Walker with majority of 630.

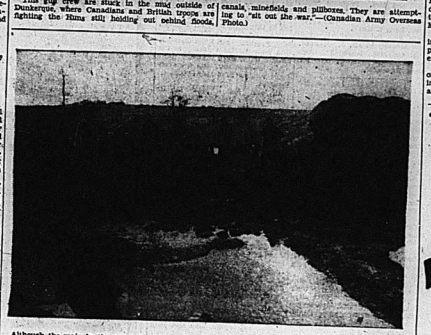
Liberal — Carnarvon Boroughs, represented by David Lloyd George for more than 50 years before his election to the peerage.

The major parties have decided the electoral truce should be continued until the defeat of Germany but other parties already have registered candidates—Common Wealth, Independent Labor, Revolutionary Communists and Welsh Nationalists.



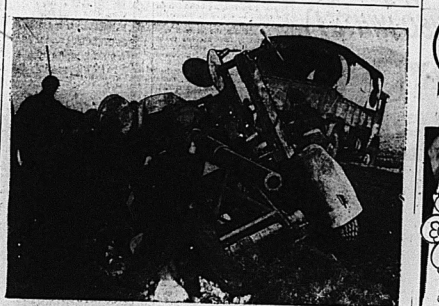
Members of parliament are receiving from service personnel in the Mediterranean area, personal questionnaires asking them to state their views on major political issues.

Sample questions are: "What do you think or the government's plans for Social Security?" and "Will you please send me details of the Social Insurance plan?"



The House of Commons by a vote of 308 to 17 has rejected proportional representation in local government elections. The suggestion was made by Sir Geoffrey Mandeville Liberal member for Wolverhampton East.

Printing the new voters' list is the biggest job British printers have had in wartime. More than 30,000,000 names and addresses have to be set up.



THE BATTLE FOR DUNKERQUE

This gun crew are stuck in the mud outside of Dunkerque, where Canadians and British troops are fighting the Huns still holding out behind floods, canals, minefields and pillboxes. They are attempting to "sit out the war."—(Canadian Army Overseas Photo.)

Although the main battles are being fought on the Eastern Front, the Siegfried Line and in Italy Canadians have not neglected the sullen little isles of German resistance along the coast of France . . . at Dunkerque, Lorient, St. Nazaire. The noose is slowly closing around these garrisons and daily supplies of ammunition for Canadian and British guns are made. Picture shows ammunition being unloaded at an ammunition dump outside Dunkerque.—(Canadian Army Overseas Photo.)

Pte. Ronald Wickett, Too Young To Fight, Sent Back Home

After having served for a full month in France with the Royal Canadian Artillery, overseas army officers decided that Pte. Ronald A. Wickett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wickett, Foxboro, should be attending school rather than fighting Germans and today he is back in Canada awaiting disposal.

Enlisting when 14 years of age, Pte. Wickett trained for more than a year in Canada and after going overseas last October had served in France before army officers learned his true age. He is still only 18 years old.

Although still a boy in years the Foxboro boy proudly exhibits slight shrapnel wounds in his leg-wounds which were not serious enough to take him out of the line during his action in France. And he also felt the explosive force of German robot bombs, one such blast rendering him unconscious and sending him to hospital.

Born at Belleville he has spent most of his 18 years in the Stirling and Foxboro districts.

Extend Prorogation Of Parliament Till March 31st

Ottawa, Feb. 22 —(CP)— A proclamation formally extending prorogation of parliament to March 31 will be issued later today, The Canadian Press was informed today by a reliable source.

Fixing of this date is a formality and does not clear up doubts as to whether a further session or the present parliament will be held before its life expires April 17. However, it assures members of the Commons and Senate they will not be required in the capital Feb. 26, original date to which parliament was prorogued.

Another proclamation summoning parliament for the "dispatch of business" could be issued later calling parliament into session at a date earlier than March 31.

Hotel Beer Quotas Being Re-allocated Says Toronto Report

Toronto, Feb. 22. (CP)—Since the Liquor Authority Control Board of Ontario came into being last November, it has suspended the beer and wine sale authorities of eight Ontario hotels for varying periods and warned more than 100 others to provide restaurant service and live up to the regulations under penalty of losing beer-selling privileges, officials said Tuesday night.

A re-allocation of hotel beer quotas now is being made, it was reported. Officials said it was found some communities have been getting more beer, on a per capita basis, than others and an effort is being made to equalize the supply.

23rd Birthday Of Rotary Club Is Observed

Trenton, Feb. 21 — At Trenton Rotary Club luncheon on Monday evening two important events were marked, now the 23rd anniversary of the Rotary International and the other the 23rd birthday of the local club.

For the occasion the guest speaker was J. Owen Hently, past district governor and secretary of Belleville Chamber of Commerce. Over sixty members and guests had a few of them charter members, gathered around the festive board, the head table being centred with a huge birthday cake made by the ladies of the Rebekah Lodge who served the dinner. President E. L. Fraser presided and the program was in charge of Rotarian Jed Simmons, who was the Club's third president and has a record of never having missed a meeting since the Club was chartered.

In his address Mr. Hently congratulated the Trenton Club on its progress and the excellent work it was doing. He noted that in five years the membership had increased over 100 per cent, and said that the Club had an influence for friendship and fellowship, while the children of the town had reason to be glad of the club's existence, particularly those who were crippled. On the international aspect of Rotary Mr. Hently spoke of the organization the fellowship gathering of forty years ago formed by Paul Harris in Chicago, and pointed out that today the club had 225,000 members in many countries of the world. He saw a great opportunity for Rotary service in the future as its members sought to carry out its principles.

Mr. Hartty was introduced by William Ireland. Two vocal numbers were given by J. C. Bill Wilkinson of S.R.D., R.C.A.F., Green Nest Fur Stalpers.

Red Cross work rooms held the usual interest for those faithful workers on Tuesday at the work rooms and much was accomplished in the line of sewing and quilting, etc. There is still a great need for helpers at the rooms and for those who are willing to take either sewing home to be done on their own machines, or knitting to be done during leisure hours.

A donation of $3 was received from Miss Walker's class of College Street school and a donation of cookies from Miss D. Powers was raffled and brought $1.55. Mrs. J. Parker was the lucky winner.

The appointment of a new treasurer for the local branch, Mr. Owen McAvoy, was announced by President B. P. Joyce.

Mountain View "Bombers" Defeat Flyers 6-4 in Second Game But Lose Round 11-10

Trenton Station Team Meets Camp Borden in Training Command Play-downs Beginning on Friday Here

That three goal lead the Trenton "Flyers" carried into the Quinte R. C. A. F. final game Wednesday night was good enough to win the series as the Mountain View "Bombers" played all-out aggressive hockey to win the game 6 to 4. But, when the final analysis came around the "Flyers" went home district winners by an aggregate score of 11 to 10 on the round. Now the "Flyers" move into the R.C.A.F. Training Command playdowns against the Camp Borden "Airmen" in a goals-to-count round that opens at the Hume Arena Friday night.

Facing a three-goal deficit the "Bombers" went all out and carried the play early to lead 2 to 1 at the end of the initial frame. It was all even in the middle session as each squad registered a goal. To-score the final stanza Trenton scored twice and it looked like curtains for the Bombers, both on the night's game and the series. With little to lose the Bombers moved five to the attack and whipped home three goals in quick succession to lead the night's score 6 to 4 and remain but a single goal from hoisting the series. A strong Trenton checking game halted any further scoring.

Trigon Scores Three Goals

While the Bombers were trying to halt Paul Raymond, Trigon grabbed off three goals in the same Raymond scored and helped lead the to two assists. "Red" Boudreau, who played a bang-up game for the Bombers, scored two goals as did Shackleville Cowley and Dinnie added singletons. STEEL SHORTAGE ACUTE

Ottawa, Feb. 22. (CP)—Restrictions on the distribution of warm-zone steel have been tightened to meet requirements of the all-time high in war production, Munitions Minister Howe announced, Wednesday. The steel shortage now is more acute than ever before, he said.

A new steel control order limits the amount of steel which any consumer may buy from warehouse stock for purposes other than war and highly essential civilian production, bolts, nuts, of carbon steel and two tons of alloy steel during any calendar quarter.

FORMER HOCKEY STARS RECAPTURE FOND MEMORIES

Montreal Maroons of 30's Score 6-3 Win Over Leafs of 1932

Toronto, Feb. 22 (CP)—Twenty-four hockey stars of the '30s last night recaptured for 1,000 Toronto fans fond memories of the exploits, while carried them a hockey fame.

They played in a Navy League of Canada benefit game in which the Montreal Maroons of 1935 scored a convincing 6-3 triumph over the Toronto Maple Leafs of 1932. They had the help of four more recent Montreal Hockey League stars and a dashing collection of juniors from the Ontario Hockey Association.

It was the old timers who sent the fans home talking of their pastime again. While time has slowed them down, they showed that they are surprisingly good.

Frederick Martyn (Red) Dutton of the N.H.L. was enthusiastic. "We ought to do this every winter," he explaining he didn't get into the game with the Maroons because he wasn't in shape for it.

Lionel (Big Train) Conacher, who captained the Maroons, said afterwards that "if we had a couple of weeks practise we could take on any of these modern N.H.L. teams."

Hasbrouck Hospital.

There was one casualty among the veterans. George Hainsworth, the Kitchener, Ont., who started in goal for the Maple Leafs suffered a slight muscle injury after eight minutes of play when he dived to save a shot from Eddie Shore. Hainsworth—whose record of 22 shutouts in 44 games with Montreal Canadiens in the 1928-29 season still stands unchallenged—was removed to hospital. It was explained his condition wasn't serious.

Four of the nine goals were scored by the old timers. Russ Blinco, Cy Wentworth and Lionel Conacher tallied for the Maroons. The Toronto goal was the product of the once-famous kid line. Joe Primeau passed to Harvey Jackson and the latter slapped the puck to Charlie Conacher, who drove home one of his old-time scoring shots.

Dave Kerr of Maroons and Hainsworth both fended off all threats in their efforts on the ice. Three goals were scored against Hainsworth old-time net guardian, Roy Worters.

Youngsters Get Three.

Three of the goal-getters were modern players. Neil Colville, recently discharged from the R.C.A.F. at the command of the Boston Bruins' famed Kraut line, got a tally in the air force, but Bobby Bauer, Bruins' other sniper, and Billy Taylor, Toronto Maple Leaf player who is in the army, got one for the Leafs.

Dutch Schaefer of the Cobalt-arities Falcons and Symehy Mayer of the Kirkland Lake Wings were the junior scorers. Defensive play with the Leafs and Mayer with the Maroons.

BIG YEAR

Toronto, Feb. 22 — (CP) — All indications point to a bit of a heated meeting this Saturday when the boys of the Canadian Rugby Union fall together for their annual confab. Discussion is bound to be heated when rules enter the agenda.

The meeting will give the Canadian football fan a glimpse of the shape of things to come—and then again, it may not. Quote a few angles concerning the gridiron and its future are as likely to fall flat when the mighty moguls of football begin round-table discussions.

When it comes to rule changes you can be sure of finding Bill Hughes of the Quebec Union in there punching — but in the end it will be the rules committee that has the power to vote or not. Bill's suggested changes are not very radical but Bill (Ottawa Journal) Westwick ventures to predict that it is doubtful any changes will be made in the little book of "laws" this year.

Among Hughes' suggestions is elimination of the kickoff at the start of the second half. Also that the deadline kick which Hughes seems so against, and others too, are slated to be kicked around a bit.

Fertile Field:

Individual changes in the rule book may all merit consideration by the code carriers. But perhaps the biggest — and maybe most important step the C.R.U. could take would be to standardize Canadian playing rules for senior, junior and high school football.

This is a move that could well be initiated now. There is little doubt that the limited changes toward standardization could not be made in one season. The truth is, such standardization is bound to come, why not start it now?

CANDIENS FEAR RED WINGS MOST IN THE PLAYOFFS

Chicago Hawks Score 5-0 Victory Over Bruins to Help Their Cause

By The Canadian Press

Montreal Canadiens have a healthy respect for Detroit Red Wings, the Hockey League team considered most likely to meet the Montrealers when the Stanley Cup finals get under around about a month from now.

Although Detroit has a less impressive record against the Habitants than Toronto Maple Leafs, Canadiens feel the Wings will be tougher to beat in the finals than any other N.H.L. club. The confidence may reflect their 4-3 week-end victory over Leafs at Toronto.

But Maurice (Rocket) Richard, Montreal's flashy right wing, says Detroit's defence of William (Flash) Hollett, Jack Stewart, Bill Quackenbush and Harold Jackson "are the toughest in the league."

Richard will check young Ted Lindsay, who jumped from junior ranks to a left-wing berth with Detroit this season, "if he's considered able to shake." Lindsay will be one of the players Leafs' Hockey Club of New York Rangers will have their eyes on tonight when they entertain Wings at New York.

Victory for Rangers is signific-ant-ive following the latter's shoot-ing of Chicago Black Hawks who, not content with holding the league leading Canadiens to a scoreless tie last weekend, shut out Boston Bru-ins last night, 5-0.

The triumph, Hawk's ninth of the season, left them a scant two points behind Rangers and within sight of the fourth place play-off slot occupied by Bruins.

Johnny Harms chalked up two goals in the Chicago cause, one in each of the last two periods. Bill Mosienko started the ball rolling with a first-period counter while Clint Smith and Muah Marvin added the others.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

With the turning over of a cheque for $2,500,000 yesterday to a New York trust company, Larry McPhail took over the New York Yankees as president and general manager. Payment of $300,000 was made 10 days ago to Edward Bar-stock and, at a reorganization meeting, Barrow resigned from the presidency to become chairman of the board.

Outfielder Leo Norlkoff of the Chicago Cubs yesterday was purch-ased by Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast International loop. It was a cash transaction but the amount was not disclosed.

The Guelph Curling Club is breaking high school students into their roaring game in a move to build up membership. Members have been collegians have been enrolled and arrangements are proceeding for a series of matches in March, for a junior championship.

Infielder Steve (the Kibosh) of Niagara Falls, Ont., yesterday signed a contract to play with Hamilton in the eastern league next season. He was spotted by George Toporcer, scout of the Boston Red Sox.

Goaltender Turk Broda and Bud Poile, veteran right winger of the N.H.L. Leafs and it. G. (Red) Ham-ill, with Cleveland Indians two seasons ago, were mentioned as pos-sible last night when Toronto sent England, for their service team hockey with hockey teams at the sea-side city.

Sgdn.-Ldr. Doug Annan, who once carried the ball for Queen's in the Canadian intercollegiate grid circuit, yesterday was transferred by R.C.A.F. base in Britain to be a pounding circuit, stations, bridges, trains and road transports with his Mosquito bomber.

President Maurice Podoloff of the American Hockey League last night ruled that goalie Jim Franks of Buffalo was ineligible to play in the team's game with Cleveland on Feb. 18 and a scheduled overtime contest, which had ended in a 2-all tie, to the Barons, 3-0.

They'll Do It Every Time

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

Lolla Truth.

A teacher was instructing a class of English and called on a small boy, who we will call Junior Brown:

"Tell me Junior Brown, the difference between 'Richard can ride the mule' and 'Richard can ride the mule with a stick.'"

"Now, Junior Brown, you can find a better form for saying that sentence?"

Willie — Yes, ma'am, I think I can. "Richard can ride the mule if the mule wants him to."

Big Job Ahead.

Toots Holway's Belleville juniors aren't out of the woods, yet. Beating the Canadiens in Sunday night's chore, although the locals feel they can, leaves them only one game to turn that little trick tomorrow night. Actually the Combines haven't been trounced in their two ballwick since the night of Jan. 30th when Trenton turned the trick to the tune of 5 to 4. However, since that the Canadiens have won two averages by pushing Trenton out of Belleville. That will get yet Belleville on our smaller ice surfaces where Uman, Wright and Lavender can make things fly around. It'll be a different story Friday night in Bellaview when we intend to force a third game," predicted President Hermidon of the Combines today, as he alleges the Combines just got a bad game out of their system last night.

Frankly Tuesday night it appeared as though the Combines burned themselves out in the middle session trying to overtake the locals, but it was Doug Green's fourth Belleville marker that clinched matters for Belleville. As a defence Green and Holway are just as effective as the Combines' trio even if they have to go the 60 minute route.

Grand Series.

Actually there wasn't much to choose from between the Flyers and the Bombers. Statistics show that in after 360 minutes of hockey, that constitutes six games, the Flyers walked off the ice last night carrying one goal up on the Bombers. Making a three goal deficit the Bombers had to play all-out hockey last night for which they were rewarded with a 6-4 win, but there are are quite an advantage. When the Flyers finally won the series 11 to 10 it ended a two year reign of domination in district. For 1944 for the Bombers. Now the Flyers will carry the Quinte Air Force banner into the No. 1 Command playdowns commencing here on Friday night.

Above statistics prove how evenly matched these two squads really were, but while the Bombers were marring Paul Raymond, a smashing star who helped lead the Flyers to victory, they were also minus the services of Bill Cowley, who was the big gun in the Bombers' attack. Cowley's loss was a severe blow to the Bombers' chances.

Perhaps the outstanding efforts of the series was the work of goal-tenders Curtis and Reinhardt. Besides the latter at least had something of a defence in front of him. Maybe that's why the Flyers won.

Here's an Idea.

Windsor's Doug Vaughan comes up with a new wrinkle for facing off the puck at hockey. It's used in hockey games played in the Big Ten loop of the Canadian West. Before placing the puck for a face-off he skates out on the ice, lies the centres assume their normal face-off positions and then steps back and blows his whistle as the signal for the players to start scrambling for the puck. . . . Many of those who have seen the rule in use say it's a lot better than current method of dropping the puck into play. . . . Doug Boudreau, 1944 batting champion of the American League could only hit .300 under the lights . . . The best night hitter was Al Zarilla of the Browns, who batted .357 under the arcs last season . . . Mike Kreevich was close behind with a .377 average. . . . The Tigers' Dick Wakefield was good both day and night. . . . His day average was .255 and his night average .266. . . . At least there will be no change in the field leadership of the Yankees next season, Manager Joe McCarthy and Coaches Art Fletcher, Johnny Schulte and Johnny Neun have all been signed to contracts for the 1945 campaign. . . . Jerry Quinlan, first in the National Hockey League, Maurice (The Rocket) Richard would rather play for Detroit Olympia. . . . The one he likes: That is Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

Remember When.

Norway's Sonia Henie won her 10th and last world figure skating championship nine years ago today. Frenn, from her Olympic triumph in 1936 at Garmisch, performed at Paris and outclassed a field of 36 rivals representing nine nations. Sonia was on her way to fame in the entertainment world as Hollywood's foremost ice ballerina.

No Changes Here.

Capt. Dan Topping, one of the new owners of the Yankees, stopping off in San Francisco last week, between Marine assignments, said he expected to be back here to do with either baseball or football this year. He even, however, the transfer of the Brooklyn Tigers' franchise to the National Football League from Ebbets Field to Yankee Stadium could be completed before the 1945 season gets under way.

SPORTS TRAVEL TO BE REDUCED IN COMING YEAR

U. S Transportation Board Asks for Reduction of 25 Per Cent Basis

Washington, Feb. 22 — (AP) — A lot of where, when and how remained to be answered today in regard to the sports of the government's new sports travel reduction request.

The Office of Defence Transportation had disclosed it is asking all sports to reduce passenger mileage by 25 per cent o na "home field basis," with major league baseball being the first to make the cut. Play on "neutral" fields will be eliminated.

Answering unanswered questions as to how the policy will apply are these:

What will the effect be on tennis and golf tournaments in which individuals instead of teams compete?

Will intercollegiate basketball championships be held there in Kansas City and New York, and major track meets like the Drake and Penn relays be eliminated.

When will the over-all policy go into effect?

The O.D.T. said the answers to such questions are "forthcoming shortly," and a "starting time" for the policy to go into effect probably will be set soon.

However, Tom Frick and Will Harridge, major league presidents, winding up two days of conferences with baseball club officials said:

"It's just what we wanted; now we know where we stand and can get down to the business of going ahead."

Baseball's leaders felt that they now have only one more barrier — the management - labor situation before the game's continuance this spring.

Specifically, this is what is asked of baseball in the mileage cut:

(1) Games will be played only in the home city of one or the other competing teams. Elimination of established games on "neutral" fields except at Army and Navy establishments. Pre-season training will continue to be held at places in or near the home city of each team.

(2) Team rosters, when travelling, will be reduced to 25 minimum.

3. The world series games will be held only if transportation and war conditions at the time permit.

4. All clubs will re-examine their schedules and make such further transportation savings as are possible.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 611
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

All bridge experts do not sleep in the same way. But most of them are still used to the salile bunk. Like washing the old-fashioned way, some methods of how to count the tricks may take years.

One tells you to learn a table of card combinations known as honor tricks. Then there they tell you to add a half or a plus sign for this or that holding under conditions.

Another tells you to count three points for an ace; two for a king one for a queen; a half for a jack. Then a total of so many or more points, you may for ping or so if you are lucky or there.

Still another tells you to count four points for an ace; three for a king; two for a queen; one for a jack. With a total of so many or more. You may do this or that if you know when.

Such are the forerunners of large pregnancy, the cats of the home and bunny days; the crude oil of its slow engine era; the low octane era of its early biplane period.

You can still get along with them, Many do, plowing or plodding or gliding along. In fact, many refuse to believe that a more streamlined method is better. Until they use the Horses count.

In the Horse Sense count you simply count one trick for each high card (ace or king or queen) and one for each short card (each card short of three in all short suits).

Take a pair of hands like these:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠7 5 3	♠A K 4 2
♥9 3 2	♥A K 7 4
♦A K 7	♦A K 4 2
♣A K 5 3	♣4 3

If the south hand you have four high cards and no short cards; total four tricks. In the north hand you can count four high cards, a short in diamonds, a short in clubs; total six tricks.

You would reach the same result with a cumbersome count. But with hands that are not as simple as these, it would take much longer.

AT THE BELLE

"Mademoiselle Fifi"

The undying patriotism of a little French girl whose country is occupied by its German foe is the theme of RKO Radio's thrilling new offering, "Mademoiselle Fifi", starring Simone Simon, and one of two feature attractions now on the Belle Theatre screen.

Simone plays a young French peasant girl who by her open defiance has made herself such a thorn in the sides of the Germans in Rouen that they place her aboard a coach for her native village. On her arrival, she continues her campaign of defiance, aided by a young republican patriot and the village parson.

Her chief enemy is a brutal Prussian officer nicknamed by his comrades "Mademoiselle Fifi", whom she so outrages that he becomes almost psychopathic in his desire to humiliate her. One night at a party for German officers which she is forced to attend, he goes too far, and she stabs him. How she is rescued by her young republican patriot and lives to see her village rid of its chief oppressor, forms the climax of this gripping drama of patriotism and romance.

John Emery provides the romance for Simone; Kurt Kreuger is the sadistic Prussian officer, "Mademoiselle Fifi", and Edmund Glover is the village priest. Among others in the supporting cast are Alan Napier, Fay Helm and Jason Robards.

"Fresh Fame Wins", Timely.

Basing its emotionally powerful plot on the British stage and film Juvenile training begins at noon, RKO Radio's drama "Youth Runs Wild", Bert Gordon production on the same program deals mainly with the romance of two youngsters in a defense-industry town.

AT THE CAPITOL — Raymond Hatton who appears with Johnny Mack Brown in the western thriller, "Land Of The Outlaws," at the Capitol Theatre. The added hit, "Make Your Own Bed".

AT THE McCARTHY — Peggy Ryan is one of the top entertainers in Universal's musical production, "Babes on Swing Street," now showing at the McCarthy Theatre, with the added hit, "They Live in Fear."

Both are children of industrial workers and their scant time to devote to their offspring. Inevitably, the Parker and Elmerfield youngsters drift into bad companionship and suffer from its dipsterous influence.

The boy and his friends are caught in an unsuccessful fire theft, while the girl becomes involved with the authorities when a wayward older girl, to whom the young heroine has fled, is accidentally killed.

In a dramatic and fearless manner, the story marches on to its telling conclusion wherein the elders learn belatedly from the bitter lesson meted out to the children. The realism in the picture may be traced to the observations made by Ruth Chatterton—as girl, as wife, originated the now famous "Moline Plan", and who served as Technical adviser to RKO.

"Flicker Flashes" is an entertaining and humorous Novelette showing stars and scenes of films from yesteryear concludes the Program.

New York, Feb. 22 — (AP)—One of Ray Dumont's pet projects of the post-war baseball is the revival of "town teams" . . . Baseball needs the boys used to pitch in and level off at the pastime for a ball field and nearly everybody turned out for a Sunday afternoon for the big game against a neighboring town" . . . That kind of baseball isn't dead, but Ray figures it will be unless someone takes action so he has formed a National Association of old-time groups to keep baseball rustling . . . Right now Dumont's National Baseball Congress appeals mostly to war plant and army teams, but he expects to have about 200 leagues in the country this summer . . . But the real problem is organizing modern towns where there aren't any commercial sponsors . . . "If it is possible to get over my plan," Ray commends, "every town in the country may be a

CHAPTER 20

Bruce raced the car engine. The waiting seemed interminable. At only 4 minutes he had shaped both George appeared.

They kept to the coastline, heading South.

During the fast ride, George explained the mysterious actions that had worried his wife and Livia. She was a member of the Jonas gang. And had been doublecrossed by him when he left the United States for Mexico. He had come back for revenge, nullifying suspicion by a scheme for a race-track deal at Caliente.

"The easiest thing in the world is to fool a smart guy," George said. They were now at San Diego. "And Lola is where you get out."

"Sure you'll be all right the rest of the way?" Bruce said. He was in a hurry to get back to Los Angeles. "That paper Livia signed—" he said to George.

"If you look in my left pocket, you'll find it," he replied. "It's my present to her—mine and Vera's. And now, so long."

He started the car. "Tell Livia we'll back soon—when this blows over."

Bruce watched him drive away. He hired a car to take him back to Los Angeles.

It was 2 A.M. when he arrived at Livia's house. It was in darkness. He decided to let her sleep. His report could wait until morning.

The early newspaper editions carried the account of the killing of Jonas and the discovery of an unsigned document announcing Jonas as the murderer of the dead policeman and exonerating Earl Dixon. There was no mention of Maxwell or Bruce.

Livia's face was pale and there were dark circles under her eyes.

"It's no use," she said as Bruce briskly pulled up the Venetian blinds in her bedroom. "I'm out. I called Charles last night."

"You're going to call him right back now—and tell him you'll be ready to work—and I mean work—at nine this morning."

He gave her the document she had signed for Al Jonas.

"I think I understand it after expression of wonder, "I think we can burn this now. How about a match?" She pointed silently to a box on the table. And watched the paper vanish into a blackened ash.

"Did Jonas—" she began.

"Has died," Bruce told her. Shot by one of his own men." He decided to say nothing about George.

"How do you know—and the paper?" she fiddled her the newspaper.

"What a nightmare," she sighed. "But you still haven't explained about the paper. How—" He looked at his watch.

"You'll be late if you don't hurry. I'll call Verdyce."

What d'ye think a studio is—something that can be pushed around every time a girl changes her mind?" Charles asked over the phone. He was exasperated. Who did Nolan think he was calling him so early in the morning?

"I tell you everything is all right," Bruce said.

There was still Dixon himself to be reckoned with, of course, but this now seemed easy. And whether he lived or died, Livia would now be protected.

"Go ahead," Verdyce said. But Bruce knew he had touched the weak spot in the director's armor. "Let me talk to her," Charles said abruptly.

"I understand you're getting married today," he said to her, Livia laughed. It was the first time that her heart in several weeks. "You sound happy," he said morosely.

"I could never be unhappy," she said.

"You'd better get to the studio before Alice Delavane does."

"I'm on my way," she sang.

She flung a few items around Bruce's neck and kissed him.

"What's happening to me today?" she asked.

Intuition must have warned Alice that all was not well. She had gone to the studio at 7 A. M. and so missed the director's call to her house. She was sitting in her dressing room when Livia and Bruce arrived, and started without speaking at their happy faces.

"Tell me what to do." Livia implored. "I'm afraid."

"No, love," grinned Bruce.

"Why don't we let Smithy handle it in his own inimitable fashion?" Livia suggested.

"I'll call him out." Bruce opened the door and watched while Smithy applied a wide red curve to Allen's thin lips. "You're wanted outside," he said casually to Smithy.

"I'm busy," said the make-up man who leaned lower over the star. "Please open your mouth a little," he supplicated.

"It's the boss," Bruce said casually. Smithy straightened up.

"Excuse me, please," he said to Alice and followed Bruce to where Livia was waiting in the next make-up room.

He looked for Mr. Dunne.

"Where—?" he began.

"He's not here," Bruce grinned.

"Then I must go back—" Bruce barred his way to the door.

"You'll be fired," Bruce said pleasantly.

"What? How?"

"For attending to Miss Delavane when you should be attending to the young lady."

"She's out of the picture—"

"I'm back now, Smithy," Livia said.

"but Miss Delavane—"

"A little make-up won't hurt her," Bruce said. "Get rid of her."

Charles Perdyce spent two hours convincing Alice that a terrible mistake had been made, that she had been hired for the second feminine role and not for "Simoria Lewis." Then she tore her clothes, disregarding the grips, cameramen, electrician, and members of the cast, and had a super attack of hysterics.

"My husband will rush the whole bunch of you," she said, then picked herself up unaided from the floor and rushed from the set.

"I guess we'll all have lunch now," said Perdyce, mopping his forehead and signalling desperately for Livia. he said to Livia, "if you let me down now, my business will be ruined, Miss Alice's."

"Thanks, Charlie," she said softly. "Back at 12, everyone," shouted the assistant director.

Earl Dixon did not die. But for weeks he hung by the merest thread. When he was a little better, Livia visited him. She stayed only a few minutes and very little was said. But just before she left, Dixon said:—

"How's the picture?"

"Only another week to go," she told him.

"I hear you are doing fine," he said.

"Who told you?" she asked eagerly.

"Never mind," he said with a faint smile and then quickly, "No one must know about me. Till face finished, and Livia was alarmed. He looked—terrible.

"We'll see about that later," she said. "Get well, darling, quickly."

The barrage of publicity preceding the "return" of "Simoria Lewis" was the greatest ever known in Hollywood. Newspaper columnists and editors from all over the country were coming by plane and train. A select audience of stars had been hand-picked for the event.

Livia's first scene was reproduced on twelve by twenty-five foot billboards all over town. She gave out so many interviews that her throat and voice were exhausted with the topic of herself. Only one name was excluded Earl Dixon's name in her story. Bruce cautioned her to wait. If and when she was famous, she could be and say anything she liked, and the public would take it.

"Besides," said Bruce shrewdly, "being engaged working for a reconciliation between her father and brother, finally said:—

"All right, I'll go alone."

"What! And have you fall in love with another of those damned actors?" he said harshly.

Livia invited them to stay with her. But the Judge preferred a hotel.

"Where," he said, "I can form my own opinion on this jungle of yours." But Elizabeth stayed with Livia.

There was to be a big party at Livia's on the premiere. Magnificent Pictures had taken over the entire house for the night. They had also taken over Livia. No objection was raised when Livia included Elizabeth and Judge Nolan in the group which, she would see the picture. But, politely, Bruce Samuels objected to Bruce.

"You can do what you like afterward. But tonight we must have you with a big-name star from the studio."

Bruce grinned and said, "Do as they say, Livia."

The meeting between the judge and his son was easier than either of them had expected. It was now more than four years since they had quarrelled. Bruce and Livia called on the Judge at his hotel and remained with him two hours.

"Father and I will never again disagree about anything—until the next time," Bruce told Livia.

"Now back to the house with Elizabeth. . . . An army of hair-dressers and wardrobe girls from the studio surrounded Livia, waiting to dress her up for the premiere.

It was an hour and a half, Livia's protested when Smithy, fidgeting nervously, suggested they should start. Her hair had been washed and was covered with a harsh net showing glints of red-gold.

"Excited, darling?" Elizabeth asked.

"It's a dream," Livia said. "Why is it that when something wonderful is happening, you can't grasp it? You look fresh, rested and back."

"I know," Elizabeth said softly. "Remember how I felt when Terry Davidson — I'm over it now and can't believe he even existed for me. It will be the same."

"We haven't heard anything about him since that awful time with Al Jonas. Bruce tried to find him. But he must have left the country."

Elizabeth was now engaged to the son of a wealthy neighbor ranches in Colorado.

Mrs. Sayles tried to get the two girls to eat something. But neither could do more than nibble at the sandwiches she prepared.

It was time now for Livia to put on the dress of white stiff brocade silvered with gleaming thread. The strapless bodice framed the white flesh of her shoulders. The gown hugged her slim hips and then flowed to the ground in a starched flare.

Samuels had made all the arrangements, and Livia merely had to obey orders. But she was nervous as the car inched its way to the long red carpet and the banks of flowers. A corps of publicity men immediately surrounded them. The star with whom she would walk up the carpet to the microphone waited. She had expected to escape unnoticed into the theatre. But she was recognized and the crowd roared her name and her companion's while they walked on the seemingly endless red carpet to the microphone.

How long ago was it that she, too, was a face in the bleachers, dreaming that one day she would walk down the carpet, a star among stars?

And Bruce — where was he now? She thought she saw him in the front row of the bleachers, but wasn't sure. She waved anyway, and was rewarded with a howl of delight from a hundred adolescents.

She stopped when she saw Alice Delaware. Hal Schneider, her husband, and Charles Perdyce were with her. Alice was trying to indicate to Alice that she already spoken over-long at the microphone. She glared at him, then turned with a sugary smile to Nolan and Livia.

"Good-bye, everyone," Alice cooed and displayed her dress.

"And now," shouted the announcer, "I want to introduce you to Hollywood's newest star, and the heroine of our picture tonight."

Livia tried to keep her eyes open as a bombardment of flashlights exploded in her face. She suddenly felt alone, and as if she had cut off her self from human contact. She had been vaguely aware of telling them that she was happy to be there and that she hoped they would not be disappointed with her.

Then somehow she was inside the theatre. People in the aisles, rows and girls and boys passed in a never-ending procession across her autograph. A policeman came to her rescue.

"Later," he told them all. "Later."

Livia had sent a ticket to her father. But she had not expected him to be there. He had just left the hospital and was to go to the Santa Barbara sanatarium the next day. She was fearful for a moment — when she saw him. But he was sober. He was sitting between Vera and George. They had returned from Mexico a month ago. And George, Livia knew, was a detective with a local bureau. Her father smiled and she thought his hands together in the manner of a child applauding. She smiled back; imitating his gesture.

"Good luck," she whispered back.

Then the lights in the house darkened.

The three hours that followed were among the most wretched of Livia's young life. Why had she ever considered herself an actress? She hated herself. Her voice was harsh. And her smile—what had happened to her smile? Every time she was supposed to smile she merely bared her teeth in a terrifying grimace. It was awful. Her cheeks flamed in the darkness.

After the scene where her husband finds her in Jonas' arms, and she pleaded with him to come back, there was such thrill applause. It was for him, of course.

She closed her eyes and wished she could leave the theatre. The theatre was a sudden spurt of laughter. It was spasms in her eyes. The comedian was getting the laughs predicted by Perdyce. You gave people so much drama, then you brought them down with a laugh.

Livia smiled and forgot that this was her picture. She almost enjoyed some of the drama—if she didn't look too closely at herself. And she was fast thinking that if some of the scenes part could be remade, it might not be an awful picture. They came to the last scene and her death.

She lowered her head in embarrassment. Why were she making those ridiculous faces? She was completely deflated of pride. "If only I'd stayed at home," she said miserably to herself.

There was a sudden loud noise in the theatre. They were booing her. It was her first thought, and then she realized it was applause. The lights were on and people were standing.

"You were wonderful, Livia," they said in different ways. Her father nodded his approval. Then she appeared in the crowd which was surrounding her. She cried.

"Livia, darling!" Vera kissed her. She hugged, whispered.

Livia fought her tears. She didn't believe them. Always at a premiere everyone was kind. Everyone was nice. Oh, no, they couldn't fool her, Hadn't she seen the film herself? But here was Charles Perdyce, and he was smiling.

"You were as good as I knew you'd be," he said. "You're the hottest thing in the business."

"But I was terrible," she said to him tearfully.

"Keep thinking that, and you'll keep on improving," Charles said. "I'll see you at Ciro's."

Livia had forgotten about Ciro's. Where was Bruce? She saw him near the door and struggled, holding on to Elizabeth and the Judge to reach him. She had to pass Alice Delaware to get to him. Alice regarded her with cold yes, and Livia braced herself for confrontation.

"How did you do it?" Alice asked. "I mean, how did you give such a good performance? You were wonderful," she gushed. "I don't think I could have done it. I'm not myself." Alice was not a girl to stay outside the limelight in her opinion.

The picture had proved that Livia would be an important star.

Ah, they were here.

He put his arm around her, and she leaned against him.

The judge grinned. "If you think you can get me out of this mob, you're crazy."

"Everything is possible in Hollywood," Bruce said and called a policeman to him and whispered in his ear. A few minutes later, a lane divided the crowd.

"Mr. Bruce Nolan's car," Bruce said to the announcer. Samuels bustled up importantly.

"She'll have to go with Mr. Dunne," he said. Bruce repeated to the announcer.

"Mr. Nolan's car."

"Then and then only," said Samuels, "but she must come with us."

"Be more respectful when you talk to my wife," said Bruce and laughed at the astonished face of the publicity man.

"When?" he ajdultered as Bruce helped Livia into the car.

"This morning," Bruce said calmly. "My father can do all that the details. He married us—Judge Nolan. You'll find him at Ciro's—if you hurry!"

They took the coast road to Northern California. Livia's head had left the town behind them. Livia leaned against Bruce's shoulder. "Let's take the top down. I want the wind in the sea on my face."

After a while she asked, "You saw Charles?"

"Yes."

"How did he take it?"

"He wouldn't believe it if you were giving it all up to be plain Mrs. Nolan of California. He said you'd come back to pictures."

They were silent. Then Livia said: "I never really like the movie business. But I had to tick it."

"You did that splendidly all right," said Bruce. "Sure you haven't changed your mind? We can turn back. . . . Hollywood is still there waiting for you." Livia drew her head from the sea on my face.

"If you dare turn round," she threatened, "I'll . . . I'll—" He stopped the car and pressed her to him fiercely.

"You'll never be sorry, Livia," he breathed into her hair. "This is really, my darling—you and I forever."

"Forever," breathed Livia.

THE END.

Afraid to Eat Because of Gas Pains, Bloat and Sour Acid-Rising. Had Backache and Dizzy Spells. Tells of Good Results Syntone Gave.

It is a real pleasure to tell you how much Syntonics has done for me, and I hope other sufferers will read this and get a trial," said Mr. Edward Wells, Sr., Hamilton, Ontario, who is the well-known founder of Wells Transport Co.

"I had flu and left my whole system in a badly run-down condition. I had no appetite, had an awful distress with gas and indigestion after meals. I got so that I was afraid to eat for my sour insides would rise in my throat. I had a bad case of sour, bloated feeling and had to belch sometimes. Light-headed, dizzy spells would come over me and most days I had to lie down. I constantly had a bad taste in my mouth and a coated tongue. Pains in my arms and limbs. My nerves were so upset I couldn't sleep. I lost weight and felt tired and weak.

"I tried a lot of different things but nothing helped me until I began taking Syntonics. It wasn't long before I noticed I had at last found a medicine that was helping me. My food began to digest properly and the indigestion and burning and sour, sour liquids. Now I am free from those dizzy spells, my appetite is coming before my eyes. The aches and pains have left me, my nerves are steady and strong and my sleep is generally that many people remark about. I feel fine and look fine and I cannot recommend Syntone too highly and hope many people who suffer as I did will give it a chance to help them, too."

Syntonics is made from 12 of Nature's finest herbs and roots and acts on stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels. Many who take it say that even after the first few days the whole system takes on a new feeling of strength and vigor.

Go to DOLAN THE DRUGGIST, Bellevile, and find out how Syntonics can help you, too.

POLICE COURT

Soldier Convicted Of Entering Charge

Pte. John Ward, alias Whiteside of the Canadian Army, was convicted of a breaking and entering charge when he appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in county police court here today. He was remanded for sentence for detention at the request of Crown Attorney W. C. Denman. "We wish to procure his fingerprint record from Ottawa," explained Mr. Denman in asking for the remand. Sentence will be passed on Monday.

A charge of fraud against William Layton, Foxboro, was enlarged for one week, as was a charge of the breach of the Canadian Law of England preferred against Ernest Grant of Camplford. Provincial Police allege that Post gave false information.

Motorist Gets Penned in in Unusual Manner

Ernie Colborne rodelled a couple of choruses of "Don't Fence Me In," last night—and he wasn't kidding.

It happened like this. Ernie drove his car into his Foster Avenue garage last night, and discovered the doors closed. There is a slight grade at the back of the garage building, and when Ernie jumped out to open the doors he neglected to put on the emergency brake.

Turning he noticed the car slowly rolling backward, and saw the front end of the car starting through the garage like a hot dog through a bun.

In the next house, slippered and at ease, was Ex-Mayor Harry Hollins. Mrs. Colborne telephoned him, and the ex-chief magistrate, who was a boy scout in his younger days, went to Ernie's rescue. He pulled out several boards of his neighbors' prison and extricated the slightly disgruntled motorist.

All the damage was a broken headlight and paint scratches and a disturbed garage wall.

8 LEGISLATURES OUT OF 9 MEETING ACROSS DOMINION

Alberta Legislature Opens, P. E. Island House Only Body Not Sitting

Premier Manning today leads his Alberta Social Credit administration into its first session since the 1940 provincial election, bringing to eight the number of provincial legislatures now holding sittings across the Dominion. Prince Edward Island is the only legislature not sitting at present.

Reading of the Throne Speech by Lieutenant-Governor J. C. Bowen is expected to be followed by introduction of special legislation by Attorney-General Lucien Maynard to permit the three recently-elected Communist members-at-large to take their seats in the legislature by acclamation.

Economic matters were under discussion yesterday in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Quebec and Saskatchewan Houses while the Ontario session considered the active service election bill and Quebec debated a motion protesting conscription for overseas service.

Conscription Protested at Quebec

All-Quebec debate on opposition by Rene Chaloult, Quebec Conservative, protesting conscription for overseas service was adjourned after Premier Paul Leduc (L—Laval) said: the Dominion Government "is not governing Sovereignly" in matters of war and Quebec legislation. "cannot "proclaim conscription" in Quebec because they do not know the exact reasons which prompted the Federal Government to impose it."

Premier Duplessis said the Liberal administration at Ottawa had supplied "the most perfidious and distorted kind of information" and supplied in this country."

Public accounts tabled in Nova Scotia showed the province's eighth surplus in the history of the present Liberal administration, a total of only $644,978, below the all-time record established in 1943.

Agriculture Minister Campbell said in the Manitoba legislature that patronage dividends of co-operative should be taxed only in the form of personal income tax when they pass into the hands of individual members, and urged that the present system of taxing private corporations which compete with co-operatives be greatly modified.

Hugh Mackay, opposition leader in the New Brunswick House, opening debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, said the present position of British is an economic factor of perhaps first importance in the post-war period, and for the province "it is the most important factor in our whole province."

Premier Douglas told the Saskatchewan session that recent debate in the Dominion have shown the need of a new constitutional conference and charged Federal attempts to collect the $7,500,000 seed grain debt from the province is "a determined and ruthless attempt to financially cripple the government and prevent it carrying out its program for the common people."

Accused Put In Witness Box

Welland, Feb. 22 — (CP)—Louis Desjardins 34, now being tried at the Assizes here for the murder of his wife, Anna, was placed in the witness box as Col. Hugh A. Ross, K.C., opened the case for the defence today and the accused, while asserting that he "didn't remember" what happened, proceeded to give his account of the attack upon his wife, and murder, Crown Counsel Randall, 44. Randall is in hospital recovering from his injuries.

Mrs. Desjardins died three days after the attack.

Desjardins said he awakened shortly before 3 a. m. January 4, last to find the bedroom light on and his wife in bed.

"I got mad and lost my head and ran to the kitchen and picked up an axe, the first thing I could get hold of, and ran to her room," the accused related. "I hit Randall twice and I believe I struck my wife once. Randall jumped out of bed and ran to his own room; then took my two children who were in our bedroom, to the kitchen and went out and summoned the police." The accused said he never had any reason to doubt his wife. "I loved her and I love my children, but when I found my wife and the boarder together I had to do it," he said.

Exchange Prisoners Arrive in Montreal

Montreal, Feb. 22 (CP) — Exchange prisoners of war who arrived at New Jersey yesterday, arrived at Montreal today, to be given a great welcome by swarms of relatives who cheered, cried and crowded around the station while a military band played on a flag-draped station platform.

Four young Canadian women who were aboard the sealed train to bring the repats from New Jersey were whisked off under Red Cross surveillance without being permitted to give any interviews.

Majority of the 78 repatriated persons were army personnel, some of whom had been in German prison camps since the Dieppe attack of 1942.

Cpl. Calbury Only Member of His Company To Survive Shell Blast

Government plans for war veterans learning a trade following active service and the progress of rehabilitation grants are all okay, but what the boys overseas are thinking about is whether there will be jobs for them to earn a decent living when they are returned to civilian life in Canada.

Thus the sentiments of soldiers overseas, expressed by Cpl. John Calbury, of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, following his return from overseas last February after serving with the Mediterranean war theatre. Going overseas with the first contingent of Canadian troops in 1939, Cpl. Calbury saw action with British Commando troops in the Lofoten Islands Adriatic coast on the Italian mainland.

Amnesia Victim for 13 Days

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Calbury, South Front Street, and his wife and young daughter live in England who are expected shortly to arrive in Canada. Cpl. Calbury was seriously wounded when a German howitzer shell exploded almost directly in front of him, killing all members of his company and wounding him in the chest and arms and leaving him an amnesia victim for a period of 13 days.

"The only thing I can remember is a blast flash" related the returned corporal. "After that every-thing is a blank. I woke up in a hospital in North Africa, 13 days later."

Overseas for five years he declared that to be "away from home twelve months too long." Still with his left arm partially numbed as result of his wounds, he expects shortly to be discharged.

Tribute to the Kinsmen Club in their war charity work in aid of the Belleville boy who indicated the regular parcels of cigarettes received overseas were a source of morale builders.

"Those cigarettes really meant something to us," he said. "They indicated that the folks back home were thinking of us. Words cannot express the appreciation of the boys overseas."

But it was the lack of housing accommodation in Canada which was a big point of worry for Cpl. Calbury. "Four years in Canada he has been looking for a place to live with his family bride and their young daughter might set a high price."

"I have not yet been successful," was the comment. "One place I could have rented, but they wanted no children. All said they were sorry."

"But it is not sympathy which we returned men want. We appreciate a welcome, but what is needed is something more tangible and we are looking for non-political organizations and service clubs to lead the way."

Perrin, 27, of Rockford, Ill., told reporters few of the prisoners in the ship's hold were alive when they reached land as a result of the air attack.

Some already had suffocated and others died of thirst. Each survivor had not the ship been sunk, he asserted.

Elect Trial By Judge; Jury

Hamilton, Feb. 22 (CP) William V. He was charged after Wilhelmina McCulloch, Anna Duncan, named him as the father of a baby whose body was found in a snowbank here January 29. Miss Duncan said he had been born to her while she tried unsuccessfully to conceal it. The woman is now awaiting sentence on a charge of concealing the birth.

WESTERN OFFENSIVE OPENS

Russians Mass Along Arc East of Berlin

Moscow Broadcast States "the Zero Hour Has Struck"

Guben Almost Encircled In an 11-Mile Smash

London, Feb. 23 (CP) — Russian troops, having almost encircled forress Guben in an 11-mile smash through reinforced German lines, today were reported massing along an arc 30 to 50 miles east and south east of Berlin for an end-the-war stroke triumphantly heralded by Marshal Stalin.

"Complete victory over the Germans now is near," Marshal Stalin declared last night in a special order of the day which said the great Russian Winter offensive had already cost the Germans more than 1,150,000 killed or captured.

The Moscow radio, early today followed up the Stalin order with a German-language broadcast declaring "the hour has struck," and added that "dissolution of the German army in the east is in full swing."

Now up to German People

"It is up to the German people in the army and factories to stop the war," the broadcast said, "wars will not be negotiated with the generals."

Marshal Stalin yesterday declared that Soviet and Allied armies have co-ordinated their offensive operations and are "successfully completing the rout of German Fascist army."

Final victory will come in "hard battles and persistent labor," he said, warning that "as the doomed enemy hurls his last forces into action he will grasp at the most extreme and desperate means of struggle."

Stalin's proclamation commemorating the 27th anniversary of the Red Army, said the Russians had killed 800,000 Germans and captured 350,000 since January 14, and said the Germans had lost 3,000 planes, 2,500 tanks and self-propelled guns and 12,000 other guns during that time.

All-Out Offensive Soon.

The Berlin radio said a final all-out Soviet offensive was imminent now that Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukraine Army has drawn up beside Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's 1st. Zhukov's army on a bridgehead line along the Neisse and Oder Rivers.

Berlin said Zhukov's army was massed "like a colossus" awaiting new attack orders.

Berlin's forces yesterday captured 40 localities south of Guben and reached the Neisse River at many points along its winding course southfront, Moscow declared.

Yesterday's greatest advance of 11 miles through fortified forests toppled a Germany army, two miles south of Guben. Other Soviet forces in the had reached the Neisse eight miles north of the city the day before.

German broadcasts, partially confirmed by Moscow reports, said the Russians already had crossed the Neisse and were completing the encirclement of Guben.

Within 12 Miles of Cottbus.

Soviet troops also drove to within 12 miles of Cottbus, rail hub on the Spree River, last natural defence line before Berlin, and with the capture of Sorau were also only five miles north of Forst.

Marshal K. K. Rokossovsky's 2nd White Russian Army, striking out for Danzig, gained up to five miles yesterday on a 45-mile front stretching as far west as the Danzig-Berlin railway.

Two more suburbs of, besieged and encircled Breslau, capital of Lower Silesia, fell to the Russians yesterday.

Remnants of German Fleet Forced To Retreat by Russian Armies

By FRANK LOWE
(CP Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 23 — (CP) — The German surface fleet has suffered what probably is its final defeat — and by a land force at that.

With the Red Army driving toward the coast of Stettin, Prussia and Poland, the safe sanctuaries there which have sheltered German warships throughout the war have had to be evacuated. True, the fleet that could have stood offshore and fought costly delaying actions, but the warships of the third Reich chose to retreat.

According to Swedish reports, the larger seaworthy craft — including two pocket battleships, two heavy and four light cruisers — have run to seek doubtful refuge in Denmark and Holland. But this probably means they have run to their doom. There, nothing has been but destruction, either by scuttling or bombs. And with the tradition of scuttling which began in the Great War, when the High Sea Fleet was put on the bottom of Scapa Flow by its own men and which was continued in this war by the Graf Spee, Immortelle U-boats and Bismarck, it is likely that at least some of the German ships will ultimately commit suicide.

Just a day or so after the German warships were reported in Copenhagen, Swedish sources reported that explosions had rocked the harbor there and speculated R.A.F. Coastal Command had already begun the task of smashing the skulk-ing remnants of the German fleet.

YANKS INVADE CAPUL ISLAND SOUTH OF LUZON

Manila, Feb. 23 — (AP)—Soldiers of the American Division, veterans of battles in the Solomons, stepped up Japanese today on little Capul island off the south tip of Luzon after a new invasion aimed at clearing the Philippines of Japanese.

Only light opposition was encountered on the island which lies in San Bernardino Strait between Luzon and occupied Samar island. Capul is a controlling point in the straits through which units of the Imperial Japanese Navy steamed in an attempt to smash the American Leyte beachhead last October.

It lies 260 air miles from Manila, where other American troops are locked in a fierce battle against a bitterly resisting Japanese garrison.

From the shattered southern portion of the capital, Fred Hampson, Associated Press war correspondent, reported infantrymen attired the Manila Hotel, the city hall and all of the general post office except the Hotel Wen.

"The hotel was won," he said, "after a room-to-room and corridor-to-staircase fight through the smouldering floors. The post office was no less difficult."

Bursts and cannon pounded at the heavy walls of the International to prepare tunneled paths for tanks.

Simultaneously the 11th Airborne Division advanced along the west coast of 30-mile Laguna De Bay, southeast of Manila, to cut off the retreat of trapped Japanese by barge. The division reached the town of Muntinlupa.

CANUCKS GO BOATING AS THEY CHASE NAZIS INTO GERMANY

20 FREIGHT YARDS BLASTED BY 1,900 AMERICAN PLANES

Gigantic Offensive To Knock Out Nazi Transport System Continues

London, Feb. 23 — (CP) — At least 20 freight yards and other rail targets were blasted today by 1,900 American planes pounding the gigantic offensive to knock out the German transport system that feeds both the eastern and western fronts.

A force of more than 1,250 heavy bombers and 650 fighters followed the same pattern as yesterday's assault and spread out in small formations to smash at widespread targets from the relatively low altitudes of 6,000 to 12,000 feet.

There was every indication that this operation was only part of a free-for-all attack by all seven Allied air commands in this theatre and Italy which probably were putting 5,000 planes into the air following yesterday's blow by 7,000 bombers and fighters.

Not since the 11th day of ruinous attacks on Germany from both west and south in which 20,000 planes probably have been thrown against the enemy in the last three days, Italian Planes Join Attack.

More than 1,100 aircraft from Italy joined in the attack yesterday, hitting 54 separate rail targets in Germany, Austria and Italy, and the R.A.F. kept the offensive going last night with Mosquito bombers hitting Berlin and other objectives.

Eighth Air Force targets today were located in a triangular area stretching from Leipzig to south of Nuremberg.

Among the first places identified as targets were Crailsheim, Kitzingen, southeast of Wurzburg, Aschaebach, Neumarket and Treuchtlingen, all junctions through which German troops and supplies pass on the way to the Russian front.

At 11 a.m. today no radio said that advance elements of a great armada stretching out 400 miles had reached the Brunswick area. Another formation was spotted over Austria, suggesting that U. S. 15th Air Force bombers from Italy also were out.

The attack on Berlin last night was in line with concentrated Allied effort to knock out vital German communications centres, including both the western and eastern fronts and Berlin, said to be hub of a great part of the German railway system.

7,000 Bombers.

Approximately 7,000 Allied bombers and fighters hammering about 100 enemy communications centres yesterday in one of the greatest air assaults in history. Approximately 40,000 airmen took part in the raids, during which more than 7,000 tons of bombs were loaded on targets from Denmark to Austria.

Allied Air Blows, Red Threat, Put German Nerves to Greatest Test

By JERJE GRANBERG
(Swedish Newspaper Correspondent Who Recently Returned to Stockholm from Berlin.)
(Written for The Associated Press; Copyright, 1945, by The Associated Press)

Stockholm, Feb. 23 —(AP)— While the German home front has held together under the Nazis' iron grip, the big question now is whether the nerves of the people—reduced to the barest necessities of life—can continue to stand up under Allied bombings and the threat of the Russian advance.

Berliners nowadays actually are very tough in respect to bombings. Not even the devastating effects of the last large-scale American air attack Feb. 3 could make them forget the still greater and imminent danger outside the eastern gates of Berlin nor long delay the work of erecting barricades in every street.

Last U.S. Attack the Worst.

I was in Berlin during that last great American attack. After experiencing more than 700 alerts and at least half as many raids, I can say that this unquestionably was one of the war's worst bombings.

I sought safety in an underground railway tunnel which is one of Berlin's "safest" shelters. Thousands of people were packed together there. When the first bombs came the ground heaved. Lights flickered. It seemed as though the concrete walls would collapse. People scrambled about like frightened animals.

Girls in a group of Russian laborers began to sing mass. "Shut up," somebody shouted, but the girls sang on.

Then came the next load of bombs—six or seven right about us and a string further away. The lights in the tunnel went out. People kneeled and prayed.

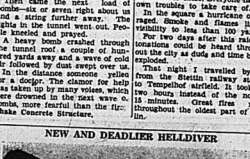
A heavy bomb crashed through the tunnel roof a couple of hundred yards away and a wave of cold air followed by dust swept over us.

In the distance someone yelled for a doctor. The clamor for help was taken up by many voices, which were drowned in the next wave of bombs, more fearful than the first. Shake Concrete Structure.

Explosions shook the concrete structure to its very foundation. By the crash you could tell several bombs had pierced through the street per floor of the elevated railway station.

"For heaven's sake, stop it," a woman screamed somewhere in the darkness.

"Shut up with that," broke in a rough man's voice. A stir ran through the tightly packed people.



Four more string of bombs tumbled down on us, shaking the ground like a series of earthquakes.

The attack finally came. Above in the railway station there w dead. Hardly any of the crowd gushing out of the tunnel paid any attention to them. Everyone had his own troubles to take care of.

In the square a hurricane of fire raged. Smoke and flames limited visibility to less than 100 yards.

Only two days after this raid detonations could be heard throughout the city as dud and time bombs exploded.

That night I travelled by car from the Stettin railway station to Tempelhof airfield. It took me two hours instead of the normal 15 minutes. Great fires rage, throughout the oldest part of Berlin.

NEW AND DEADLIER HELLDIVER

This is the first picture of the Curtiss SB2C-4 the newest version carrier-based aircraft smash at Tokyo. The plane is "dressed" in the navy's new all-nighttime blue camouflage. It carries a huge load of to the navy, boasts eight five-inch rockets mounted under the wings, wing bomb racks which carry a thousand-pound load in addition to its internal bomb-fuel tank capacity. Enlarged insignia appear on the nose and vertical fin. Red, white and blue diagonal (protected) flags at the trailing edge of the wings.

MOUNT SURIBACHI AT SOUTH TIP OF IWO JIMA TAKEN

Battle for Strategic Air Base Virtually A Stalemate; 5,376 U.S. Casualties

By ELMONT WAITE
(AP War Correspondent)

Guam, Feb. 23 — (AP)—American Marines battered the summit of Mount Suribachi at the southern tip of Iwo Jima today, and began a renewed drive on the central air field after repulsing two Japanese counter-attacks.

The American flag was raised over the volcanic Suribachi fortress 97 hours after the costly invasion began and Marines began cleaning out Japanese still clinging to the crater with flame-throwers.

Little Progress Made

Little progress was made elsewhere in the most costly fight in which the Marines have even been engaged — the fight that cost 5,372 Marines killed or 644 dead, in the first three days.

Japanese marksmen made a hopeless attempt to attack American forces on the western side of the island from the rear last night. They were stopped up on the beach by the Marines.

Carrier aircraft sweeping over the Bonin Islands in protective sweeps to eliminate repeated enemy attacks on American shipping assembled off Iwo shot down three Japanese planes.

Surmounting of Suribachi was the brightest spot in the entire campaign.

Marines won command of the 556-foot height from which the Japanese had cast down a deadly mortar and artillery fire on invading forces spread out over the south third of the embattled island. Its capture eliminated the threat to the rear of three divisions of Marines driving north where the main stretch of the central air field is built.

Yokohama Cove Enclosed

The dormant volcanic cone had been encircled by the 4th Marine Division. For 38 hours the Americans clambered up the 1,000-foot cliffs despite grenades and demolition charges hurled down into their faces by the desperate defenders.

Before that, Mount Suribachi was hammered steadily for more than a week by naval guns and aerial bombs. The defenders fought on until killed in their positions by Marines advancing hole by hole and cave by cave with flame-throwers, grenades and rifles.

An earlier communique reported strong Japanese counter-attacks on both flanks of the American force driving northward from the southern ridge of Iwo's central airfield.

The main offensive to the south already is in American hands.

Germans Report Advance Toward The Ruhr, Rhine

No Allied Confirmation Hours After Broadcast

Paris, Feb. 23 —(AP)— German reports asserted today that Gen. Eisenhower had launched his great offensive toward the Ruhr and Rhine, crossing the Roer river with tanks and infantry on both sides of Linnich, river bastion 28 miles west of Cologne.

Hours after the German broadcast, there was no confirmation at Supreme Headquarters of any new major attack.

The German said the offensive was on a 36-mile front all the way from Roermond to Dueren, the outskirts of which were reached. The enemy communique said the United States 9th Army attacked "after the heaviest artillery fire" and radio reports said the American tanks were striking down the 15 miles toward Dueren, attempting to rod up German lines east of the Roer which have checked the Allies since December.

Good Flying Weather.

The British 2nd. Army, last reported in the Roermond area where the Roer flows into the Maas (Meuse), was said by Berlin to be fighting alongside the Canadians in the Goch-Kleve sector farther north.

Fogs which blotted out parts of the battlefield at dawn gave way to good weather. An early wave of takeoffs indicated the Germans were in for another paralyzing bombing onslaught such as yesterday's.

The German report came as the 1st. Canadian Army to the north of the Roer sector gained up to a mile and a half and slowly invested the fortified road hub of Calcar. Scottish vanguards pushed half mile down the Goch-Wesel road.

South of the Roer sector, in which the Germans said Allied armies were driving toward Dueren, the U.S. 3rd. and 7th. Armies also gained gains. The 3rd. Army advanced up to 2½ miles in the Moselle Valley and to within 4½ miles of ancient Trier (population 58,000), keystone of German defences before the middle Rhine. The 7th. moved to within a mile and a half of the Saar capital of Saarbruecken and won two-thirds of Forbach.

The Saar Crossing.

The 3rd. Army forced a crossing of the Saar River northwest of Saarburg and started fighting in the Siegfried line switch line just east of the Saar River. The 7th. Army sector, the columns squeezing the German salient east of Zweibrucken and Guelach, fought their way into the outskirts of Pirmasens, 17 miles from the Rhine.

At Linnich (population 5,000), the Allies were 16½ miles from the Rhine at Duesseldorf-Uladbach, Ruhr industrial and rail centre, and Munchen and its sister fortress cities of Dueren. Linnich on the Roer were but piles of red brick as the result of months of artillery, mortary and air bombardments.

Dueren (population 39,000) the U.S. 9th. Army was 16 miles from Cologne. The Allies moved up to its western edge last December. Between Linnich and Dueren, the Germans have built a deadly maze on defence lines. The whole Roer-River sector is beyond the Siegfried line which has been breached totally by 35 miles in the Aachen area.

Starts With Drumfire Barrage.

The German said the Roer offensive started with a violent artillery barrage Thursday night with the Allies using phosphorus shells, among other things.

The communique established several small bridgeheads across the Roer between Linnich and Juelich (six miles southeast). Berlin declared, "heroically fighting" Germans have succeeded in sealing off the bridgeheads and frustrated the bringing up of fresh enemy reinforcements.

The stilled grand scale offensive which began this morning with artillery was the signal for resumption of the Russian offensive. The German command has reckoned with "the co-ordinated synchronized attack."

Along the Roer, which the Germans flooded through dams at the beginning of the British 2nd. and American 9th. sat at Roer, fighting been standing in mighty strength

Ambassador's Wife Reburies Bodies Lifted by Allied Bombings

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 23 — (CP) — Hairraising descriptions of experiences in the days of German occupation as amateur doctor and nurse to Allied prisoners and French peasants were related firmly here today by Countess Jean Marie Francois de Pierrefeu, wife of liberated France's Pisni Ambassador to Canada.

Most vivid in her memory, she related in an interview, was the time after an Allied air attack on a flying bomb sites near her 900-year-old home at St. Pol-Sur-Ternoise. Bombs struck part of a cemetery and graves and coffins were smashed open.

"The danger of cholera was very great to us as a result and, since no one would go near the cemetery, I went alone with a spade and reburied the bodies. It was dark and the only way I could find them was by the smell.

The Countess shrugged expressively and added:

"It was ordinary work and had to be done."

She and her seven daughters organized an emergency hospital for Allied prisoners after their British evacuation in 1940 and with "only a few bandages they cared for 1,500 in three days."

She said she could hardly believe it when Canadian tanks rolled into the Pas de Calais area last week, as it liberated her family.

The tanks looked like carnival floats — covered with flowers and bottles of wine and with messages written in chalk on their sides: "Merci Aux Canadiens!"

London, Feb. 23 (CP)—Ankara announced today the Turkish assembly had voted unanimously to declare war on Germany and Japan as a result of a decision of the Big Three to qualify as "associate nations" all countries which take up arms against the Axis before March 1.

New York, Feb. 23 — The Turkey assembly has approved a declaration of war on Germany and Japan, effective on March 1, BBC as heard by NBC said today.

FLT.-SGT. W. C. WILSON REPORTED KILLED

Previously reported as missing, Flt.-Sergt. Wilfred C. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wilson of Bataan, is now reported as having been killed in action according to recent word received by his parents. The parents were advised their son had been killed when the Lancaster bomber, of which he was a crew member, crashed on Feb. 7th, at Oe in Holland.

Born 19 years ago at New Liskeard, Flt.-Sergt. Wilson had lived at Bataan for nearly three years. He attended public school at Harris, Kirkland Lake and at Frankford high school. After enlisting in the R.C.A.F. he had trained as air gunner and served as the rear gunner in a Lancaster bomber squadron based in England.

For the sake of four bushless girls residing in an upstairs apartment at 147 West Moira Street it is fortunate that "meat rationing" is now a thing of the past or else "meatless Tuesdays" would be in vogue for them for the next few days.

Because Thursday afternoon the girls left a roast of pork in the oven of their electric stove and unwittingly leaving the heat turned on too full went off to their respective jobs. Result was that the roast eventually took fire, filled the apartment with dense cloud of smoke and caused a hurried call for the fire department.

Damage done by the fire was confined to the roast of meat and outside of a bit of grease being spattered on the wall, but little damage was caused.

The four business women desire to remain anonymous.

Minister's Gas Ration Exhausted, No More Services

Due to the minister's gasoline ration coupons being exhausted there will be no church services in the four churches of the Cressy United charge this month until new gasoline ration books are issued by the Ottawa Government. Congregation members have been informed.

An advertisement appearing in Picton papers read: "All services cancelled. Minister's gas ration exhausted. Impossible to visit church. The minister in charge of the circuit which includes churches at Cressy, Wanpoos, Bonga's and Hillier, is Rev. C. G. Tenkey.

So it appears that unless the Oil Controller changes the matter and makes additional gasoline available to Mr. Tenkey, the circuit will be without services until the first of April. The circuit is quite extensive and requires considerable gasoline each Sunday to visit each church.

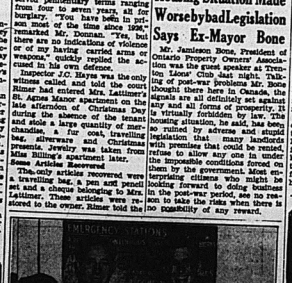
Two Years Added To 4-Year Term Already Given

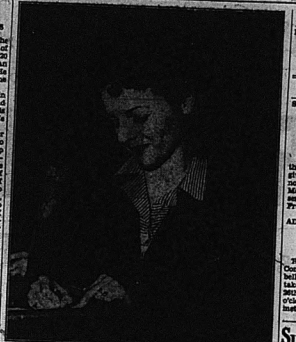
Harold Rimer, alias Wilfred H. Rimer, Toronto, was sentenced to serve two years in the Portsmouth Penitentiary, in addition to a four-year term he is now serving, when he was recently, after he pleaded guilty to two charges of burglary before Magistrate T. W. Wills here today. Rimer admitted to breaking, entering and theft from seven apartments occupied by Mrs. B. Lee, Mrs. Ann St. and Miss Beata Billings, Bridge Street, and also located on Patterson Street.

Magistrate Wills announced Rimer to two years on each Belleville count, to run concurrently. "However, the two years you have been sentence here today is to run consecutively with the four-year term you are serving in a Toronto court, which means you will have to serve six years in all," explained His Worship.



Record Introduced

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan introduced Rimer's list of previous convictions which dated from 1936. The record indicated he had served penitentiary terms back to from four to seven years, all for burglary. You have been in jail on most of the time since 1936," remarked Mr. Donnan. "Yes, but there are no indications of violence or of my having carried arms or weapons," quickly replied the accused in his own defence.



Inspector J.C. Hayes was the only witness called and told the court Rimer had entered Mrs. Latimer's St. Agnes Manor apartment on the late afternoon of Christmas Day during the absence of the tenant and stole a large quantity of men's clothing, a fur coat, travelling bag, silverware and Christmas presents. Jewelry was taken from Miss Billings's apartment later.

GERMANS

for weeks. The Roer has been flooded and the deepest portion today was reported only from three to five miles an hour, sufficiently slow for engineers to bridge it.

The Roer is also 8:46 A. M.

The German radio said Field Marshal Montgomery also had begun "new heavy attacks" against the northern end of the Allied line, in co-ordination with the American attacks in the south-east, but did not name the exact point of Sir Bernard's attack.

The Eisenhower offensive was begun by Germans and Americans in the wake of yesterday's great aerial assault following gruelling artillery barrages by both sides.

Supreme Headquarters as yet had no official report on the Berlin accounts of the new offensive, but signs pointed to the fact that the push could not be far off if it had not actually begun.

The battering by 15,000 planes in the last 48 hours was extended by Allied air forces today, and the Germans said Gen. Eisenhower struck with his gigantic armies at 8:46 a. m. on the Roer River front on both sides of Linnich, 25 miles west of Cologne on the Ruhr.

The U. S. 9th Army has been arrayed there, balked for weeks by the flood stage of the ' now-swollen Roer and possibly reinforced by the numerous American divisions which the Secretary of War, Henry L. Stimson, said at Washington yesterday had been landed at Antwerp.

The Germans reported the Americans crossed on a river with lands north of Linnich and planted flags south of the town.

Tanks More Toward Duren

The American tank forces began moving southward toward Duren, which straddled 20 miles west of Cologne, and Linnich.

The crossings of the muddy Roer were pressed on by the shifting sea-sawing of Koromig, 1 1/2 miles north of Linnich, with phosphorous missiles, the Germans said.

To the south of the Linnich area the American forces were attacking with tank and infantry formations along the road leading to Birkesdorf, a mile north of Duren, the broadcast said.

It said yet other attacks were believed taking shape south of Duren, where, it was reported, Germans were directed at Niederau and Kreuzau, respectively two and 3 1/2 miles south of Duren.

A hill appeared to have developed on the 12th Canadian Army sector to the north, where the capture of Xanten had placed Canadian forces on the threshold of Calcar, a key city for German defence of the Ruhr. German counter-attacks failed to break the Canadian grip, hold on the Cooch-Deden railway.

Expect 800 Will Pass Through X-ray Clinic

An estimated 800 people, representative of the cross-section of small business, hotels, shops, restaurants will pass through the hands of the X-ray clinic being held in the old Standard Bank building by officials of the Ontario Department of Health.

Approximately 400 people availed themselves of the services yesterday and officials stated that another 400 are expected to visit the clinic today. The clinic closes at 4 p.m.

The clinic is part of the program of the Department in the control of tuberculosis among industrial and other workers of the province.

Dr. G. C. O'Brien, Toronto, director of tuberculosis for the Department of Health is in charge of the clinic. He is assisted by Messrs. R. MacLennan, Belleville, A.W. Russell, and S.M. Sommerval, Toronto Nurse E. Gordon of this city and Edna B. Sheppard.

Officials were well pleased with the reaction of city employees to the service made available to them, and stated that the percentages of the city's population compared favorably with other cities of the province.

No personal record will be made of the X-ray examinations more negative. Figures and other records of the examinations of war plant workers will be available within the next few days, it was learned.

Housing Situation Made Worse by bad Legislation Says Ex-Mayor Bone

Mr. Jamieson Bone, President of Ontario Property Owners' Association was the guest speaker at Trenton Rotary Club tales night. Printing of post-war problems Mr. Bone declared that here in Canada, the signals are all definitely set against any and all forms of prosperity. It is during the absence of the latter that housing situation, he said, has been so ruined by adverse and stupid legislation that many landlords with premises that could be rented, refuse to allow any one in under the impossible conditions forced on them by the government. Robb, girls' work secretary for the O.R.E.C. Rev. Dr. A. J. Williams, Bridge Street United Church delivered a lecture on "Religious Education in the Post-War World."

The courses concluded with a "get-acquainted" rally under the leadership of Mr. Campbell, while Rev. J. A. Dills of Holloway Street United Church, dean of the previous school of training, conducted the dedication service. Presentations were made to Dean Chairman, Mr. Cline, Miss M. 2,000 CANADIANS FROM OVERSEAS ARRIVE IN CANADA

1,500 "Medical - Walking" Cases Listed Among the Latest Arrivals

By The Canadian Press

With the happy prospect of a sight of home now almost in view, nearly 2,000 Canadian soldiers arrived in Canada recently from battlefronts of the Mediterranean and Northwest Europe.

Included in the returning veterans were about 1,500 "medical-walking" cases, men who had been wounded in the latter fighting but now were on the road to recovery. Some came back under the "hospital ship" plan that allows them to be posted near their homes.

Aboard the big, grey-clad troopship were members of the Navy and Air Force, some returning Canadian prisoners, the first five Canadian Wrens to return to their home city or vice, as well as C.W.A.C. and R.C.A.F. Overseas Division personnel.

Great Reception With Cheers

The town greeted the familiar North American shore with cheers and tears as the vessel nudged into its berth in the Dartmouth harbor entered over the side. Outside the dock, police trains waited to carry them home or to camps in Canada.

For many of them the war was over, but for others this was just a prelude to more and perhaps even grimmer fighting. According to one of the officers aboard, Capt. G. N. Magny of Montreal, at least 90 per cent of troops he had talked to during his duties as army examiner in France, Holland and Belgium wanted to be back for the Pacific after furloughs at home.

"They feel that as soon as the Nazis are beaten, the Japs will be a cinch," he said.

Three Brigadiers Home

Three Brigadiers were among high-ranking Army officers in the contingent. They were: Brig. C. S. McKee of Toronto, Brig. W. G. G. Colquhoun, Officer Commanding No. 1 Training Brigade at Debert, N.S., and Brig. A. E. Leach, chief officer in charge of Administration at Pacific Command Headquarters in Vancouver. Brigadiers Colquhoun and Leach had been in England on tours of duty.

The Wrens, back after a year on loan, to the Royal Navy in Britain included Leading Wren Eleanor Nicholl of Kamsis, Ont. Company Commander W. Bryce of Winnipeg led a force of 62 Canadian fire-fighters.

Wounded in Shoulder

Terry Reardon of Winnipeg, former National Hockey League star centre with Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Brushers, was among the medical-walking cases. Reardon, a captain in the Queen's Own Rifles, was wounded in the shoulder by a German sniper in Falaise Gap.

Capt. Donald Grant, former Magdalene II Smiths Falls, Ont., left Italy in September and was injured in a jeep collision in April.

Capt. Bert Oja of Winnipeg, formerly in the Winnipeg Rugby football team, was among those returned.

Nursing Sister Lieut. R. M. Clark of Kearney, Ont., came down the gangplank with her five-months old twins, Patricia Carol and Heather Anne. Her husband, Sgt. R. M. Clarke, is in Italy.

Red Army Major Talks by Phone With Nazi Secretary in Berlin

Moscow, Feb. 23 — (AP) — Interpreting reported with glee today that a Red Army major had talked by telephone with a top secretary in Berlin city hall.

"Everything is true in this story," said the announcer.

"Not long ago one of our detachments, after successfully completing a small German town, entered it so suddenly the inhabitants did not know what had happened.

"Surprised, the German garrison had not had time to disrupt communications and at the telephone station the girl switchboard operator placed a call to Berlin for one of our officers, Maj. Sergeiev, who knows German.

"What Berlin wherewith he asked for the Burgomeister. He was informed the Burgomeister was absent, but the latter's secretary, Sabisch, answered.

"Sabisch, Burgomeister of ——," said the major. "How are things in Berlin?"

"Badly. The people say they've come quite close already." was the Burgomeister's reply.

"Oh fine. One hour ago the Soviet Information Bureau said:

"Don't joke so foolishly. I'll complain to the Burgomeister," the Berlin official replied.

"You're welcome to complain to Hitler himself," said the major. "This is a Soviet officer, See you soon, Herr Sabisch."

Canadian Signals Unit Has Arrived In Australia

Ottawa, Feb. 23 (CP)—A Canadian signals unit has arrived in Australia for duty with Australian military forces, Defence Headquarters announced today.

The statement did not elaborate but previous announcements in the last year indicated the Canadian army was building up a specialist and observers in the Pacific theatre.

It was estimated there now were nearly 1,000 army men of all ranks serving with Indian, Australian, New Zealand and other Empire forces—ready to form the nucleus of the contemplated Canadian Pacific expedition.

While there have been no official announcements, it has been learned from reliable sources that this expedition would be made up of some mixed division with another division in reserve.

The mixed division would be made up of both armored and infantry brigades.

Vanguard Is Officers

Vanguard of the army's Pacific war effort was a band of 20 officers dispatched to the Far East to study jungle and amphibious warfare. They were attached to the various forces—ready to form the nucleus of the contemplated Canadian Pacific expedition.

Corregidor Shaken By Mighty Blast Set Off by Japs

By JAMES HUTCHESON

Correspondent, Canadian Press (Delayed)

(AP)—All Corregidor shuddered like a living thing, a mighty blast set off by the departing Japs.

Flame shot from three openings in the fortified mountain fortress of the rock. A great chunk of Malinta Hill—the solid rock island was blasted loose. The resulting avalanche buried several American soldiers alive. Several others, who tripped out the road encircling the island.

Rocks and boulders showered the harbor below in giant hailstones, causing additional lesser injuries. Hundreds of stunned soldiers dashed wildly into the comparative safety of the bay.

"It was like a blast from fifty flame-throwers," said one officer. Another said Malinta Hill "seemed to shake like an apple on a tree."

Whether the Japanese were motivated by a desire to destroy the significance while they (Japanese) took refuge in the tunnels, or whether it was a grandiose suicidal plan, remains a mystery.

Col. George M. Jones, American commander on Corregidor, declared the concussion must have killed hundreds of Japanese.

Japanese Soldiers Suicide In Volcano

By MORRIE LANDSBERG

Associated Press War Correspondent

Aboard a U.S. Warship off Iwo, Volcano Islands, Feb. 23 (AP)—American Marines watched Japanese soldiers filing themselves from the crater of Mount Suribachi yesterday as the invaders drew up the steep and treacherous mountain's caldera formation on the southern tip of Iwo Island.

A "number" of enemy troops close to the summit of the mountain hunted down in caves of the 550-foot height mountains while others defiantly hurled grenades at Marines moving into position to assault the isolated fortress of Lav Rock.

There was no tally leading to the crater rim from which the Japanese jumped. Possibly the Japanese realized they had no choice except being killed or surrender, or they may have been stunned or crazed by the terrific bombardment of naval warships and carrier planes.

U.S. Army About Ready To Close Down Canol

By JACK BELL

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Feb. 23 (AP)—The U.S. Army is about ready to close down its Canadian oil development and write off much of the $134,000,000 investment there as a strategic war experiment that proved of exceptional sources said today.

War department congressmen were reported to have told the Senate War Investigating Committee recently that unless the chief of staff overrule the move, the Canol operation will be shut down after a recovery of its portentialities this Spring.

A decline in the needs for petroleum supplies in Alaska probably will be given as the immediate reason for abandoning the development, these sources said. Reportedly criticized the project as a waste of money has been Ickes, the Interior Harold Ickes told Congress last year it "ought to be junked now."

Committee members were said to have made it plain that the war department comes to Congress for additional appropriations, as it would have to do to keep the controversial development operating. they would fight the move.

The pipeline was built through 600 miles of northern wilderness to carry crude oil from Norman Wells, N.W.T., to Whitehorse, where a refinery was set up.

At Tri Cities Airport, about 14 miles from Bristol, Va., a spokesman said that the transcontinental passenger plane missing between Washington and Knoxville has been reported, at 2:05 a.m. E.D.T. that it was having engine trouble.

Jacques Doriot Killed in Raid

London, Feb. 23 (Reuters) — Jacques Doriot, French Fascist leader, has been killed in an air raid in southwestern Germany, the German D.N.B. news agency said today.

Doriot, styled "President of the French Liberation Committee and leader of the French People's Party," was killed instantly when direct bombers attacked his car, D.N.B. said.

Doriot, leader of the Parti Populaire Francais, was reported last month to be taking part in a conference in Berlin of Quisling leaders of ten countries with the object of forming exile governments in Germany.

After the liberation of France last year the French Committee of the Interior demanded his arrest and trial, but he escaped to Germany.

Cooler Weather Is Predicted

Toronto, Feb. 23 — (CP) — Lower temperatures were forecast for Ontario today and tonight, following a Spring-like weather and rains in the past 24 hours threatened some centres in the province with serious floods.

Moderating temperatures following rain and sleet in the southern portion of the province yesterday had endangered motorists and pedestrians and melted snow ran over ice-coated roads in many areas. Dropping temperatures and light snowflurries throughout the province promised a less hazardous weekend on the roads, however.

In Toronto, where light snow fell during the morning, colder weather prevailed throughout the day on the streets. In other Ontario centres the danger of swelling rivers subsided as the mercury dropped.

Brantford reported light drifting on side roads, although traffic was not blocked. Melting snow was absorbed into dry ground during the night. Snow fell in Woodstock last night after yesterday's rains had removed previous snow accumulation from city streets. Kingston reported dropping temperatures with snow and a freeze-over of slushy covered streets. Temperatures in centres of Sudbury and North Bay reported colder weather with light snow.

Family Allowances Issue Causes Heated Exchange in Legislature

Toronto, Feb. 23 — (CP) — The Federal Family Allowances issue was the storm centre in the Ontario Legislature yesterday, and the attendant heated ruffles of temperament.

Premier Drew declared that the Family Allowances, effective next July 1, was "an intrusion by the federal field of jurisdiction" and demanded that the money be paid to Provincial Governments to register and Voluntary Services to register and conscription those who get the allowances.

Opposition was immediately attacked by Federal Leader Mitchell F. Hepburn and A. A. MacLeod, Labor-Progressive member for Toronto Nelwood.

Mr. Hepburn recalled that the Family Allowances bill had passed in the Commons by a unanimous vote and said he had no doubt of the Dominion's legal right "to spend this amount of money for this purpose."

Premier's Aug. 4 Speech

The Premier's Aug. 4 radio address, in which he said the "unjustifiable bill" would be resisted by Ontario, was referred to by Mr. Hepburn. He asked if Mr. Drew's "real" objective was not that these family money might go to Quebec under the bill.

A heated exchange followed, closing with Premier Drew's caustic remark that members "should not take the Eighth member seriously."

Mr. Drew called the argument a "red herring" and said "if he is to so think-almost I am prepared to withdraw my remark and leave it to his imagination as to what I will say in the future."

Non-Discrimination

A near-division occurred when Mr. MacLeod attempted to speak and was ruled out of order. He appealed from Mr. Stewart's ruling and requests that he be given the floor were acceded to. Mr. MacLeod asked the Premier to give a definition after saying the Legislature to support his attacks on the Family Allowances bill, declaring that such a motion would be disposed of and dismissed "in 30 minutes."

In his statement Premier Drew said: "The Minister of Health, Dominion Health and Welfare Mitchell Hepburn stated that it is 'part of a broad system of social security.'

"If that is so . . . then this Act is an intrusion upon a province's field of jurisdiction without any shadow of legal authority."

As a Social Security Measure, said the Premier, it is within the exclusive constitutional jurisdiction of the province and the provinces must be consulted if there is to be any effective administration of family allowances."

Requests for Conference Ignored

He repeated requests for a Dominion-Provincial conference to iron out this and other matters had been unheeded, said Premier Drew. There had been no reply from Prime Minister Mackenzie King to his latest request, on Jan. 14.

Mr. Drew said the effect of having the women's voluntary services of the Red Cross, Salvation Army, and other organizations "in the handling of forms required for payment of the family allowances would be to "destroy the sanctity of the home by introducing the third party."

Persons without training in welfare work could not be allowed to interrogate persons on their private affairs.

Opposition leader E. B. Jolliffe, speaking in the Throne Speech debate, charged the government had failed to implement fully its 22-point election program. He cited Dominion-Provincial co-operation, encouragement of private initiative, agriculture, labor and mining as fields in which the government's performance had fallen short of its pledges.

There was no evidence that the government had encouraged private initiative to the point where it "really counts," said Mr. Jolliffe, in the employment needs of returning servicemen and civilians. Referring to the C.C.F. leader, "To say that we have a definite program for our veterans is to lean heavily on a broken reed."

Stable Farm Prices Needed.

Respecting agriculture, Mr. Jolliffe declared that, "by no recommendations of the agricultural committee, which has been published in the Throne Speech legislation forecast and if the government's policy of stabilizing agricultural prices, Queen's Park implied that the fluctuating prices of agriculture were a stable prices, Queen's Park implied that the fluctuating system and guaranteed security of income to safeguard against possible deflation in the future."

Mining development in Ontario had not been helped, he said, by gold and base metals because of the uncertainties which have made sufficient capital for exploration and development. Gold mining was highly developed because of the relatively small capital outlay required. The removal of base metals was under-developed.

He disagreed with the Premier's demand for a Dominion-Provincial conference, and said Mr. Drew's opposition to the Family Allowances Act was indicative of an attitude which "could lead to the destruction of Confederation."

"to resist social security legislation on constitutional grounds or on the basis of provincial rights."

Furthermore in passing the Act the Premier had "attacked another province in a manner that constituted a threat to national unity."

Mr. Jolliffe will continue his address when the House meets again on debate resumes Monday. Private bills will be considered today.

Yesterday At Queen's Park

By The Canadian Press

The Federal Family Allowances Act became an issue in the Legislature yesterday when Premier Drew declared the measure was "an intrusion upon the provincial field of jurisdiction."

On the insistence of Liberal Leader Mitchell F. Hepburn, the Premier withdrew a remark that members should not take the Eight-member seriously."

A. A. MacLeod (Lab.-Prog. — Toronto Bellwoods) asked Premier Drew to put a resolution asking the Legislature to support this stand on the Family Allowances Act.

C.C.F. Opposition leader E. B. Jolliffe charged the government with failure to implement fully its 22-point election program.

Today: Private bills will be introduced.

Brazilian Troops Take Monte Costello

Rome, Feb. 23 — (Reuters) — Brazilian troops fighting to clear the Germans from the Apennine Heights in the Upper Reno Valley southwest of Bologna have captured Monte Costello, a 3,500-foot peak overlooking the Pistoia-Bologna road.

Other 5th Army troops broke through elaborate German trench systems in the Apennines overlooking Porretta Terme, a watering place about 28 miles southwest of Bologna.

Clearance of the Apennine peaks in the Upper Reno Valley would expedite the German of observation posts and facilitate Allied traffic through the valley.

There was no word of activity on the 8th Army sector.

Area Between Berlin, Oder Front Remains Immune From Air Attacks

By JOHN KIMCHE
(Reuters Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 23 — (Reuters) — A great battle is developing today in the Berlin front, Scene of the action is the area between Berlin and the Oder front, the area statistically district of Germany that has remained immune from Allied air attacks.

There can be only one explanation for the cold storage attitude of Russian plan. Its outlines are becoming clear.

For days the Germans have reported that Marshal Zhukov's concentrations of attack have been completed. Yet only ominous silence has been all along his front with the one exception of the steady encirclement of the Russian bridgehead at Kienitz midway between Berlin and Kustrin on the Berlin side of the Oder. This the Germans admit.

Now they are frankly worried by the absence of Allied air attacks on their capital. Clearly the Russian commander does not intend to interrupt the German positions from the front without the first softening often by bombing.

The Secret of Stalingrad.

Zhukov has succeeded in his plan before. He kept quiet during the German High Command on the eve of a great Russian offensive. Gen. Heinz Guderian can choose to stay put opposite Zhukov's concentrations, but he still expects the attack this area. But if he does that he has the key to the whole of position on this entire army trapped by Marshal Konev's drive to the south of Zhukov's right flank to destruction. The risk for the German Command in Berlin is clear, stalking this Berlin army it is in fact staking Berlin.

The gradual manoeuvring of the Red Army armies has placed the German High command before the alternative of risking the Army and future unless it takes the risk of leaving the older defences of Berlin and the Oder unmanned.

Will Lead to Clashes

The decision over the decision is bound once again to lead to clashes between the Stalingrad school of thought and the Hitler school of thought. They are bound to urge preserving the army and abandoning the dangerous ring before Berlin.

It looks almost as if Zhukov is anticipating something of this kind and is insisting on keeping the road unencumbered by the debris of bombing. It would be hard to conceive a greater moral blow for the German high command were it to abandon the defence of Berlin without a fight. Yet the struggle is clearly on inside the highest circles in Germany. The dilemma of Berlin marks one of the dramatic phases of the war. The German high command and the Nazi leaders are faced by another Stalingrad decision.

Seaman's Story Described As 'Arrant Nonsense'

London Feb. 23—(CP)—An American merchant seaman's story that British escort ships abandoned a Murmansk-bound convoy in April, 1942, was described coldly by the Admiralty last night but not officially. Naval Officers described it as "arrant nonsense."

However, officers noted informally that the Germans frequently circulate stories of inaction at the time.

In a case like that, the practice is to ignore them, but when it appears the convoy while escort vessels left the convoy to its own devices was what happening elsewhere, efforts to evade and break up the attack.

Red Cross Campaign

In March the national campaign of the Canadian Red Cross Society to raise ten million dollars will be launched. Ontario will have as its objective five million dollars. Every organization is aware of the work which this organization is carrying on at home and abroad and it is expected will give support to this cause at this time of the war. These objectives are required to be reached in order to meet the commitments for the year 1942.

The ten million dollars will be expended as follows, food parcels for prisoners of war in Europe and the Far East $3.25 per cent, Allied relief 21.27 per cent, hospital supplies, comforts for armed forces and civilians, grants and contingencies (including budget of St. John Ambulance Association) and other war services 15.50 per cent, blood donor service 2.66 per cent —making total war expenditures of 92.68 per cent. Other expenditures are administration in Canada and overseas 1.60 per cent, campaign and publicity 5.72 per cent, and peace requirements, including Red Cross lodges at military hospitals in Canada 4.98 per cent, making the total of 100 per cent.

There is a tremendous budget for the year 1942, no less than $37,600,000 all inclusive. Canadian Red Cross hopes to give large quantities of clothing and supplies to the Allied Nations and to the sufferers in Europe. The generosity of the Canadian public in years past has given a reserve of war cloths. These will be used for war work but the answer to the appeal for the ten million dollars is necessary to meet the commitments for 1945.

The Publicity Chairman of the Ontario Division, Major James Baxter, M.C., has this to say of the needs, "You think it has been a hard winter. Think how much more severe it has been in the battle grounds of Europe and in the prison camps. Then think how fortunate we are who are at home, putting up with minor discomforts, and who can put forth that extra effort in the name of the Red Cross to help our fighting men and the destitute millions in Europe. Let's forget the weather—we can't do anything about it—but we can do a hard job for the Red Cross."

Belleville branch of the Red Cross Society has done very effective work during the past year as its reports recently indicated.

When the campaign opens in Belleville it is confidently expected that the people of this city will support the humanitarian work of this society with the same loyalty and generosity it has done in the past years. The need was never so great. The cause is one that really needs no publicity for it speaks so well in every action it performs for distressed and suffering humanity.

In Britain at the end of 1944, 900,000 women were doing part-time work in industry, and 350,000 were doing part-time Civil Defence work. Large numbers of married women are members of the Women's Voluntary Services and many perform 48 hours a month. Fire Guard duties in addition to industrial work.

That Speck of Iwo

The island known as Iwo Jima which would never have been heard of by the average man but for its strategic position and rugged surface which are admirably fitted for defence action, is deeply in the news this week. Containing but an area of eight square miles, a volcano and a mountain, it is one of those spots that a traveller would pass by. Yet in war this insignificant island becomes of great importance in the drive on Tokyo from which it is 750 miles away. Many Japanese are on the island in hiding places with hidden guns, thousands of thousands of Americans have landed and warships have taken part while the air has been dotted with planes. Here the Japanese lost no fewer than five bombers in their own day.

This little spot had all to itself an amphibious operation carried out by large numbers of ships—all because Iwo has a meaning in war. With fanatical fury the Japanese are defending this speck or dot in the sea.

Here is being decided one part of the war. This tiny mound in the sea will witness in its outcome the Allied victory which will go that much farther to bring about the triumph of the freedom-loving nations of the earth over the tyrant and tyranny. Here weapons of all kinds used in great battles are being used, artillery, tanks, rifles, planes, flame-throwers and so on in this great fight in a little space, a miniature of modern warfare.

Sky Pilots

(Canadian Churchman)

Looking here, there and about this week, I see a news release stating that the Roman Catholic Church is planning to train its missionary priests as air-pilots and mechanics in readiness for great expansion of missionary activity after the war; not passengers in planes but men who fly them.

We must do it too. Even while the war continues, young Canadian churchmen fully trained as pilots, mechanics, navigators, are coming back into civilian life, many parish life.

Missionaries in the Canadian North and West should be given the opportunity of learning how to fly a plane, given mechanical training. They, using all this effort, a fund should be started to purchase small airplanes—the helicopter type would seem indicated—and a propaganda drive to ensure full success.

This is no fantasy. It is something that should be done—and quickly. Already several of our frontier bishops travel (as passengers) in airplanes, on diocesan visitation. Our clergy do fly. It's time they flew as pilots. The dog team, the slow summer-season freight-ship, the railway railroad train, even the locomotive is outdated. The air age is on us, and it is the flying missionary who will count in the future.

The Beast at Large

(Detroit Free Press)

Shocked as we are at the accounts of atrocities committed in Manila, we cannot be surprised at the inhuman, indecent conduct of these savages.

Trapped in one section of the city, the Jap beast has resorted to fire and machine-gun bullets against innocent men and defenceless Filipino civilians. No one is spared—not one group of 2,000 refugees, some 1,300, many of them small children, were slaughtered.

From the first minute of the Pearl Harbor attack, the Jap made it clear to us that cruelty and treachery are his most natural weapons. For all his vaunted valor, he is a coward. As his hour of doom approaches he sheds the thin veneer under which he posed as a civilian human being.

He also is shedding something else. He is discarding every reason for being treated as a human being when he is at last disarmed and caged. The American people will not forget.

Scots Names

(Niagara Falls Review)

In Scotland, in many areas, there are many men and boys with exactly the same names, so that there may be a dozen John MacDonalds in one community and sixteen Mary Johnstones in given to them so that they may be more easily identified. Thus there may be a John "Red" Donald or "Mary's John" or something else along that line. Something similar has been found in Prince Edward Island, where a large number of the people have names beginning with "Mac." Indeed, the problem has become so acute in some localities that, in connection with the new family allowances, a boy or girl may be known by his own and his mother's name, so that one may hear of Donald "Sheila" MacPherson or Donald "Margaret" MacDonald, so that a way will be found to distinguish them in Prince Edward Island as in Scotland.

And problem tangled.
From Rome's beginning to its fall
The tribes of Egypt, Italy, Gaul
Both warred and wrangled,
And common folks, and scholars lettered,
Told how conditions could be bettered.

Back in those early days they had
A run of rulers, good to bad,
And times unpleasant.
All ancient peoples used to cry
That taxes had gone much too high,
That as it present.
Who studies history must admit
Man's troubles haven't changed a bit.
It little difference makes who rules:
There will be wise men here and fools
And faithful workers;
Poets and priests and soldiers, too,
And in good times a motley crew
Of duty shirkers.
Change comes to law and nomenclature,
But scarcely scratches human nature.

Danger of a flood from the Moira River at Belleville is feared this afternoon until the rain showed signs of slackening. Until 3:15 there o'clock the downpour continued and the thawing effect of the ice by the water pouring out of the land from the rain, melting snow and ice, was very active in the middle of the afternoon the ice near the new bridge gave indication of breaking up. The water rose rapidly and soon cakes of ice were floating over the ice pool. Some cellar along Front Street were flooded.

Trapped in one section of the city, the Jap beast has resorted to fire and machine-gun bullets against innocent men and defenceless Filipino civilians. No one is spared—not one group of 2,000 refugees, some 1,300, many of them small children, were slaughtered.

From the first minute of the Pearl Harbor attack, the Jap made it clear to us that cruelty and treachery are his most natural weapons. For all his vaunted valor, he is a coward. As his hour of doom approaches he sheds the thin veneer under which he posed as a civilian human being.

He also is shedding something else. He is discarding every reason for being treated as a human being when he is at last disarmed and caged. The American people will not forget.

Covering Pacific War Gives New Conception of Distances Pyle Thinks

(By ERNIE PYLE)

Honolulu—Covering this Pacific war is, for me, a new life, with the learning to live in a new city.

The methods of war, the attitude toward it, the homesickness, the distances, the climate— everything is different from what we have known in the European war.

Here in the beginning, I can't seem to get my mind around it, or get my fingers on the story. I don't mean distance from America so much, for one flies in Europe to be a long way from home too. I mean distances after you get right on the battlefield.

For the whole Western Pacific is our battlefield now, and whereas distances in Europe are hundreds of miles at most our Pacific ones are thousands. And there's nothing in between but water.

You can be on an island battlefield, and the next thing you know you is a thousand miles away. One soldier told me the worst lonesome feeling he ever had was when they had landed on an island and were fighting, and on the morning of the 3rd he looked out to sea — and it was completely empty. Our great armada had unloaded and left for more, and boy, did it have my guts in a lonesome and deserted feeling.

As one Admiral said, discussing this war is like watching a slow-motion picture. You see something for months, and then finally the great day comes when you launch your plan, and then it is days or weeks before the attack happens, because it takes that long to get there.

As an example of how they feel, the Navy gives you a slick sheet of paper as you go through here, entitled "Airline Distances in Pacific". And at the bottom of it is printed "Our Enemy, Geography". Logistics is the name of the game out here, a nightmare.

At Anako in Italy, the Third Division set up a rest camp for its exhausted infantrymen. Their rest camp was less than five miles from the front line, within constant enemy artillery range.

But in the Pacific, they bring men clear back from the western islands to Pearl Harbor to rest camps—the equivalent of bringing an Anako boy from the fighter all the way back to Kansas City for his two weeks' rest.

It's 2,500 miles from Pearl Harbor to the Marianas, all over water. Yet Japanese planes have flown it daily by air as casually as you'd go to work in the morning.

And there is another enemy out here that we don't know so well in Europe—and that is monotony. I'm sure, war everywhere is monotonous to the individual soldier, but here even the niceness of life gets monotonous.

The days are warm and on our established island bases the food is good and the mail service is fast and timely. We are free from the enemy and the days go by in their endless calmness and they drive you nuts. Some Marines call it going "pineapple crazy".

Our high rate of returning mental cases is discussed frankly in the island and service newspapers. A man doesn't have to be under fire in the front line finally to have more than he can take without relief.

He can when isolated and homesick, have more than he can take of nothing but warmth and sunshine and good food and safety, when there's nothing else to fill it, and no prospect of anything else.

And another adjustment I'll have to make is the attitude toward the enemy. Europe is full of our comfortable horrible and deadly as they are, but they're impersonal.

But out here I've already gotten the feeling that the Japanese are looked upon as something more than man and squirmy—like some people look upon cockroaches and lizards.

I've seen one group of Japanese soldiers on Guadalcanal surrender and they were wrestling and laughing and talking just as happily as anybody. And yet they gave me a creepy feeling and I felt in need of a mental bath after looking at them.

I've not yet got to the front, or anywhere near it, to find out how I'll react toward the war or how anyone feels about the thing he's fighting. But I'll bet, he doesn't feel the same way our men in Europe feel.

Poor Democracy It's Always Got The Death Rattles

(Ottawa Journal Editorial)

From the indignant tone of numerous recent letters I infer that some readers did not like what I said here recently about having children when you are young and fit and happy.

Mr. C. O. hopes the time will come when social security (and what social living means I am not sure unless it means the state) will guarantee couples like herself and her husband two babies, no more, no less, the health and education of every child will be the responsibility of the state, no stigma will be attached to any child, childbirth will be painless, and doctors who cherish the pagan notion that a reasonable amount of suffering is good for a wife or mother — and that includes Mrs. C's view interesting is that fact that she is the mother of two children, all paid for, she says. Her husband and she take her husband and herself a few years to get out of debt, but they are paying as they go and they are now getting a taste of happiness. I don't see what that has to do with happiness. Having a baby is no fair basis, and youth — that lets a good deal more in with happiness.

Oh, I've departed from the argument because of a physical deficiency. I'm 39 and have never had the need to bubble down and raise a baby, say. Since girls don't propose to

THE GREEN BENCHES

St. Petersburg, Florida

They rest upon the benches green,
The folk, both old and young,
And bask beneath the welcome rays
Of the glorious southern sun.
With migrant birds from northern lands,
Who sought a tropic clime,
And thus escape the storm and cold
Of a northern winter time.

And so upon the benches green
They spend their day to day
The sprightly maiden and the dame
And grandma, old and gray,
With eye alert the bachelor
Awaits a good beauty.
A young and winsome widow,
In whom he would confide.

'Tis true that could herein
About these benches green
The ardent youth of sixty years
And something sweet is seen.
And women of uncertain age
Relieve their loneliness,
Capture again the smiles and wiles
They long had lost, forsooth.

The southern sun gives healing power,
To all the aged and ill,
And spirits crushed in sorrow's hour
With peace again are filled.

The Southland is a refuge rare
When winter winds do blow
But would it be one half so fair
Without the green benches?

Mr. and Mrs. Power graciously replied and thanked their many friends for their kindness.

Delicious refreshments were served and the remainder of the evening was spent in cards and dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Power were married fifty years ago at St. Charles' Church at Read, and have resided in this community practically all their lives.

London, Feb. 23 — (Reuters) Propaganda leaflets dropped in his latest attempt to curdle Allied relations, wrote in this week's issue of "Das Reich" that a third world war would begin in 1942, the D.N.B. agency reported today. D. N. B. quoted him as saying that in that year Japan would be fighting first Britain and then the United States.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

ON INTRODUCTIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I have been invited to meet the family of a co-worker of mine, and what is the proper help on the introductions?

Now are the introductions made? Who is presented to whom? How do I acknowledge the introductions?

2. Would it be correct for me to take a gift of candy to the children?

J. M. W.

1. If you are going to her home your co-worker would introduce you to the members of her family. First to her mother, for instance, she is Miss Miller, or perhaps with the friendly informality of "Mother, this is Marie Miller." Then, "Miss Miller, my father." (Your co-worker would introduce you to her mother; therefore your name is mentioned last. But since a man is introduced to a woman, your name is mentioned first when she introduces her father to you.) Then the children would be introduced to you, perhaps not with the formation of your name. . . this is my sister, Grace' . . . and my brother, Tom.

Say your nicest "How do you do" to acknowledge each introduction, with the addition of the name of each. I suggest too that after your introduction to the mother, add some gracious remark; for example "How do you do, Mrs. Carter. I'm so happy to meet you at last. Peggy has told me such grand things about you and her family!"

2. Yes, delightfully correct, and "you'll be popular with the children!"

Help for a Bride-to-Be

Dear Mrs. Beeckman.

I'm another bride-to-be coming to you for help! I'm to be married this Spring, but I would like to ask you several questions.

1. In view of the times, and the fact that I probably will be in the Rectory, I think a pretty white suit perhaps of a silk material) and accessories would be nice. If you would tell me of this, what would you suggest that the groom wear?

Ard have you any other suggestions for me?

2. Do you agree that since my wedding is to be informal, it would be best to have it in the morning, say about eleven, and have a wedding breakfast after the service for approximately twenty-five guests?

3. Don't you think notes of invitation would be most appropriate?

4. How soon before the ceremony should one get the marriage license?

5. Have you ever seen a bride holding a lighted candle instead of a bouquet or Prayer Book?

1. You could very properly abide somewhat by the "bridal tradition" and wear a white suit, with white accessories at your wedding in the Rectory; or you might wear a white suit with accessories, including your hat. The customary attire for the bride at this type of wedding is, however, a street costume of some white but of the bride's favorite darker shade, very often her traveling costume.

2. If this hour is in your judgment the most convenient hour for the majority of your guests, and fits in with your going-away plans it's a good choice. In other words, convenience is not the fact that your wedding is to be informal is the deciding factor.

3. For such an informal wedding with so few guests, your invitations may properly be given verbally, or by telephone, or by notes.

4. Since regulations about getting the marriage license differ from states, you (or better, your fiancé, if you're engaged for him) should get in touch with the Marriage License Bureau of your state and get definite information about blood tests regulations and the required time lapse after these.

5. Yes I once went to a wedding where the bride carried a candle . . . and I certainly can't say I was impressed or enthused about it. Infinitely more lovely and meaningful to lay my wedding bouquet on the reverential effect of a bride's carrying a white prayer Book.

Fashion Flashes

THE VERY BEST suit accessory we have seen is a navy-and-white or black-and-white striped satin swatch blouse. Marvelous with a suit of red and black or navy and red.

CHECKS ARE ENDORSED again for Spring. A very trim double-breasted redingote is of black and white checked woolen with velvet collar and velvet bands on the slanting flaps of hip pockets. Very fitted through the midriff.

A GOOD COMPANION with either slacks or a separate skirt is a blouse of white rayon jersey with a print of huge fuchsia and green flowers. Long loose sleeves caught into a tight wristband and a very low, drawstring neckline.

A CHANGE from the usual fishtail is a new boxy model cut on Mandarin lines—straight with a very slight flare. The fabric is black duratwill with the reverse shiny surface of fabric for collar and cuffs, which are open, shiny side makes tuxedo front.

BEST BUY this year will be the simple little cotton dress that is as nice outdoors as it is for general wear in the house. A typically smart design is in a chintz-finished gingham plaided in gay brown and white. Narrowing squared neckline is low cut and dress is sleeveless with extended shoulders.

HIGH STYLE is a feature of some of the new rayon knit lingerie. A pretty gown in pale blue or pale pink has a fitted, gathered midriff bound with matching satin bands that form a tie in back. Armholes are satin-piped and extend to satin shoulder straps.

TRINITY WOMEN'S CLUB

Madoc, — Trinity Women's Club met on Monday evening, February 12th, in the church parlors which were tastefully decorated with hearts and silhouettes.

The meeting opened with the singing of hymn "Will Your Anchor Hold." A brief business period was conducted by the President, Mrs. Beatty, who welcomed the men guests of the evening.

The program prepared by Mrs. Wheal proved to be very entertaining. Mrs. Wheal introduced the pantomime which depicted the very weird life of "Solomon Grundy." It was cleverly acted by the students of Grade XIII under the direction of Miss MacDermid.

On behalf of the club, Mrs. Beatty thanked those who had spent time and effort in presenting such a fine entertainment. Then Mrs. Beatty, on behalf of the members, spoke words of appreciation to Miss Winnie Ferguson, who is leaving Madoc to take a position in Belleville. The splendid help she had so willingly given to the club and of regret at losing her. Mrs. O. White presented the gift, a lovely floral pin. Miss Ferguson, although taken by surprise, ably expressed her thanks to the club.

Mrs. Wheal gave a most interesting account of "The Origin of St. Valentine's Day."

Mrs. Jack took charge of the devotional period choosing as the theme, "The Beauty of God's World". Hymn "For the Beauty of the Earth," was sung. The Scripture, Psalm 104, was repeated responsively. Readings were given by Miss H. Mutton and Mrs. Rankin. Mrs. Jack concluded with a poem "Some Things There Are".

Words of thanks and appreciation on behalf of the men were expressed to the ladies by Mr. O. White. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Refreshments and a social time followed.

Grecian Swim Dress

By PRUN ELLA WOOD

The trend in beachwear is largely toward the leggy, bra-top type of design. . . but it's true that not everyone swims that well, or looks that well, when it comes to wearing such briefness. For the other type of mermaid there are plenty of bathing dresses far more flattering, and really just as practical for aquatics unless one is timing for a champion streak.

Two colors harmonious tio the sun (and sunian) in rayon jersey, combine to make this California swim dress with its attached panties and masterful backing for the under-bra top. The self fabric sash ties in front, at once safe and automatically flitting.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Artifice Has Its Good Points

You are an observant social psychologist, let us say. You have an open mind. And you have an open mind. And you have to decide whether women look more presentable with make-up than without it. You'll get a big laugh out of the way those boy you look with your before-breakfast face when you haven't had time to use the lipstick and the powder pad.

Let us say that you are in a public conveyance. The passengers are women, girls, career girls, high school leaders, grandmothers in the regular run. Look them over, one by one, then up. Don't miss a detail.

You will see some fast-looking gals who have overdone their facial decorating. Too much foundation, cosmetic, too much bright rouge, like candy and whitened. They look brittle, but far from drab. You realize the purpose back of their lavishness. They're trying to defeat the havoc wrought by the old gent with the scythe.

There's no virtue in a shining nose. When a woman doesn't bother to ply the calcimine pad, life has her down, fate has a foot on her neck.

Heavily-painted lips may horrify the old-timers with conservative ideas, though goodness knows they should be used to them by now, now, in some ways.

Let them regard their own pale or rough lips. Surely a light coating of artifice wouldn't do a bit of harm. It would make them feel that they belong in the modern parade, that they aren't Invalids-sitters.

Consider everyone—those that are expressive to the old school of beauty thought, and those of 1940 style. We'll confess that some of the up-to-date artifice is a bit frenzied, take its quirks and slants, but there's more than having heavy forehead lamberquins with stray hairs roaming middle the corral, and that make you think of Elizabeth Eliz and his contentions.

Take cottrues! . They're classic and there's no artifice about them. When grannie was a young lady, she blistered her skull with demoniacable tresses. She wore a heavy fringe under her pompadour. Thirty-six inch, three-and-one-half ounce coronet braid, and a mass of switches all of which set the check book back for more than the modern woman spends for wavy sets and permanents in a year. It's not up to the old girls to pan 'em. They had their beauty maintenance among which were hobble skirts, straight-front corsets, bonnet collars that choked them, face bleaching treatments that put them in sanitary confinement for weeks. It's terrific to be now, in some ways.

PLAINFIELD W.M.S.

The regular meeting of the Plainfield W.M.S. was held on Feb. 21st in the home of Mrs. Norman Hall with an attendance of 20 members and 3 children. Mrs. Fred Hall, president, opened the meeting. The worship service was conducted by Mrs. Horace Palmer (Theme) "The Kingdom of God in Nations." This part of meeting was closed with prayer by Mrs. Mrs. Dempsey. Solo by Mrs. Arthur Hall. Minutes were read, and adopted. Roll call was answered by paying of membership fees, 28 members joined.

Treasurer's report was read by Mrs. Clayton Hall. A donation was handed in from Mrs. A. Parks. Collection amounted to $4.92. Group leader Mrs. Charles Beatty took charge of the meeting and gave a chapter of the Study Book, assisted by Mrs. A. Meeks, Mrs. Sid. Emerson. Mrs. Fred Hall.

The president closed meeting with prayer and Mizpah Benediction. The hostess and her assistants served refreshments and a social half hour was spent.

N.Y. RANGERS BEAT RED WINGS BY 5-3 COUNT

Score Four Goals in First Period ;Sweeping Wings Off Their Feet

By The Canadian Press

The show of power currently featuring the play of New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks, respectively the fifth and sixth teams in the National Hockey League, contains a threat to the Stanley Cup hopes of Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings, riding firmly at the other end of the league standings.

And it is an even stronger threat to the play-off hopes of Boston Bruins, holding fourth place a scant game ahead of Rangers and two games ahead of Chicago, and Toronto Maple Leafs in third place.

Should either of the teams make the finals, it wouldn't be the first time a team had edged into the play-offs and taken home the silverware.

Leafs haven't won it their last four starts and on paper, at least, still could be bumped out of the N.H.L. finals. Rangers last night chalked up their third win in four games by trouncing Detroit 5-3 which compares favorably with Chicago showing for the same number of starts of three wins and a tie.

The New Yorkers, tuning up for their contest with Leafs next Saturday, polished victory by notching four first period goals, two from the stick of defenceman Guy Lafleur, then switched to the defensive and fighting off a determined Detroit rally.

Walter (Ants) Atanas set the Blueshirts on their way with a goal in the first three minutes. He passed to Jack Mann's neat pass into the Detroit zone. Atanas added his goal when Mann beat Harry Lumley in the Detroit nets for a play with Fred Thurlier. Ab Demairo added the final goal late in the third period.

Detroit failed to pierce the Ranger defence until the third period was more than one-quarter gone and Murray Armstrong caged a rebound on a hard shot from Earl Seibert. A minute later Jud McAtee scored and Carl Liscombe sank one late in the period.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

By The Canadian Press

JACK (DOUBLEHEADER) MANN, New York, who scored one goal and made the play for two others, paving the Rangers' way to victory over Detroit Red Wings 6-3.

GUY LAFLEUR, RANGERS — who accounted for two of his team's five goals.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

Because there is doubt about their manpower status, big league baseball players have been slow in returning their 1945 contracts, it was reported by club owners in New York yesterday. Many ballplayers believed to be holding off until the U.S. Congress deals with war labor legislation.

Meanwhile President Ford Frick of the National League estimated the major loops would effect a savings of 3,000,000 passenger-miles of rail travel through elimination of the annual all-star game at Boston, scheduled for July, and a reduction of trip schedules, with a reduction in player squads.

The Jockey Club announced at London last night the British racing season would open April 21 at Ascot and Pontefract, Yorkshire, May 1. Chukkas will be staged May 5, the 2,000 Guineas May 9, the Oaks and Derby June 8 and 13 respectively at Epsom Downs, it's stated.

Doug Grimston of New Westminster, B.C., British Columbia representative to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said yesterday he has voted to cancel all Allan Cup play-offs. Grimston claims the eastern finals are played for and won by Quebec, Ontario and the west. Grimston is one of 10 C.A.H.A. district representatives who voted yesterday on whether to cancel competition in view of the announcement that only two of nine teams in Quebec are willing to contest the final. Result of yesterday's poll will be announced Feb. 28.

With a line-up which includes a number of former N.H.L. players, Saskatoon Royals yesterday claimed entry in the Allan Cup senior series representing Saskatchewan, providing senior competitions are restaged this year. Their stars include Doug Bentley, former Chicago Black Hawk; Charlie Mason who played for New York Rangers and New York Americans and Bun Scharfe of the Pacific Coast league.

C.Y.O. league in long months. Steve Pysz, one of the winners, was high man with 15 points followed by his team-mate, Coulthard, with 11.

The O.H.A. sub-committee last night disallowed a protest of the Kitchener Greenshirts in the play-off series over the using of an over-age player, Ken Mackell, by Stratford in their group semi-finals and the latter game would stand as played although Rohfritsch, in the Stratford first dash ended in a draw and the second was won by Stratford.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Feb. 23 — (CP) — Add two more plugs for Maurice (Rocket) Richard. One comes from none other than the National Hockey League's prexy, Red Frederson and No. 2 is a bouquet tossed at the Canadian Comet by teammate Ray Getliffe — who's no slouch himself.

Getliffe made a little statement to Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson. Said Red to Elmer the Great, "Yes, I've been playing on the Richard-Moreau comparison argument." But that was not all Reticent Red said. For the record, he added his belief that Richard was an all-time great.

"Any player who can get 44 goals, is great . . . . no matter what time he's playing." And those are the words of the man at the top.

Getliffe proved a little more reticent in being drawn in to the "complicated discussion." But in the course of his little armchair confab with Bill (Niagara Falls Review) Guyon, he was heard to say he was convinced that the Rocket rated a place among hockey's greats. That wasn't an idle statement either, for he backed it up with this:

"Maurice can score more goals from more difficult positions than any player I ever knew — there's no question in my mind that he would fit on any line-up that ever was assembled."

Convincing talk, huh?

Twins Win

You can't tell them apart — unless they're in swim suits and you notice the little scar at the bottom of Rhoda's foot . . . . or is it Rhoda? Well, regardless, they're Joye, the Wurtele twins of Montreal, and there's no denying it.

The charming Wurtele's have shared everything from skiing honors, to swimming honors, to mumps . . . . with tennis, badminton, horseback riding and a number of other athletic pastimes thrown in. Now they gain top recognition — together — for their outstanding women athletes, by winning the Rose Bowl.

They usually end up one-two at the end of a downhill or slalom run, or at the far end of the tank after a record-shattering swim. But in Women's Amateur Athletic Federation's books — it was a dead heat. And well deserved.

Things and Such:

Dave Greseberg, former Winnipeg hoop ace, was top scoring honors in the Montreal Senior League. Playing for Combines, the western boy ended up with 82 points . . . . a close second to Dave was former Queen's University player, Leo Rosenitzky, now with McGill University . . . . fifteen winners and runners-up of the Vancouver Sun's Golden Glove tourney will hop over to Seattle for the Pacific Northwest titles . Last year the B. C. boys copped seven of the eight crowns . . . Veteran pro puckster Eddie Shore man jacks Mickey MacKay as the greatest Boston Bruin he's ever seen . . . . Bill Ingram and Ronnie Young Edmonton pals and rivals, are now dropping gently from the skies with the paratroops.

BUFFALO BISONS EDGE OUT REDS

By The Canadian Press

Buffalo Bisons edged out Providence Reds 6-5 last night to build up a nine-point lead in the eastern division of the American Hockey League, and dulled the Reds' chance of making a play-off berth. The second-place Hershey Bears moved ahead of Providence.

The Bisons were forced right to the limit to hold the Reds who twice tied the count. Jerry Lynch's late first-period goal was matched a minute from George Patterson early in the second frame. Kenny Quinn set Ab Aubuchon and Paul Mundrick added other Buffalo goals, but counters by Bill Hudson, Stan Kemp and Roger Bedard forced a 4-4 deadlock by the end of the second.

George Pargeter restored the lead to Buffalo after five minutes of the third period, and Leger's second goal of the night proved to be the winning tally, Patterson also ranked as a two-goal marksman, and his second goal helped to reduce the margin.

A Good Answer.

The Irishman was put in charge of the Irish number company office by the boss who wanted to have a joke on the son of Erin:

"Remember," warning the Irishman, hiding a smile as he dashed out the door, "Take all orde's you get, no matter what they are."

The manager went to a nearby telephone and called the office. The Irishman answered the phone:

"Manager's office, Irishman speaking. Please send me 5,000 knot holes.

Irishman—Sorry, sir. We can't do that.

Manager—Why not?

Irishman—We just sold all of them to the brewery.

Manager—To the brewery? What for?

Irishman—To make bungholes for the beer barrels.

Around the Town.

Local hockey fans are indebted to the Air Force league for a splendid season of hockey at the Hume Arena....A number of Front Street merchants expressed that feeling to this department and stated that competition extended to the players and league alike....It's especially that play-off series was a treat. We saw cross-ice passes that means play clean fast hockey and that's the kind we like to see three times either side," remarked one merchant....However, combined with sitting in the north end still contending that the puck should be played in the centre ice zone with a fast pass to the wing and out of the net like a flash.... That's the kind of hockey that unfortunate things that go to make up sport and prove, officially as human, the same as players....To-night's game will be the opportunity to judge the calibre of hockey played in the Quinte district with players drawn from Belleville, Stirling and Trenton. Both the Combines still played hockey in the days of today.

And at climax of the day Trenton was defeated and as they are today.

You tried to build them up alright

And made us all look small

But what really made the final game

IS HOCKEY AFTER ALL.

Horse Sense Bridge

BY SAM GORDON
The History

When first you go bridging, you think you are a shark. Because the experts who make it look tough. But when you find out it is just common sense, you get back your confidence quickly enough.

In bridge, a player sells with bids what his hand contains. There is no mystery to what a bid says. If you do not let an expert confuse you, common sense will tell you what it means.

Each of the four players is entitled to one-fourth (average) of everything in a deal; three of the 13 tricks, three of the 13 cards in each suit, three of the 13 highest cards, one of the four aces.

The first (opening) bid simply shows better than average in all items; how than three tricks, more than three cards in the bid suit, more than three high cards, more than one ace for equivalent.

It is likely that partner may not have his average of three tricks. To provide for such a contingency, the opener should have an extra trick as a measure of safety.

Thus, when a player opens with a bid of One in a suit, he says, he can take five tricks, has four high cards, two sure tricks (aces or their equivalent), and better-than-average (bidable) suit.

When you know that, no expert can fool you with snooty terms and complex, unreasoning sticks. Even when you do not know what it is talking about, you already know what he is trying to say.

Not only that. It warns you when an expert is wrong. It guides you against with partners who use an incorrect basis for their bids.

♠ A 10 7 6 5
♥ A 9 8 6
♦ K 9 8 5
♣ K 7 4

Some players may tell you to open that hand because it has two and a half something or other. Right then you have no openings are not sound. Because he does not wait for better-than-average.

When you recognize the cause you can neutralize the flaws.

Canadians Prominent In Invasion Book

By FRANK LOWE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, Feb. 27 (CP)—It's like reading about the people in your home town, this reading Gordon Holman's "Stand By To Beach," because you meet so many familiar names.

A straight-forward account of the part-by-part played in the invasion of Normandy, the book was created when Holman, naval correspondent for the London Evening Standard, was attached to the United British and Canadian force which stormed the beaches of France and every chapter contains the name of a Canadian unit which saw service.

Part is an attempt at fine writing in this chronicle and no tricks are used to build up interest. It starts at the beginning of the invasion operation and carries through to the day when Prime Minister Churchill announced that "all this and more" had been part of a feat of organization and efficiency which would excite the wonder and deserve the admiration of military students.

It is when the invasion gets going that the "old home week" atmosphere sets in.

Shooting across the pages are the big Canadian destroyers Haida and Huron; Holman tells of their deeds briefly and impartially as he tells of those performed by British and United States craft. Beside the writer's ship, H.M.S. Hilary, which was the Canadian Army Headquarters ship, is H.M.C.S. Prince David, and in this connection the professional reporter tells of some amateur reporters.

"The David Prince"

Aboard the Canadian landing ship an invasion paper called "The David Prince" was put out and Holman says that the eye-witness account appearing in that paper were better than those appearing in many of the regular papers' towns.

"At the invasion crew office, became a fact-rather than a hope, more and more casualties appear in the book. There is the navigating officer, F. pilot who, in an emergency, took over command for H.M.S. Ramilles and confused the English gunnery officer with his "Damned close but a bit short.... pitch 'em a little higher....that's it, got them." And there are the gallant Canadian minesweepers at work, the Fort Erie, Fort Cape, Harold Grant of Halifax slammed the big gun on H.M.S. Enterprise against the port of Cherbourg.

Ashore, Holman tells of the Canadian fight — where Gen. Charles de Gaulle first touched French soil — and four years of exile a rifle was stuck in the ground and on the wood were scratched the words, "Here lies a Canadian soldier."

That is the story—a chronicle of war that is dull in spots because it is so interlaced with technical data; how many men landing craft carry, how they operate, the part in the invasion and the like.

Scott, president of the Ontario Cooperative Milk Producers, in an address to the annual convention of the convention in conjunction with the Ontario Whole Milk Producers Association, Wednesday demanded a higher subsidy to milk producers and an end of rationing of milk products.

Seaman Claims 34 Russian-Bound Ships Sunk When Escort Ships Left

New York, Feb. 23. (AP)—A merchant seaman repatriated on the Swedish liner Gripsholm asserted today that British escort ships abandoned a Murmansk-bound convoy in the North Atlantic in July, 1942, and that the crews made "thrilling pickings" of the 36 merchant vessels.

The seaman, Walter Stankievicz, 36, of Baltimore, said he had been on the freighter Carlton, which Berlin and Vichy identified at the time as the last of 36 ships Berlin claimed were sunk in the convoy.

Stankievicz put the number of ships sunk at 34, including the 8,197-ton Carlton.

United States and British Navy Public Relations officers in New York and Washington offered no objection to publication of his story but said they could not vouch for its authenticity.

Stankievicz said the convoy was attacked a few days before July 4 by submarines, on July 4 by 24 torpedo bombers and again on July 5 by submarines.

Just before the first attack, he said, the British Admiral in charge of some 14 destroyers, six corvettes, four heavy cruisers and several small vessels ordered the convoy to leave the convoy, telling the merchant ships they would have to make their own way to port.

Stankievicz said he understood the British ships left to engage in battle with German warships and that the battleships Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau lured them away.

No information about the convoy's losses has been announced by Allied sources.

THE SECRET OF THE MARSHBANKS

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

Chapter 1

That's the child—that's Cherry, Sister Seraphine said in her serene voice. Her hands were crossed and hidden within her wide sleeves, but a motion of her caped and colled head indicated a certain girl among the milling masses; and the man who was her companion looked at the girl intently.

The tableaux and the play was over, but many of the girls still wore their make-up and a theatrical excitement possessed the hall. crowded hall. It was not a large hall; just now it was filled with spectators, nuns, and performers mixed indiscriminately.

Bright lights flooded auditorium and stage; groups formed and reformed. The man watched the girl he had identified for a few minutes and thought that she was a vital young creature, anyway; she was not a bed-looking young creature, anyway; she seemed pretty enough, anyway. Obviously she was the centre of everything that went on.

As the daughter of an Indian chief she had taken the leading part in the play that had concluded the program, and had appeared also in more than one of the tableaux that preceded it. The man Marshbanks saw her questioned, kissed and congratulated; saw her drop her proudly feathered head more than once in a deprecating fashion, as if she were embarrassed by praise.

After some fifteen minutes of this post-performance bedlam when some of the audience were already drifting away a nun drew her quietly aside. The girl's laughing expression changed, as she glanced in his direction. She joined him immediately.

"Cherry, this is Judge Marshbanks," said Sister Seraphine, when the judge watched her dark eyes brighten suddenly, and felt the touch of her warm, young, quickly extended hand.

All she said was a somewhat shy how-do-you-do, but her look added what she did not say: "I know you name! I know something about you."

"Well, so you led the pioneers out of danger!" Judson Marshbanks asked amiably. Color showed under her Indian brown and he thought with satisfaction that she was a handsome, glowing sort of girl who need not be afraid too much trouble getting along. Eyes with fine eyes and a nice smile on painted lips, and with a fine young body to which the brown-fringed skin and beaded feathered her costume were infinitely becoming.

"It was a silly sort of play," the girl said quickly. He remembered that she had written it, and smiled.

Cherry over here and sit down, Cherry; I want to talk to you a minute," he said. "I'll not keep you long. I'm joining a friend in Chicago flying his plane down to San Francisco tonight."

Cherry looked dazed with excitement and surprise. A man coming to see her who had not averaged a caller a year in all her twenty years, and coming just now, when she was still flushed and breathless from the evening's thrills, created a situation that silenced her. She sank down, and looked at her companion expectantly and was quiet, speechless.

"I thought it was a very good play," said the judge. "I understand that you wrote it? It was sort of allegory—pageant kind of it?"

"Well, they all have to be pageants, because of having to get all the girls in," Cherry answered in a shy voice. But her dark blue eyes, very hot dry, and they shone with curiosity and friendliness, and eagerness as for companion. Pres's eyes, she thought, how like him she was?

"Oh, you have to get all the girls in!" he asked aloud.

"Oh, yes. Last Hallowe'en we had only fifteen girls, so that wasn't so hard. I could have used more! But now we have twenty-four girls from the house in Victor Street that burned down!"

"I see. And do you always write the plays?"

"Well, usually. Yes, I guess always."

"And who wrote the song?"

"That Madeleine sang? Didn't she sing that beautifully? Sister Claude," Cherry went on, suddenly warming to confidence, "went to opera once. You know, real opera."

"I didn't think Sisters did."

"Oh, but this was before she entered the order!" the girl reassured him. And for the first time they heard his resonant joyous laugh.

"You wrote the words to the song, too?"

"Oh, well yes," Cherry said carelessly. "And she said—Sister Claude did, that Madeleine sang like the prima donnas she said so, really! Not soprano, of course, but—"

"You acted the leading part, too," he said.

"Yes, I had to! Miriam Pontrr was ill, and so she had to go home. We thought she'd be here in time for Christmas, but her mother sent for her. So I took her part."

Some of the girls here have mothers then, Cherry?" His tone had changed. It no longer seemed to a casual note of something like pity and tenderness, and he saw her flush brightly again as she faced him, realizing perhaps with a little fear that they reached their real affairs now.

"Yes; some have," she said almost inaudibly.

"And you know that you lost yours when you were very much younger, dear?"

"Father," she said unsteadily, "I remember her, and living in the convent."

"You came here at seven. Thirteen years," he said. "Have you been unhappy years, have they been happy years? They've been—heavenly years!" she said loyally, after a moment. "But, of course—of course they've wondered sometimes of my own—"

"Of course you have, of course you have. You had a little thinking. It was an immense relief to him to see that she really had self-control that she could straighten up, and wipe her eyes and smile at him, not on the handkerchief that he offered her, and even laugh a little to see how crumpled and orange-that she streaked it.

"I'm very sorry, she said composedly in the voice and manner of a much older woman. "I don't cry much. I don't know what started me. We've been decorating and rehearsing and everyone I'm tired. But of course, they haven't been thinking much," she said sensibly. "I've loved the Sisters, and they've all liked me—at least I think they have..."

Sister Seraphine said that you were the most influential girl in the school," the man put in.

"Oh, that couldn't have been Sister Seraphine; she never praises anyone!" Cherry smiled, with wet eyes.

"It was, though. She said they would be sorry to lose you, Sorrier than ever losing almost any other girl."

"Did she say that?" Cherry had pushed off her headdress now and he saw that her hair was a warm tawny mixture of tan and brown. The significance of his last phrase came to her suddenly. "Sorry to lose me? she said, with a new note in her face. "You mean I'm going home?"

"You're twenty, aren't you? Isn't that long ago when girls are launched from Sister Seraphine's care, but—yes, but—" she whispered desperately.

"Don't you want to? Don't you want to look at something besides those four walls?" the judge questioned.

"Why, yes; the others have. But I never thought of it as my turn!" she got out. "I've always been out, you know," she reminded him. "In the city, I mean. I taught the last three terms at the kindergarten. We have our Sisters have a free kindergarten in the poorer part of the city, and if you take the kindergarten course you practice there, and then we go every summer to the summer place. We have a boat there, and woodcraft and wienie roasts. People sort of pity us because the building's are so old, and we haven't much garden since they built the north wing, but—but we're all so happy, actually," but we're all so busy that we don't mind a little soot."

Her own face was streaked with soot as she spoke, her eyebrows had smiled and her cheeks were pale. But she was giving no thought, he perceived, to her appearance; she was absorbed in the stunning news of the approaching change in her life.

"Would it be to go to San Francisco?" she asked eagerly, like a child.

"I don't suppose you would rather take it somewhere else?" he asked in return. "What I had to propose was a secretarial position in San Francisco."

"A secretarial position?" she asked flatteringly. "I don't think I could take a position. That is except in a kindergarten! I can type well enough, and I'm getting better at stenography, and I speak a little French and some Spanish. We have two sisters here from Belgium and two from Madrid. But would that be enough?"

"Plenty at first, Leier, if you wanted to study anything specifical-ly," the judge said, "anything like —well, library work or nursing or going on with kindergarten work, we could find out what the requirements are, and I don't think you'd have any trouble."

"But—her pale, tear-streaked and paint-streaked face reddened suddenly, "But have I any money?" she asked haughtily. And then, with a little trembling return to emotion, "You see, I don't know much about myself. I know my mother's dead, and I suppose my father. And some of the girls here have told me about themselves, and I've thought—I've suspected, that that was true of me, too—I mean that perhaps I haven't any right to my father's name, perhaps you could tell me that?"

Her heart fluttered, but she held it as firm as she could, and looked straight into his eyes.

"I can't tell you very much, Cherry," said the judge, with a straightforwardness as simple as her own, and with a great ache at his heart for the child. We had in our family for many years a fine housekeeper named Emma. She was a trained nurse, took care of my self and me, when we were boys, and afterward of my father. She was a silent creature, but very capable and reliable. Some years ago—well, perhaps almost twenty—Emma brought her baby here with a Mrs. Rawlings who was ill."

He looked at Cherry, with a brightening face. "I remember her! She took care of my mother and me."

"Yes; that same Emma. After your mother's death quite a sum of money was left for you. Emma came to me about it. You were to be sent here she said. Well, you were sent here! Your own mother chose the place."

"She would know about my mo-ther?" the girl said, "she could tell me."

"She couldn't tell you. She has another position now, house-keeper to a very lovely old lady. I don't see Emma often. But during these thirteen years, when you've been—you were ill once, weren't you?" the judge broke off to say, speaking quickly, as even if the subject presented no difficulties, and nothing with the question.

"I had scarlet fever and then broke my leg falling out of a tree" Cherry answered.

"Well, about things like that she would consult me. Your mother made me your joint guardian with Emma."

"Guardian for what?" the girl asked quickly.

"A sum of money for all your expenses, for your education."

But Emma, the girl said quickly, and proudly, "wasn't paying for me? She was only my mother's nurse!"

"It had been left with her for you, dear, to be held in my hands. Through Emma that account was handled, and I, all those years. And even now I know there is enough left to help you into any profession you choose."

Cherry considered this, bright-eyed and thoughtful.

"Emma got in touch with me ten days ago," she said, "to remind me that you would be twenty-one. She took me the one to get you this position."

"You didn't know my mother?" the girl asked with a steady look.

"I never saw her."

"Emma never said anything of my father?"

"I know that he is dead."

"I think," Cherry said, "I've always thought that I was an unwanted baby, and that I caused my mother great trouble, and that Emma was a friend who came to stand by her at the end."

"Your mother didn't think that your mother had been widowed," he said. "She was happy in having you as any other mother."

Cherry's face lighted suddenly and doubtfully. "I want that way. I was only seven, but I knew that something was wrong. Nothing was left for me, no pictures of father, no letters, no names. This school, you know, isn't just an orphanage. We know we aren't either. Other girls here has some strange history—no letters, no photographs, no holidays, no presents and surprises. They tell about what they make our own happiness when we go out into life, and try to be as busy and content and useful as we can. I've never been to any other school," she finished, "but they're not like this. We girls of course we talk to one another, and I'm sure I'm one of the girls who I knew—I wish I knew something about myself!"

"No; this isn't a regular school," he conceded. "But according to Emma it was the best thing to do. And you seem to have flourished," he added with a smile, "you've gone along here more as if it were home."

"With a capital letter!" she put in, as he paused.

RUSS GENERAL DIES

Gen. Ivan D. Chernyakovsky, 37-year-old White Russian army commander, who died of battle wounds. He led the 3rd White Russian Army, the first Soviet force to invade German territory by breaking into East Prussia.

He looked at her in his kindly way and smiled.

"A place where girls are protected and safe, and well fed,—" He raised questioning eyes, "Well fed?" he asked.

"Not so—oh, yes, all right," she conceded, not interested. An inexpatient jerk of her head took him back to the point where he had interrupted himself.

"And are you taught good professions," he finished.

"Dressmaking, beauty - parlor work, stenography, bookkeeping," she supplied. "But," she added, "those aren't what they teach girls in other schools. But that's all right, that's all right!" Cherry said, in a tone that apologized for her unreason. "I didn't mean — really I didn't—to complain about it. It's only that it gives you—it gives you a strange feeling not to know anything about yourself. But that won't keep me from trying terribly hard to make good. And some-thing about a position? What am I to do?"

"You are not to do anything until you finish school," the judge said, "so," he said, his graying hair and his fifty years making it possible for him to use a father's kindly tone, "But for the time being it is a secretarial position with the same old lady—a very rich old woman named Mrs. Porter, Mrs. Porteous Porter, for whom Emma works. Answering the telephone, and correspondence, and reading—that sort of thing."

Konev Increases Pressure on Breslau

Russians Break Through Southern Defences of City

23,000 Germans Captured When Poznan Is Taken

London, Feb. 24. (AP)—Russian troops cleared supply lines for their frontal assault are on Berlin today by wiping out the last German resistance in long encircled Poznan and Gniezden.

Simultaneously the Russians stepped up pressure on besieged Breslau in an effort to reduce that German Silesian stronghold and free additional Soviet units for Marshal Ivan S. Konev's flanking drive on Berlin from the southeast.

(The Paris radio, not always reliable, said today the Germans had evacuated the besieged East Prussian capital of Koenigsberg, abandoning the civilian population "to its fate", that Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's 1st White Russian troops had crossed the Oder river in force. Last German reports insisted Koenigsberg still was in their hands despite a Russian breach just south of the city.)

44,000 Killed, Captured

Poznan (Posen), German stronghold in Western Poland which was by-passed by Marshal G. K. Zhukov's 2nd White Russian Army in its drive to the Oder river, fell yesterday after a month's siege. The Germans lost 44,000 killed or captured.

Further north, the German garrison in Arnswalde, a smaller fortress which formidably dominates the main highway through Pomerania toward Stettin, also fell. Arnswalde is a seven-way road junction 28 miles northeast of Stettin, Baltic port for Berlin. It had been encircled since Feb. 11.

Moscow announced that a total of 23,000 Germans, including the commander of his garrison, were captured at Poznan and 25,000 were killed. Soviet booty included hundreds of planes, guns and freight cars.

In capturing the city, Soviet tank and infantry troops blasted their way through six huge underground forts.

An official Russian war communique said Soviet units, after three fighting broke through the southern defences of Breslau, captured the populous town and a motor car works and cleared the Germans from the southern park area.

The great industrial Oder river city of 630,000 bristles with fortifications, but Moscow said Marshal Konev's assault groups were pressing the Germans "from one block house after another."

Berlin said other units of Marshal Konev's forces had broken into Guben and Forst, 70 and 77 miles south-east of Berlin in the Neisse River area where the Russians have laid down terrific artillery barrages in the last few days, suggesting the imminence of a new push off for the German capital.

The German accounts said the Russians had crossed the Neisse River, establishing bridgeheads less than 10 miles from the Spree, last main

L. Cpl. W. Hatch Lost His Life In Road Accident

Lance Corporal Wesley Hatch, who lost his life in a road accident while serving with the Kings and Country in Belgium on November 26th, 1940, was a son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hatch of Oshawa. He was born in Belleville twenty-five years ago. On July 5th, 1939 he was married to Miss Vera Belch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Belch, who resided on Front Road for many years. His mother lived in Oshawa and was married and attended Pine Street School and the Trinity Anglican Sunday School. For the past twenty-four years she has lived in Oshawa.

The following letter which was received by Mr. and Mrs. Hatch from the unit's sergeant in the Belgian army is of interest to many of the friends and relatives of the young soldier who was killed in action:

"Dear Mrs. Hatch: It has been my painful duty to speak to write you in this, my sad capacity. Your son, Lance Corporal Hatch, was killed in action on November 26th, 1940, at 2.30 p.m. by a direct hit from a shell. Death was instantaneous and he suffered no pain. He was buried in the cemetery of Ecaussinnes-Lalaing, Belgium, on November 28th, 1940, at 2.30 p.m. The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Father Lemaire, assisted by the Rev. Father Lefebvre. The funeral was attended by a large number of the section.

"Many letters of the Provost Corps, many of our working days are spent writing traffic duty, and as a sergeant I can say that I have never met your son was in the forefront of his duties. He was always on the alert to report any possible signals to all vehicles, and his comrades were paid him and his duties.

"Christmas Day the boys planned a little music, and the members of the party was missing. Your son was on duty that day and the rest of us helped him in making some of the Xmas cards ago I formed my opinion of your son, for he was one of our ambitions than the rest of us put together. He would like to express my sincere regrets and sympathy in your sorrow.

Yours sincerely,
Sgt. C. H. McKnight."

Seventeen Killed In Plane Crash, Five Survivors

Cedar Springs, Va., Feb. 14—(AP) Five injured persons, including a young woman who walked barefoot a mile and a half through snow today following the crash of a Pan American Airlines plane in which 17 were killed on a desolate mountain area of southern Virginia.

The survivors, taken to a hospital at Martinsville, were Frances Ulen, of Washington; Sally Padgett, Kansas City, Mo.; Pilot Robert Morgan; Leonard J. Ricci of Meriden, Conn., and Washington; Marine Lt. Erwin, Jacksonville, Fla., Navy and Ensign F. L. Middaugh, Los Angeles.

Discovery of the wrecked plane on the side of Clade Mountain late yesterday afternoon came after a search by more than 500 persons starting yesterday when it had reported to the emergency landing field at Chilhowie, Va., that he was having motor trouble.

But it was more than 12 hours after the plane crashed that a farmer, one of the searchers, met Miss Ulen. She was without coat and barefooted at daybreak to summon companions lying within sight on the bleak mountainside.

Even as the farmer proceeded to telephoning for help, it was several hours before stretcher-bearing State Police and Forest Rangers were able to ascend the almost perpendicular slope and reach the plane.

Virginia officials said so far they have not determined the cause of the crash of the twin-engined plane on a New York to Los Angeles flight.

A doctor at the Marion Hospital quoted one of the injured as saying that the plane "hit a terrific storm" shortly before it plunged to earth. Of those aboard only three were civilians.

Mr. Herity's address took the form of a travelogue to Mexico stopping at various points of interest en route, pointing out picturesque spots and scenic beauty. One of the most interesting features of Mr. Herity's address was the souvenirs which he had brought back and passed among the crowd for inspection such as a highly painted Mexican horn, volcanic stone and extremely interesting pieces of wood and others.

As well as these, the club was shown books and cards, the latter pictures taken from portions of scenery and buildings of Mexico.

Louis Desjardins Convicted On Murder Charge

Welland, Feb. 14. (CP)—Louis Desjardins, 24, today was found guilty and will be hanged next May 11 following conviction last night in the Supreme Court petit jury on a charge of murder of 44-year-old Anna.

Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier passed sentence about one-half hour after the verdict was delivered after 2 3-4 hours after the jury retired at 5.46 p.m. E.W.T.

Mrs. Desjardins died in hospital four days after being found badly slumped against a bedroom wall, bleeding from lacerations, in her Crowland, Ont., home near Welland. Clarence Randall, a boarder, lay wounded on a bloodstained bed in the same room and still is in the hospital.

"I got mad and lost my head and ran to the kitchen and picked up an axe," he said. "I struck twice — and I believe I struck my wife once."

Mr. Justice Chevrier told the jury in his address they must bring in verdicts of murder, manslaughter or not guilty. He did not believe the man guilty of murder because he had awakened to find his wife and the boarder in a compromising position beside him. Crown Prosecutor A. L. Brooks suggested in summing up that Desjardins might have struck his wife in her own bed and Randall in his, later dragging the woman into the boarder's room.

Defence counsel Col. Hugh A. Ross said Desjardins had been forced to do what he did while temporarily insane and "irresistibly impelled" by passion.

Belleville Dispatch Rider Severely Injured in 88-Shell Blast in Italy

In position somewhere along No. 6 highway, the "Road to Rome" Pte. Lloyd Tate, Anti-Tank Battery, Ahead by the External Affairs Department of the enemy as Allied bombers flowed overhead to attack German lines of communication.

At regimental headquarters, Dispatch Rider Corporal Fraser, 27, Front Street, Belleville stood by his motorcycle and discussed with a friend the time he later his bike raced forward with important information for the battery commander.

But at this moment, Fate, and the German artillery stepped into the picture. At 88-millimetre bellowed started flaying down down along the highway. There came a deafening roar, and a crash, and the Canadian dispatch rider lay, in an inert heap in the ditch, a leg and arm broken, his face badly disfigured, but knowing at that time, an eye serious ly affected. His motorcycle lay a few yards away, in flames.

Sight of Eye Almost Gone.

The sight of the eye has been partially restored, but he was wounded and is now admitted to the Canadian Base Hospital, Overseas.

He is a member of the 3-9th Field Battery going overseas with the unit in November 1939 and England prior to being transferred to the fighting anti aircraft unit. He was attached to the Canadian Forces Base Pay Office at Trenton for a short time.

Mrs. Fraser is also a member of the C.W.A.C. Corps in England and while there was attached to the Canadian Infantry Corps in England with the rank of Corporal.

Right now he is wondering where his unit is and how he has been promoted since he was last seen. He has been returned overseas and his parents are hoping. "I haven't been able to get any letters from him yet, but perhaps something will turn up some of these days."

Canada Looks Good to Sgt. McGaurin After Four Years of Globe-Trotting

"Wherever they roll, we go," said the husky young RCAF sergeant, Ernie McGaurin, assistant transport section of the Air Force station here that returned to Canada after four years of globe-trotting, looking after the "innards and oilers" of many an Air Force equipment.

He is Sergeant McGaurin, D. McCaurin, of Toronto, now stationed at No. 6 Repair Depot.

Leaving England three years ago, he has returned to Canada, only on that island last 79 days later after having been ordered and convoyed to approximately twelve countries.

Two years on the famous island of Malta, Sergeant McGaurin said, "You can have your tea plantations, Ceylonese maidens and what not, but this Canada is good enough for me."

He has seen service in Capetown and Egypt. He has sailed through the Suez Canal and seen the sky sent his transports over the sand dunes of Libya, Egypt and Greece, hedged byways of rural England, and he is back to his regimental depot in Canada, attempting to the life of Canadian equipment in Canadian air stations.

It is surprising what one can do in an emergency he said, even in the Middle East during the first year when the Italian air forces were in the majority of parts. What we were short of, was ammunition, sometimes makes me wonder. One thing I will tell that will all that was necessary.

Sergt. McGaurin has a fine collection he has brought back with him countries he has been stationed in.

IN MEMORIAM

COUSINS — In memory of a dear wife, Marille Cousins, who passed away February 20th, 1943.
What would we give for her hand is clasp,
Her silent face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days long ago.
But some sweet day, we'll meet again,
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In Heaven, that happy life.
Sadly missed and mourned by her husband, Mr. Frank Cousins.

COUSINS — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Marille Cousins, who passed away February 20th., 1942.
We miss you more each day,
No one knows how much we miss you.
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost you
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true.
There is not a day, dear mother,
That we do not think of you.
Sadly remembered by her daughter, Elsie and son-in-law Pete.

Three Army Captains Reveal New Jap Atrocities in Slave Camps

New episodes in the growing list of barbaric brutalities charged against the Japanese are revealed for the first time by three U. S. Army captains, who escaped from a torpedoed Japanese prison ship in the first of three signed articles in the current issue of Collier's magazine.

"You are our eternal enemies," the little Jap CO told us when we arrived at Camp O'Donnell," the three officers report, "and you will not like it here. If you try to escape we will shoot you." . . . They tried to make it tough for us, and they did."

The three escaped prisoners, who lived to tell their tale, are: Captain John Alderfer of Springfield, Ohio, who was attached to a field artillery brigade at the time of Pearl Harbor; Captain Gene Dale of Enid, Okla., who was flying with the USAFFE, and Captain Bert Schwarz of New York City, who was attached to the Air Force.

All three were in the Philippines. All three survived the infamous Death March from Bataan, two and a half years of slave labor at the penal colonies of O'Donnell, Cabanatuan, Bilibid and Lasang, and the torpedoing of the prison ship in which they were being taken to Japan.

Ten Charges Made.

Aside from confirming earlier reports of atrocities committed during the Death March, the three Army captains make the following ten charges based on their two and a half years as slave laborers:

1. At they worked from dawn to dark in the slimy, hip-deep mud of rice fields. "The Jap guards walked the dikes above us (and) if we faltered, we would get a bobnailed boot in the ribs, or a rifle butt across a naked thigh."

2. "We always worked naked; all we ever had on was a G string . . . We slept at night on the rough board floor, huddled together like animals to keep warm."

3. "Our food ration was only 600 grams of rice a day, and we were always hungry. We devoured any scraps the Japs tossed to us. . . . Or, if we were lucky, we would catch a lizard or a snake or a mongoose and then into our camps . . . Oranges and bananas used to grow on the trees and fall to the ground and rot, but we never got one."

4. "All of us had diarrhea, or dysentery, and if we stopped to relieve ourselves, a guard would take his rifle by the barrel and swing the butt over his shoulder and bring it down hard across our naked backs to keep us going."

5. "The Japs looted the American Red Cross supplies constantly, taking their watches, rings and insignia, even their glasses. Gene (Captain Gene Dale) saw a Jap soldier snatch the upper half of a set of false teeth from an old master sergeant, and smash them into his face."

6. "They were thoroughly indifferent to sickness and sanitary conditions inside the compounds . . . We would nurse a man along for a week or ten days, and then one night we'd discover where he slept would be empty, and we'd know that he had crawled to the Zero Field, was too sick to raise his head and had died coughing."

7. "The burial grounds were in a low area without drainage, and a hole you dug in the morning would be flooded to the rim by afternoon. So we had to roll them (the bodies) in (and) they would float back up to the top."

8. "Most of us had malaria, and working in the cold mud (of the rice fields) was apt to cause a bad chill."

9. "Sergeant Hashimoto, in charge of the guards and a Judo expert, kicked and beat an American prisoner named Pete, suffering from malaria, until his mind and speech were impaired, and . . .

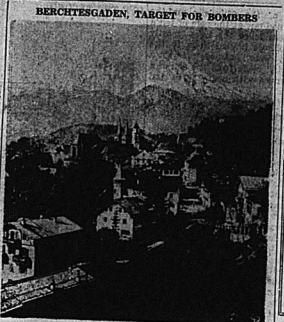
10. "The Jap guards once forced the prisoners, after a full day of work in the rice field muck, to push a train of railroad flatcars, which had stalled because the engine couldn't get enough traction on the wet rail, up a four-mile-long grade."

Thoughts of Killing.

"After Pete got his beating all he thought of was killing Lieut. Caesar, the judo expert,' the three captains report, 'and we didn't blame him. He was still thinking about it when he burned into Cabanatuan and Spoundering in the water after the Japanese prison ship went down."

When the American prisoners were forced to push the train of flatcars up the long grade, they found comfort, not only their guards, the captains report, but the commanding officer of the prison camp.

"The guards rode on the flatcars and we pushed. 'Push! Push!' and leaning down to club us. 'Push, you guilty' their story reads. 'But we didn't quit. We got mad. We kept pushing, and we got madder and madder, every time we hit the top and the Japs began to get scared.



"We passed the house of the Jap commanding officer, and, as we went by, every last one of that bunch of tired, hungry, emaciated Americans began to sing. We sang at the top of our lungs, and the Japs were too scared to stop us. We sang 'God Bless America' and we made the night shake with it.

"No matter what lay ahead, we were proud to be Americans that night."

West To Salute Reds Soon In, Heart of Germany

New York, Feb. 23 —(CP)— Field Marshal Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, chief of the British Middle East missions in the United States, in a speech said the time was not far distant when the Allied armies on the west will salute the Red Army in the best possible way—from every heart of Germany—and then link-ed in a continuous front will bring a speedy and final victory."

He spoke at a dinner which was a joint celebration of Red Army day and the birthday of George Washington.

Sugar Rations

Canadian sugar rations will be cut two pounds a year which is only two pounds out of the twenty-six which have been allowed since sugar rationing went into force. Consumers will have the regular canning ration of ten pounds each and at the same time have all their preserve coupons which can be used for sugar if housekeepers prefer sugar to preserves. No change is made in the rationing of maple syrup and sugar.

While housekeepers have naturally felt the shortage in sugar from the flush conditions which prevailed before the war when there was at least a sugar glut and people wanted to buy, no one has been hurt by rationing but everyone has been allowed his or her fair share of the supply at regular intervals which makes it possible for consumers to regulate their consumption. Under this plan it is not a case of people able to buy up what they are entitled to buy far ahead and then after a time find themselves out of the commodity and forced to wait until the time comes for the next coupons to become valid.

No one will miss the little amount of sugar which is being taken from the rationing, two pounds in twenty-six, or less than eight per cent, while at the same time the other sources of sugar in canning and in lieu of preserves remain the same.

In an age when there is the possibility of getting too much fat producing food a little curb will be all the better for some persons at least.

Canadian housekeepers have adjusted their routine in the preparation of meals loyally and admirably and will accept the little alteration with good grace, knowing that it has been found necessary in view of the world situation.

Bullet-Proof Windows in Tanks

British factories can now turn out glass strong enough to be bullet-proof or fine enough to be woven into fabric.

Tanks and bombers are now fitted with bullet-proof windows.

At the same time a Scottish factory is now drawing glass thread one-fifth the thickness of human hair. Millions of glass marbles made from special raw materials are melted in electric furnaces, and from every pound of marbles about 175 miles of fine thread can be drawn.

Glass has thus a tremendous variety of uses. At present the electrical industry is the largest single user of glass silk cloths to insulate electric motors, generators and transformers. They do not burn, are not affected by water and most chemicals, are vermin-proof, are so efficient that a thin layer is enough and so fire-proof that apparatus can operate safely at much higher temperatures.

A 10 h.p. motor insulated with cotton weighed 354 pounds. When insulated with glass fibre, the same motor weighed only 190 pounds, occupied only half as much space, and operated at higher speeds. Glass fibre insulation used in a battleship can reduce the weight by 500 tons.

Experts in Britain estimate that a material made of glass fibres reinforcing and binding plastics has the greatest strength in relation to weight of any material known. Already experimental aircraft have been built of this new plastic plus glass, and other developments are expected.

Shipyard on the Chindwin

Until recently the needs of other theatres have prevented Admiral Mountbatten from receiving all the landing craft he needed for large-scale amphibious operations. Some landings at Akyab, and on Ramree and Cheduba Islands suggest that the shortage has been eased to some extent.

But lack of properly issued landing craft has not prevented amphibious operations being carried out on inland waters. On the Chindwin River the boats needed have been built on the spot by Indian carpenters, from materials close at hand in the surrounding forests. These are, in fact, quite sizeable craft capable of carrying twenty-two tons of cargo apiece.

Sixteen building slips were constructed on the banks of the Chindwin, and the boats were turned out at the rate of ten a day. The Indians felled the trees—mostly teak—and elephants handed them to the slips. The craft were finished off with a waterproof "skin" made from the sap of a jungle plant mixed with heavy earth and oil.

Portable Smithy

Tillsonburg (Ont.) News

The blacksmith of the future may have to leave "the spreading chestnut tree" and take his forge to the farms on a truck. With fewer blacksmiths in the country, the farmers have longer distances to go when they want to have their horses shod. Often they cannot spare the time to leave their farm work, but many of them would have their horses shod if the blacksmith came to their farms.

We suggest to the young men who are looking for a vocation that they think about blacksmithing. It is a healthy occupation. Anyone who likes horses and understands how to handle them ought to be able to make a success as a blacksmith with some perseverance.

It is an occupation that will require some assistance from the agricultural departments of the country if there are not soon a number of new members in its ranks. As long as horses are used for work and pleasure, there will be a need for the services of the blacksmith.

Sir Ian Hamilton's Party

(Manchester Guardian)

There were 25 little candles round a two-deck birthday cake recently at 1 Hyde Park Gardens. General Sir Ian Hamilton was celebrating his 92nd birthday and entertaining some 70 boys from the Gordon Home. The boys danced the Highland fling and the sword dance. Sir Ian was in his spirits and made a gay speech in which his old regiment, the 92nd, figured. A telegram from Mr. and Mrs. Churchill was read. A few days ago Sir Ian went by motorcar to Sussex to see a bull of his that had won a prize. Field Marshal Lord Ironside, who is now 78, was one of the guests at the birthday party.

Patriotism in Poultry-Yard

(Montreal Herald)

There's a big job ahead for Canadian hens this year—production of a billion eggs for Britain, over and above those required for Canadian consumption.

We are sure that our 35,000,000 feathered war workers will meet this call to extra effort. We are confident there will be neither strikes nor absenteeism in the poultry-yard.

For the Canadian hen is a patriotic bird. She has boosted production since the start of the war.

Now she will be stimulated by the knowledge that for the first time in history her exported product goes forth proudly bearing the name of her country.

The word "Canada" stamped on each shell egg shipped to Britain will proclaim that here is a Canadian hen's contribution to the Allied war effort.

A new method of putting in windows is now being used to reglaze bomb-damaged London.

Instead of putty, a pressed steel bar, inexpensive and efficient, is used. It enables the work to be done in a fraction of the time needed for the old method of glazing.

It is the idea of an official of the U. K. Plumbers' Union.

A number of borough councils are now using large quantities of the pressed steel bar with great success.

Journey to Marianas So Long And Grinding It Becomes Merely Blur

By ERNIE PYLE

In the Marianas Islands — Now are far, far away from everything that was familiar and dear at home. Five thousand miles from America, and 1,500 miles from any friends fighting on the German border.

Twelve thousand miles from Sidi Bou Zid and Venafro and Troina and St. Mere Eglise—names as unheard of on this side of the world as are Kwajalein and Chuuk Lima and Ulithi on the other side.

The Pacific names are all new to me too, all except the outstanding ones. For those fighting one war do not pay much attention to the other war. Each one thinks his war is the worst and most important war. And unquestionably it is.

* * *

We came to the Marianas by airplane from Honolulu. The weather was perfect, and yet so long and grinding was the journey that it eventually became a blur, and at the end I could not even recall her what day we had left Honolulu, although actually it was only the day before.

We came in the same kind of plane that brought us from California — a huge, four-motored Douglas transport, a C-54 in the Naval Air Transport Service.

As soon as we were in the air Lieut. Cmdr. Max Miller and I took off our coats, pulled off our shoes, our house slippers. West of Pearl Harbor, military formality immediately drops away. For example, in Honolulu, all Naval officers must wear neckties. But the moment you leave Pearl Harbor they come off, and you never see them again.

Max and I read a while in the two books we had brought with us —Thurber's "My World and Welcome to It," and Joseph Mitchell's "McSorley's Wonderful Saloon."

But good as they both are, we couldn't seem to keep our minds on them. We would read a few lines and were willingly absorbed in a wonderful story, then look up the next minute to westbound friends, called "Outside to the Western Pacific."

We made but two stops on the 2,800-mile journey to the Marianas, and how we've found those tiny dots of islands is beyond me, for they were the merest dots in the wide ocean. But they find them all the time, so who am I to worry?

Johnston Island Tiny,

The first stop was at Johnston island, four hours out from Honolulu. As it came into view I was shocked at how tiny it is. It is hardly bigger than a few airplane carriers lashed together, and it hasn't got a tree on it.

Yet it has been developed into an airfield that will take the biggest planes live and work there.

The climate is magnificent, and most of the soldiers and sailors wear only shorts and are deeply tanned. They don't mind it a bit, of quiet escape out there for a while would be tremendous. But the boys there are tired of escape, of the dull monotony of the place gets on their nerves.

We stopped there for an hour in late afternoon, and then we took off and headed west and soon it was dark. Gradually the passengers went to sleep in their seats. There was nothing to see out of the windows but darkness. The night over the Pacific lay ahead of us. The night we were going to be we were chasing the darkness.

The crew passed out a blanket for each of us, and the passengers wrapped up. But soon the cabin was heated, and even at midnight it was unbearably hot.

It was after midnight when we could sense by the motors' sound and the pressure in our ears that we were losing altitude. We could feel that we were turning but we could not see it. We looked out high on one side or us, and a few minutes later it would be low on the other side of us.

Marsh Kwajalein

And then suddenly there were lights smack underneath us, lights of what looked like a good sized town, and then at last we were on the ground. We had landed on a bustling airport, teeming with men and planes and lights. The place was Kwajalein.

That's not hard to pronounce if you don't too much. Just say "kwa-juh-lean." It's in the Marshall Islands. First there's Majuro, then Marsh and April, American soldiers and sailors have built airfields there, and opened our island stepping-stone path straight across the mid-Pacific.

Even today our Seabees can't dig a trench or put up a building without digging up dead Japanese. But even so the work goes forward, and as we so rapidly transform all our islands that are destroyed in the taking. It is a great job now.

Naval officers met our plane debarked. A sweet smell was there, and drove us a few hundred yards to the officers' club. Inside a dance was blowing, and it seemed wonderful to be on the ground again, even such exotic and scrambled ground as this.

An hour later we sat around a white-limned table and drank pineapple juice and sipped iced fruit juice. You would hardly have known you were in the Pacific war area. Then we were off again, to fly through the starless night, westward and onward.

SEVERAL HUNDRED THOUSAND TROOPS IN TURKISH ARMY

Turkish Soldier is Good Soldier — In Own Element in Rough Terrain

By WILLIAM L. KING
(Former Chief of The Associated Press Bureau in Ankara)

New York, Feb. 24 —(AP)— Turkey has declared war on Germany and Japan, bringing several hundred thousand soldiers to the Allies' side.

By any standards the Turk is a good soldier and fighting in his own mountainous terrain where individual courage is the paramount factor, he probably is as good as any in the world.

Turkey's small but effective air force is manned by selected groups of young Turks who combine the old Ottoman tradition with a love of good machinery.

The Turkish airforce has not been previously subjected to British and American instructors who have seen service in the war. It testify that the individual pilots show considerable skill in the air.

Well developed air bases with facilities for the operation of British and American bombers, if need arises, have been secretly located and constructed in the eastern and southeastern part of Turkey, where they are available for use by the Allies in the event of war.

The backbone of the army is the infantry. Conscripts are called to the colors at the age of 20 and serve two years. Then they are transferred to the reserves and are subject to call for service until they are 45.

Every male citizen, whether he serves in the army or not, is required to undergo military training. Boys of 12 to 15 are trained in the use of rifles and machine guns. Those from 15 to 18 are given more advanced training and those from 18 to 20 are trained in the use of artillery, machine guns and rifles.

Every village has a rifle range and every male citizen, regardless of his occupation, is required to practice shooting on Sundays and holidays.

Well over a million men are under arms in Turkey, and the total number of soldiers available for service in the event of war is more than three million.

Magnesium Has Bright Future

(By Overseas London Daily Mail Reporter)

The extraction of magnesium from the sea and the growing use of the metal in large part to the post notable step in scientific progress in 1940 said the annual London luncheon of the man who deal in great ideas. They are the patent agents.

Each year this little gathering tries to sum up the most important great idea of the past year can be called "the idea."

Magnesium from the sea was judged to be the greatest scientific advance of the year. Because it is the one likely to affect people's lives in all parts.

Up till just before the war we used magnesium only to demonstrate mostly in the form of ribbon or powder for flash photography. It cost 25 per lb. It now costs about 6d., because the sea is yielding up thousands of tons of it.

You get a lot of it for a fb. because it is in the sea in fabric of the weight of aluminium.

Magnesium is the lightest cost 2d. per lb. when its use for aero engines, incendiary bombs, and the pyrotechnics of warfare are returned to peace-time purposes.

Every cubic yard of sea water contains 2,200 tons of metallic magnesium, and if only a fraction of it is difficult, your bath-tub full of sea water will contain a quarter of a pound of it.

It is called the "witch of Metals" with reason. It can do many magic tricks which we are just beginning to understand.

It will soon be used in the bathroom. A car battery will weigh a fb. instead of the 56 lbs or so of the present accumulator.

A torch battery will contain a pound of it, and will last ten times longer than the present battery of No. 8.

It will be the base of the metal current-carriers of the new electrified railways. It will be the base with our unsightly and dangerous

Cement is merely one of the ingredients of concrete, a material which is a mixture of sand and stones, the latter being held hardened by cement as the active agent.

The purpose of cement is to bind the other solid materials, just as lime did mortar in the old bricks or stones.

Now what causes cement to harden or "to set" is not thoroughly understood. In a general way it is due to the development in the components of lime when moistened, this, then, proceeded to get himself elected President in 1832 and President in 1836.

The Marry Go Round

Tabloid Philosophy
Today.

Oh, this is a magical marvelous age
Of Hitler's Gestapo and Boldrick;
When diplomats squabble and rage
And we live on a red hot griddle!
But however the faint-hearted quake,
Or shudder and quiver and quiver,
You cannot deny that this world is AWAKE!!

Each morning you cry as you open your eyes
"I wonder what happened last night!"
And you scan every line for the latest "surprise"—
A shortage, a strike or a fight!
And you can't tell who's right and you don't know who's wrong—
But you've got to admit that we're going it STRONG!!

Today it's a Duce who's pulled off his throne,
With a laugh and a jest and a cheer;
Tomorrow our laughter has changed to a groan—
For our INCOME-TAX troubles are here!

But whatever we're doing, from minute to minute,
It's great to be living and working and—
and "IN" IT!!

And let's thank the fates, how'er bitter the cup,
That we lived in an age, when the world WENT UP!

The main thing for the wife or mother of a soldier to remember, when he comes back home, is not to try to "regiment" him. He's had enough of orders and regimentation to last him through this and next incarnation.

Once in every man's life he mistakes the love of novelty, adventure or amusement for the love of some girl. That's how most divorces start—before the wedding.

A wife soon finds out that a man's way of telling her "all" is to discover, first, how much she already knows and then frankly and bravely, "admit" about half of it.

Wonder if a man ever suspects how much practice it requires for a girl to return his kisses with all the fervor of an amateur and all the enthusiasm of an expert.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Love and a Good Appetite

Although Laura C. is wildly in love, she describes it, she fears, more love-story than real romantic because cooking enters into it. But I think that she and the young sailor, she is about to marry are a lucky pair and that good food nourishes love more than either of them suspects. This is what happened:

Some months ago, the young sailor, Ted, having a short furlough, took he and Laura were invited to a food-stead weekend house-party. Laura was known to have such a talent for the egg-beater and the roasting-pan that it was natural she should go a day or two ahead to help her intimate friend, the hostess, with the cooking. But at the very moment the other guests were to arrive, she was called home by her mother's sudden illness.

When the dishes were served, one after another, the perfectly-flavored pot-roast, the juicy mince pie, the fluffy cake, the hostess meanwhile explaining the part Laura played in it, Ted was especially impressed.

"My!" he exclaimed between the succulent mouthfuls, "I'd marry a girl who can cook like that!" And though the others chaffed him, he stuck to it.

It was months before he had the chance to present himself at Laura's door. "Are you the mince-pie girl?" he demanded with a grin. "You're the best thing in the world. You're going to be married tomorrow!"

"He was so cute you couldn't help loving him", Laura confides. "For a boy like that, I'd cook forever, and I only wish I had the chance to begin right now. It's going to be months before I see him at sea. I don't see how I can bear it. All my family have Indigestion, but Ted has the most magnificent appetite.

"Of course I'd love him anyway. As he says, we do seem to be made for each other. And to think how nearly we missed meeting! Don't you think, Miss Fairfax, it was Destiny?"

Indeed I do. And I know I'm safe in sending my best wishes for a happy married life.

Accessorized Costume

By ALICE E. ALDEN.

The fashion formula used by many of the smartest women is to complement a good black basic dress with important or colorful accessories. Here, Faye Emerson dresses up her simple dress of black crepe with some important accessories. These include a three strand pearl choker, a yellow ostrich trimmed hat, gauntlets with deep sections of black satin to offset black suede, and a silver fox stole. Elegant, smart but not overdone since there is an absence of fashness or much extraneous detail.

Fashion Flashes

It should be easy to find the suit of your dreams, for there's everything ranging from the classic tailleur to all sorts of novelties. In the latter class is a suit in black, green and gray checked wooten, the jacket cut exactly like a long overblouse with self belt set in at the waist, and high revers. Long, full sleeves are tight at the wrist.

Way back is the site used for trimming many of the new hats. a tiny felt skull cap is trimmed with black cock-ade effect and covers interlwined with streamers of red dotted, black and white satin ribbon.

The prettiest picture say our fighting men, is that of a pretty girl in a pretty evening dress. Youthful and appealing is an evening frock of black net embroidered all over with little white daisies. A corsage of pink roses with green leaves gleams against the black satin girdle. Extended shoulders and deep oval neckline. There's one movie star who does use the things she endorses. We refer to Miss Margaret O'Brien who likes the dresses "sold with her name tag. She likes gingham with ruffles in red forming a plastron down the front. Similar ruffles for pockets and sleeve-finish.

A new way of placing the veil is noted in one line of wide brimmed sailors. The veil is drawn tightly over the face, looped in ballroom effect on the sides. Very new-looking!

Before we know it warm weather will be along. Again, women will be wearing dresses with cut-outs and vents. A pretty afternoon frock in black crepe with cut-out has vents between the bands that make the yoke and extend into cap sleeves. The vents are filled in with made pink marquisette.

TO CONFER WITH EDEN

Paris, Feb. 23 — (AP)—Foreign Minister Georges Bidault will leave for London, probably today, to confer with Foreign Secretary Eden on details of the Three Conference, the French government announced last night.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

ARMS AND THE WOMEN

Remolding the figure may be a diversion or a chore, according to one's views of the matter. The highly energized woman enjoys calisthenics, any kind of exercise, especially outdoor sports. Her figure requires no help from it; she finds a bit of spread ambitiously, does her torso twisting and bending stunt, decently feel that she should be praised for her efforts, and a more graceful silhouette is her reward.

Woman who" refuses to let years detract from the youthful, svelte frame, get down on the floor and roll their hips away. If calves are getting fatted, they hop-scotch on their toes, to the amusement of the other members of the family. There are all sorts of movements that will diminish the expanding waistline. These beautifying endeavors go on all the time. But nothing much is done about arms, for some strange reason.

Arms have their own sorrows—an overabundance of adipose tissue, dreary spots of sunburn, redness and roughness of the skin, freckles, awkward lines of movement. Yes my beauties, arms are entitled to consideration at the beauty feast. They respond quickly to care.

The first need is sound musculature, which means good flexibility and desirable proportions. Unused muscles are often responsible for bulk and awkwardness.

To improve the surface of the skin, to make it white and velvet-smooth, beauty shops offer delightful hand and arm treatments. Some day when you've all, played out because you have been working like an old dray horse, want to go on a pulchritude binge, you might indulge in this specialty. The expense is trifling and the results are surprisingly good, especially if the beauty carries little red points and the cutaneous surface is rough and chapped.

You can give yourself a fairly satisfactory version of the professional treatment. Try it some evening when you don't want to read, or listen to the radio, or sit around and gab with the family.

Give the arms and hands a vigorous scouring with soap nods and a bath brush. The brush will dislodge dead skin scales, get the blood streams tingling so the flesh will be warm and glowing, conditioned for a-greasy massage, tomorrow, apply a heavy emollient, one that offers resistance to manipulations.

Stroke up and down from shoulder to wrist with flattened fingers. Use the same motion for backs and palms of hands and the other arm, doing circles. While the finger bracelet goes one way, the arm goes the other.

Wring turkish towels out of hot water, wrap around the arms, repeating several times. Remove the cream with the moist towel, dry and have a talcum friction.

Trenton Flyers Carry One-Goal Lead to Barrie by Defeating Camp Borden Here by 5 to 4

Ice Quite Sticky and Game More a Golfing Than a Hockey Contest

Playing on sticky ice that eventually saw the game develop into a glorified winter golf match the Trenton "Flyers" gained a one goal lead over the Camp Borden "Airmen" with a 5 to 4 victory before a near-capacity crowd of over 2,200 at the Hume Arena Friday night. The "Flyers" move into the Barrie rink on Tuesday enjoying their one-goal lead in the No. 1 R.C.A.F. Training Command semi-finals of a goals-to-count two-game series.

All even at one-to-one at the end of the initial period, the "Flyers' scoring ace, Paul Raymond who had been well tagged in the initial period, broke loose to score two rapid goals in the middle session with Camp Borden keeping pace with a singleton leaving the Flyers leading 3-2. The scoring was even in the last session while the lads became heavy making good hockey impossible with both teams driving hard in a glorified golfing game that proved exciting to the utmost as the rubber was batted hither and yon, especially into the scoring zones of the respective goalies experienced difficult moments. Clearing was practically beyond the conventional defensive style of hockey on the sticky, but unfortunately not wet, ice.

Raymond Marked Man.

From the out-set it was apparent that Camp Borden "Airmen" had Paul Raymond as a marked man with the result the Flyers' scoring ace was well taken care of in the initial period. However, the visitors lost track of the fact there were others with the result Bernie Morgan rifled home the game's initial goal on a double-shuffle passing match with Perras. One Sven the Borden puckchasers moved down the ice to give goalie Robertson a busy session, during which Currie drew down a boarding penalty and without hesitation Evans drew the face-off draw and passed to Reed for the equalizer.

All even Borden raced to the offensive and carried the play strongly in the opening stages of the middle session with aggressive play but only the good work of Robertson in the Trenton net saved the day. Morgan and Ashleigh's minor penalties seemed nothing at all to the scrappy Irishmen although Raymond and Price's close calls were close. There were Hardy and Bedard, Evans in for a Borden counter after Raymond fired hard with the puck deflecting from the left post of Camp Borden defenceman's arm and that was the goal that inspired the former Les Canadien, who scored the winning counter to whip Marshall's pass-out behind the Trenton goal, to follow suit. Bedard whittled the lead down to one when he raced inside the Flyers' defence on Scott's pass but was practically beyond the conventional defensive style of hockey on the sticky, but unfortunately not wet, ice.

Bedard and Hardy scored for Borden in the final session when golfing the puck was the order of the night, while Gingras and Frigon added sufficient goals to protect the odd counter last gained by Trenton in the middle session with Raymond getting a helping hand. Ross Bowyer, former Oshawa Leaf defenceman, was prominent in the Camp Borden line with sterling defensive play and an assist. The visitors also had High Hardy of the Montreal Royals and Ken Evans of the Newmarket Juniors, both of whom lent good support. Along the Flyers' line it was Robertson, who put in the nets with Reinhardt second in the line going both ways on sticky ice. Raymond led his usual two, but Rasmisky and Frigon were more effective with Perras and Morgan playing steady hockey. On the defence Trenton was covered well, as a matter of fact it was the combination of a "golfing" line and let the Flyers do the rest.

The lineups:

Camp Borden: Goal, Fisher; defence, White and Fowler; centre, Bedard; wings, Hardy and Reinhardt; subs, Reed, Evans, Dargel, Kastner, Livingstone, Scott, and Raymond.

Trenton "Flyers": Goal, Robertson; defence, Currie and Reinhardt; centre, Perras; wings, Frigon and Rasmisky; subs, Gingras, Morgan, Marshall, Price, Pack and Perras.

Saints From Same City Earn Tie With Hamilton Majors Away From Home

(By Canadian Press)

Hamilton Majors and St. Catharines Saints wound up their schedule tied for third in the Senior O.H.A. with a 3-all draw in their arch-rival's home town in the Hamilton playing surface. The rivals will meet again in the first of the championship series at Hamilton next Tuesday night. It was the third tie game for the Majors but the first for the Saints during the regular campaign. Hamilton otherwise having ten victories against one loss to lead the standing, with St. Catharines earning six victories compared with seven defeats.

The concluding fixture saw St. Kilts and Falcons in a first period 2-2 and 3-1 in the second chapter, only to have the Saints deadlocked 3-3 at the end of 60 minutes. Comfort Cosnie gave the Falcons gained sole possession of second place in the standings with an 8-4 triumph over Oshawa Generals, the Cadets having been coming from behind to win a rugged contest.

The score was equal, 3-2, at the end of the first period but the Oshawa was on top, 6-1, 30 minutes later when Falcons had a 3-goal splurge in the third and two more by Sergeant Hall kept up the pace to win.

Tom Smellie was in the limelight when he registered all three tallies for St. Kilts in the first session.

The Generals kept pace and went into the lead in the second frame on two goals by Barry Sullivan and Jimmy Marshall while the homesters were getting two. It was Hall with the final dash, however.

In addition to Smelie, Falcons scorers were Edwards and Somerville with two apiece and Delmonte with a single. Oshawa marksmen were Sullivan with two, Gallagher, Smith, Lowe and Samaraiz.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.)
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Feb. 24.—Baseball's baseball's committee to revise the major league agreement meets in Chicago Monday. Frazy Frazee, czar-land of the Pacific Coast League wants three more clubs added to the league, Bill Veeck, who has been negotiating with various high school athletic groups on behalf of baseball, probably would add the game of baseball already is in trouble for that same reason, and even when it has good intentions the educators are suspicious.

Unanswered Question

If the midnight curfew for night spots remains in effect through the baseball season, how do you suppose Vince DiMaggio will do for one of those three-book snacks after a night game?

One-Minute Sports Page.

An article in the current "Green-keepers' Reporter" in the Vale of Belvoir Golf courses studied with sand traps, whether wire and tan poles to prevent the landing of gliders . . . Judging by scores recently reported from southern resorters, some of those hazards should be retained. . . . When Baltimore was in the American League in 1901-02, the Club drew a total attendance of 318,000. Last season the minor league Orioles drew 464,000. . . . Is that why they call 'em the "good old days"?

CASUAL COMMENT

By K.J.C.

The Meanings.

The small son of the house was doing his homework, and his parents were sitting by the fire.

"What's a fiancee, dad?" asked the youngster presently.

"A woman who is engaged to be married," replied his father.

"And what is a fiasco?" asked the boy next.

The Mail Box.

Apparently local sport fans are becoming most concerned regarding the hockey games played this season at the Hume Arena. . . . By mail telephone and personal contact we have received various forms of favorable comment, protests and what-have-you over differences of opinion regarding both junior games and the Air Force tussles. . . . Stan Caldwell writes to say he feels there should be another Bomber-Flyer game to decide the championship of the Quinte service league all year games and goals after playing 360 minutes of hockey, twenty of them games. As far as we fans are concerned there has not been a winner declared yet," writes Ivan. . . . League scoring statistics show each team scored 30 goals in their six games played, of which two were shut-outs and each team emerged winner on two occasions. . . . Don Boyle writes to add similar comment by giving Trenton credit for taking the last series, but "we feel that another game between those two evenly matched teams should be played to decide the championship of the Bay of Quinte service league," writes Don. . . . Bill Warren, popular Front Street barber and sterling hockey fan, says the Bombers were robbed in the last game. . . . "I've got a dozen or more impartial civilian patrons who saw the Bombers score a goal in the last period that wasn't counted. The puck was driven by Cowley so hard it hit the back of the net and was out again in the twinkling of an eye." The goal umpire should have seen it however," contends Bill, who has a pair of Front Street support in his squawk. . . . James Jackson, who gives Belleville as his address, writes in protest over the refereeing during the other night's Belleville-Combine junior game. . . . Jackson doesn't explain what his beef exactly is, but says "the referees displayed poor sportsmanship" . . . Mr. Jackson doesn't exactly elucidate as to the principal of his protest, or make mention of any particular play or decision to base his protest upon, but he meant well.

Flyers One Up.

Maybe it's a good thing there was slow ice at the Hume Arena last night, because from this angle it appeared as though the Camp Borden "Airmen" were just a little bit too fast afoot for our Trenton "Flyers", despite the fact Paul Maika arrived back from somewhere in the east to take over defensive charge, Paul Raymond and his puck contemporaries to a 3 to 4 win over the Borden sextette. With teams like Borden, Trenton and even the Bombers, a one goal advantage means little or nothing and if the Barrie rink scene is as small as we understand, the Flyers have a good time cut out for themselves in the business of getting into the No. 1 Training Command finals.

The Borden team carried Jimmy Fowler, former Maple Leaf defence-man, who didn't get untracked until the third period, also Hugh Hardy, No. 1 pin of the fans, who carried punch, but it was Bedard, the Borden centre man who stood out for the visitors, from here. The Borden team played that five-man golf style that usually pays off on fast ice, but they made one mistake—skating Raymond, six-months-by-wieldy well for a lip stitch.

In the meantime, Frigon, Perras-Rasminsky, Peck and the rest were doing some of that business called offensive hockey, but last night it was pleasing to see the Flyers' defence, all four of 'em, turn in their best effort of the year in front of a sportsmen who was quite a busy goalie with sensational saves. Sometimes he and Fisher, the Borden goalie, wrapped their arms around each other after the contest and wondered if they just weren't alone in a glorified golfing contest in the middle of the winter. (Maybe Bill Steer and Perc Allen learned a new style of testing off last night. Or are they too old?)

Remember When.

Johnny Risko, Cleveland baker boy, continued in his role as "spoiler" of heavyweight boxing ambitions when he outrought Lee Savold in 10 rounds at New York 12 years ago tonight. Risko got his nickname of "spoiler" from the late Tex Richard after he "robbed" Jack Sharkey of a title bout with Gene Tunney with a decision over the Boston sailor.

Inundated.

With the ice surface at the Stirling rink covered with water last night's Belleville-Combine junior O.H.A. group tilt had to be postponed until possibly Monday. The Stirling rink is built on low ground in a hollow and it manages that when the rains come the ice surface became inundated. The lay-off gives the teams a well-earned rest, although it may be more appreciated by the Crashines than Belleville, who enjoyed a rest last week.

CANADA'S VETERANS

Their Post-War Opportunities

The third of three advertisements explaining the re-establishment credit.

How to Make Application For Re-establishment Credit—

The first two advertisements in this series have explained the principles of the re-establishment credit and have outlined the purposes for which it may be used. They have pointed out that the credit is a non-repayable grant for which all veterans who have served without dishonourable discharge are eligible, but that it is an alternative to training, continuation of territorial functions are eligible, but that it is an alternative to training, continuation of education and benefits under the Veterans' Land Act. It is the purpose of this final advertisement to clarify the method of making application.

APPLY FOR THE GRATUITY FIRST

In no case can the re-establishment credit be paid until the first payment on the War Service Gratuity has been received by the veteran. Application for the War Service Gratuity should be made to the branch of the armed forces with which the applicant served, on forms which can be secured at any armed forces depot or at any district office of the Department of Veterans Affairs. With the first war service gratuity check a statement will be furnished showing the amount of the re-establishment credit. This information is essential in applying for the credit.

MAKE DEFINITE PLANS BEFORE APPLYING

It is important that the veteran's re-establishment plans be clear-cut before making application as payment of the credit debars the veteran from training and education grants and from benefits under the Veterans' Land Act, and payments for training and education and under the Veterans' Land Act already made are charged against the re-establishment credit. Ample time is given to reach a decision, as part or the whole of the credit may be applied for at any time within ten years of discharge.

APPLY ON THE PROPER FORM

Official forms for making application should be used. These may be secured at any district office of the Department of Veterans Affairs.

HOW THE CREDIT IS ADMINISTERED

The Re-establishment Credit—amounting to $7.50 for each 30 days' service in the Western Hemisphere and $15.00 for each 30 days' service overseas—is money which belongs to those who have served and who do not elect to take training or to take advantage of the land settlement opportunities under the Veterans' Land Act. The Department of Veterans Affairs is anxious to see that it is used by the veteran to assist his re-establishment.

Payment of the money credited will be made to vendors and agencies on request of the veteran and receipts for payments made on behalf of the veteran may be secured from such recipients. It is available for use in Canada only.

In certain instances, such as the purchase or establishment of a business the department will secure the advice of people with a specialized knowledge of the business in which the veteran is re-establishing himself. For this purpose local Re-establishment Credits Advisory Committees are being set up. These are composed of responsible citizens serving voluntarily. Applications from veterans in rural areas, however, will be passed through committees administering the Veterans' Land Act. These steps are taken with the sole purpose of satisfying the Department that the purpose to which the credit is to be applied is a statutory one and has re-establishment merit.

While the principal function of the advisory committees will be to aid the Department in dealing with applications for purchase or establishment of businesses, veterans with projects in mind that their applications for any purpose be referred to these committees so as to improve their proposals and make use of their credits to better advantage in their purchase.

PURPOSES FOR WHICH CREDIT MAY BE USED

Grant of the credit may be authorized for the following purposes:

(a) To assist in purchase of a house;
(b) To assist in building a house;
(c) To assist in the repairing or modernization;
(d) To buy household equipment and furniture;
(e) To provide working capital for profession or business;
(f) To buy tools, instruments, etc., for trade, profession, or business;
(g) To buy a business;
(h) To pay premiums on Dominion of Canada insurance;
(i) To buy special equipment required for educational or vocational training.

In the case of (a) and (b) above, it is necessary for the Veteran to have an equity in his home. In the case of (d) and (g) the Veteran must put up one dollar for every two dollars used from the Re-establishment Credit. If experience shows broadening of these purposes is needed, provision has been made for it.

By SAM GORDON
The Knitter

What makes a cumbersome system, correct? It spells that way from starting with a foundation that is not mathematically sound.

Better than average is the true basis for the opening bid in any net deal. A system that opens with some time cumbersome methods of safeguarding that future bids.

So, Culbertson has the Principle of Preparedness influenced by the Principle of Economy of Bids. And the Four Aces prefer to call theirs the Principle of Anticipation.

Lies Jones' Snoopitzer's pinky when she holds a teacup, elegant phrases? Impress patookas. But here's one system that's not for you. Unless your step's principle is necessity.

They mean: In our system, an opening bid may not have better than average in every item. So, don't open unless you can stand a second bid. Use it necessary to prepare for the next bid.

Horse Jones does not ask you to predict the future. It uses the correct hand for an opening bid. So, it is actually half prepared. It is designed to anticipate any next bid.

The sound opening needs are five tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks. A system that opens with less in any item must be to protect itself in the bidding. Cumbersome systems do that.

How do they be? By reversing the order in which suits should be shown. By bidding suits that are not biddable. By using tactics that are not standardized.

There is no sound opening bid in this hand.

♦ 2 3
♣ 8 4 2

A cumbersome player might open it. But with a tic of one club to anticipate or prepare for his partner's reply. Then they must depend on cumbersome exceptions to protect their future.

Systems with Isoptions monkey with exceptions.

RAY ROBINSON BEATS LAMOTTA IN TEN ROUNDS

Welterweight Has Averaged $4,500 a Round in Last Two Fights

New York, Feb. 24. (AP)—Instead of being billed as the "uncrowned king of middleweights," Ray (Sugar) Robinson could be called "the $90,000 kid."

Robinson, Harlem negro boxer, picked up approximately that much money for his six 2-3 minutes in the ring. That covers his one knockout of Georgy Costner at Chicago ten days ago and his 10-round decision over Jake LaMotta at Madison Square Garden last night. This averages about $4,500 a round or $1,500 a minute and makes Robinson the highest paid boxer around these days.

Robinson, an odds-on favorite, had little trouble beating LaMotta. He thus avenged for the second time the only blot on his 35 bout record and made it three triumphs in three nights with the Bronx middleweight.

A crowd of 18,269 fans paid $67,185 compared to $94,129 for the Robinson-Costner array in Chicago) saw Robinson, with the exception of the sixth round, outbox, outpunch and outgeneral LaMotta. He jabbed and counterpunched with the skill and polish of a ringwise veteran. LaMotta, 158, to Ray's 148 1/2, kept forcing the fight all the way and for a better than 10 to 1 shot had Robinson set up for a knockout pumelo.

Haegg Not Likely To Make the Meet

New York, Feb. 24 — (AP) — Although Gunder Haegg, the Swedish distance runner, is still somewhere at sea, and Cil Dodds, last year's mile winner, will also be missing in tonight's National A. A. U. track and field championships at Madison Square Garden, the meet promises to be one of the best in its 57-year-old history.

Dan Ferris, secretary of the A.A.U. still is hopeful that Haegg, who is beginning to be compared with the ancient mariner, will be among the 26 entries in the three-mile event, but track officials are resigned to his absence.

PLAYOFF BERTH AT STAKE IN WEEKEND GAMES

Toronto Leafs Play Rangers at Home and Canadiens in Montreal Sunday

(By The Canadian Press)

The fire N.H.L. games this weekend won't change the standings of the top three teams—Montreal, Detroit and Toronto—but they are vital to the play-off hopes of the other three—Boston, New York and Chicago.

New York Rangers play at Toronto tonight and they entertain Boston Sunday. Montreal visits Montreal Sunday to renew the Maple Leaf-Canadian hostilities. Chicago plays a home-and-home series with Detroit.

A double victory for Rangers would boost them into the fourth-place spot at the expense of one of Boston, if Chicago wins twice they'll be within a game of Boston. If Rangers lost twice however Boston's grip on the last play-off spot will be secure, and Hawks would be in a fifth-place tie.

Rangers, in view of the quad 6-2 thrashing they handed Detroit Thursday and the fact Toronto has not won in four starts, are conceded the best chance at moving in on Boston. They'll have silver-haired Neil Colville in uniform at Toronto, but he is available on for game duty there and at Montreal.

Return of Johnny Crawford to the Boston defence and Dave (Sweeney) Creighton to the attack may give New York plans out or killer. But Coach Clarence (Hap) Day of Leafs, at least, is none too certain of victory.

"We have had a tough season with injuries" he said but added that with Schriner back Day shouldn't do too badly. He said the three bottom clubs would not likely threaten Leaf play-off hopes "but Boston might embarrass in the Stanley Cup finals".

Toronto, Feb. 24 — (CP) — The controversy that has been raging back and forth from coast to coast—and sport column to sport column—as to where hockey originated in nowhere near an end (according to some sources) and Cy (Kitchener Record)-Bardwell Invitingly sticks his editorial neck out with a theory that will probably be disputed umpteen times or more.

This time it concerns where and when Canadian players began exhibition hockey game in the United States, introducing out style of play to the boys south of the border. It isn't just an idle thought on Cy's part — he has factual material to start with.

A team from Queen's University here's where Kingston gets into the picture again — went down to play a series of exhibitions, says Cy, in 1896. The first game was in Pittsburgh with others following at Baltimore and Washington. The team was apparently played half Canadian rules and half under American code.

The rabid puck fans of the day attended wearing evening clothes, while the teams played with a rugby ball — a la U. S. style. The Canadian aggregation used seven men — without substitutes — and agreed to play three 20-minute periods, although the Canadian game then was only 40 minutes long.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

CHAPTER 3.

"Oh, that!" thought said with a brightening face. "Shal I think I could do it?

"I'm sure you could. And you would be paid seventy-five dollars a month."

"Seventy-five dollars a month! Oh, she is kind!"

He was delighted in her delight, and that also had left dangerous topics behind her.

His laughter, and was comforted by the thought, that she was very young, and that whatever need of discouragement or depression was sometimes her's would not be a lasting mood. He saw her eyes quicken as she added, "When—when would it go?"

"This is—let's see, the third", he said. "Suppose you come down on Monday? Monday's a good day to start. You take a train at half past five in the afternoon, and at seven the next night someone will meet you at the Oakland Mole."

"Sunday wouldn't do?" she asked, rather anxiously.

"I was thinking, when you said Oakland, that two Sisters Are going down to the Oakland house on Sunday; we're having the children for them Sunday afternoon; they would take me".

"That would be an excellent arrangement. You come first to my house, you understand, and then we go over and see Emma when you've some clothes and have had time to look about a little. I must see Mother Superior before I go and make the arrangements for you".

And then they were walking back toward the convent's main building, through wide, orderly, dimly lighted corridors.

"I must tell you about my family, Cherry", the man said. "My mother lives with us—Mrs. Clay Judson Marshbanks, she's known as a little formidable and she is a little formidable! Then there's my pretty wife—I call her that wife", he interrupted himself to explain, "and Fran is almost young enough to be my daughter, I've a son Greg—he's twenty-four, off at college in the East, and also with us is my brother's daughter, Amy. Amy's mother died when she was a little girl; her father was killed in an accident a few years after that, and my mother has had her since—making her how in sooting and quite grown up.

"Of course", the judge went on comfortably, "you'll not be long with us, but Mrs. Porter's isn't far away, and I hope, if anything goes wrong, you'll feel that you have a right to run around the corner and tell me about it."

And some night would her mother take her home with her as the opera— we have a beautiful Memorial Opera House, you know."

"Oh, not for the opera!" Cherry gasped.

"I don't hope so. We'll hope that you'll be happy. And if it's rather rough going at first—Emma isn't the most tactful woman in the girl. . . ."

"Oh, no! She'll take care of me and I won't feel so strange", Cherry assured him eagerly.

"I think you're going to solve your own problems very well", he approved.

She was going away from the only world she knew; the air was full of farewells and heartaches, and strange excited happiness of anticipation. Cherry indeed had vague babyhood memories of a plaster cottage and a patio; she had indeed been to the Sisters with a group of nuns and girl every summer; she had even penetrated to the noisy downtown streets to try her inexperienced hand at kindergarten teaching. But these had been merely protogee and variations upon the main fact of her life; that she was one of the charges of Saint Dorothea's, the poor, the sad, the stories of her companions were not like those of other girls, that there were not homes ready to receive them, families ready to welcome them, that there was a certain stigma in the unknown world outside the convent walls ready to attach itself to anyone who was identified as a Saint Dorothea girl. And now she was going away!

Not being young and never having known a Christmas or even a birthday with whom to compare her lot, Cherry had followed the example of the rest, had worried not at all about her future, and had satisfied herself with the carefully planned routine of the convent.

It had once been a sufficiently dark and comfortless regime. But times were changed now. Mother Superior was noted for her modernity. Old-fashioned sister could the practice of scales must give way to arts more immediately useful. Music lessons, French and Italian languages and music must study secretarial work; domestic-science-ers and beauty-parlors methods too, and voice training for radio. And if they wanted to try their hands at nursing stories or competes for national advertising prizes, let them go ahead!

Old girls were twenty, found employment under "responsible conditions" in the unknown world, sad disappeared; new girls came in, small and frightened at homesick eyes from the most unfit and perished at the sight of rebellion and angry and full of muttered threats of escape.

And gradually the convent routine, the business and reasonableness of convent days cheered the desolate and tamed the inattentive, and they were only girls together—girls who were allowed to curl their hair and even to use a little powder, but strictly forbidden lipstick and rouge, forbidden cigarettes, entirely forbidden any mixing with who never had danced or flirted or kissed, with innocent boys who knew nothing of house parties, night clubs, the crowded bleachers at the big ball games, the packed motor-boats at the races, the thrill of speeding cars; girls whose reading was carefully watched, who never saw a newspaper, whose attendance upon the radio was carefully checked.

And yet they did know something of all those forbidden and outlawed things, these orderly young creatures in their long blessed uniforms, embellished by the prim ornaments collets and cuffs that they laundered themselves in the bountiful, outside old days, without which they could, they murmured, Dorothea's prayers and hours of tenth newest dance steps, of popular songs, of the latest outrageous of between'n, of Bess and Joe, of Hollywood and Beach. While they studied French lyrics and read essays entitled "My Ambition", they knew well the dramatic story of their pale man, was their real story, and that Blackbeard was their hero, and only ambition. Every girl at Saint Dorothea's by the age of fourteen or older knew just where she intended to spend her honeymoon, and several of them, as their deficiencies on the subject of fullness, had already confided Blackbeard in a prospective husband.

So that Cherry, formally discharged from the books as "Charity Marshbanks," with the date of her admission and her thirteen years' residence at the convent entered upon a formidable paragraph, was not so entirely unprepared for the strange life that the world as her custodians might have fancied her to be.

At Sterling, Cherry wore the convent uniform of black serge and white collar, and a round hat like a pancake, which basked turned upside down. That hat dated back some ten years, but it was a hat, and that was all that girls from Saint Dorothea's knew about hats. Her coat was a stout black-dyed garment that had come to the convent with a trishful of other clothes when Mrs. Peter Walsh had been suddenly widowed.

Black cotton gloves, black lisle stockings, black lisle shoes, a black purse with her handkerchief and rosary in it, and a new streamer black patent-leather suitcase stuffed to bursting, and worn gray at the corners and ends, completed her outfit. But Cherry's youth and shining hair did something even for this dingy equipment, and her varied silky hair, which had so fretfully ering a variety of shades of gold and tan and brown in it, framed a radiant face.

Mother Superior had given her ten dollars for pastry for example of the rest, had worried not at all about her future, and had satisfied herself with the carefully planned routine of the convent.

CBL, CKOC-NBC—Bergen-McCarthy
CFRB—Gabriel Heatter's account, who brought you here—was very definite that it had been her wish to put you with us, Mrs. Haskell—Emma doesn't remember, but you will see her now—had known a fine woman who became one of Saint Dorothea's sisters, and through her she knew exactly the character of our work".

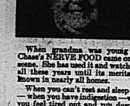
"I remember Emma", Cherry had stammered, almost faint with the final excitement, "I remember! I've been any especial stigma attached to her name there; she might have been one of the Vicar's parish girls! She had fixed widened eyes, in a pallid face, upon Mother Superior But disappointingly, there had seemed to be nothing more to add to this. The nun had merely made her a parting gift, a medal that had been blessed in Rome, and had taken her downstairs for final farewells.

Sister Fabian and Sister Ourvase were both busy with the train. They did not want any sipper; they had the three births made up immediately, and Cherry left them to the little window seat in the empty length of the car and sat, breathless, watching the landscape flying by.

She jumped when old Dr. O'Connor touched her arm, realized that she was hungry, went with him through the swaying train to the dining car and was so rapt over its high and warmth and the bewildering obligation of ordering something from the menu for the first time in her life that she had only faint cuts and honey were all she could murmur when the waiter politely pointed his pencil over the order blank.

Both little nuns were tucked up in bed when she cautiously entered the drawing room, and the doctor was lounge, and slept the sleep of youth and fatigue in his narrow boundaries. Breakfast was another affair; she was smoking coffee, such buttered toast—and the long day that dragged for almost everyone else, yet lured was too short for her.

But at a quarter past seven o'clock—for the train was late when they descended somewhat grimly and jaded at the Oakland Mole, all her nervous excitement and expectation had disappeared. She was pale, too much absorbed in her own emotions to notice the effect of her hat and her luggage upon the Marshbanks party. A young French chauffeur, she was soon identified by the worried Sisters, and Cherry, Mrs. Judson Marshbanks and a nice middle-aged woman named Miss Mabel Hunt, the nuns went their way, and Cherry, leaning from the window of the magnificent car, saw for the first time the diamond-dust of the great bridge, the further flare of the San Mateo open rising above the dark, troubled waters, the long, low hills of San Francisco's towered hills silhouetted against a pearly and angry sky.



Mary, the housemaid, who had been sent to meet her, was really, Cherry guessed, about Amy's age, Mabel who had two almost grown boys. But she was already a member of the household, she said good humoredly, and Miss Cherry had better call her Jo.

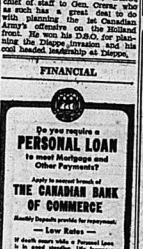
Dino Grandi Says Mussolini's Hatred of Hitler Became Mania

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—Count Dino Grandi, in a copyright article in this week's Life magazine, places the entire blame for Italian Premier Hitler's ill-fated alliance with Germany squarely on Mussolini, who, according to Grandi, is constantly declaiming for himself a constant effort to preserve peace.

Yet, despite his unyielding determination to avoid war, Grandi says, Mussolini hated Hitler to the point that he was a rival for world power.

Grandi, the dean of Mussolini's highest-ranking associates to escape the Fascist dictator, says Mussolini July 25, 1943, when Grandi and a majority of Mussolini "tried in vain to make him that his duty as a patriot was to quit, to give up the dictatorship, volunteer and to let the nation survive its will."

Grandi warned Mussolini he would repeat all he had said in the session before the Grand Council.



Before going to the council meeting, Grandi made his will, wrote to his wife and children and arranged for the King to be informed of the session.

Grandi read the text of the resolution and told the council, he says, that "the Italian people are fighting for Mussolini on the day when he first began to betray Italy."

Grandi's supporters finally forced the resolution to a vote. At 3 a. m. Sunday:

"Nineteen — for. Seven — against. One — Grandi abstaining."

Mussolini then was passed on Fascist dictatorship."

Brig. Churchill Mann, D.S.O., chief of staff to Gen. Crerar, who was killed in a plane crash in 1944 with planning the 1st Canadian Army's offensive on the Continent. He won his D.S.O. for planning the Dieppe invasion and his cool headed leadership at Dieppe.

REPORT HITLER HAS BUILT ALPINE FORTRESS

The Hitler gang, according to recurring news dispatches, has readied for use a "Last fortress of the Nazis" where Himmler, Goering, Goebbels and other henchmen who dare not surrender can hold-out for years after their followers stage a fighting retreat. The area of this fortress, with its centre in the Bavarian Alps, is shown on the above map. The Alpine citadel is, roughly, bounded by Munich, Vienna, Trieste and Milan. The heart of this "Nazi redoubt" comprises the Italian and Austrian reported storage places.

CHURCHILL AND ROOSEVELT CONFER WITH ARAB STATES

Churchill and Roosevelt have been conferring with the rulers of outstanding Arab states and there are rumors that one topic under discussion might have been the formation of a single Arab state and a separate Jewish state comprising most of Palestine. The map shows the Moslem world, a great belt of states sprawling through the Near East and Asia Minor with a total population of some 80,000,000. Since the rise of the Turkish republic Islam has been on the march toward progress. Churchill and Roosevelt are known to have conferred recently with the rulers of Egypt, Ethiopia, Saudi Arabia and the Syrian republic.

War's Biggest Attack Staged On Berlin

1,200 U.S. Heavies Form Procession 150 Miles Long

Bombs Dropped Through Clouds on Rail Targets

London, Feb. 26 (CP)— In the biggest air attack ever made on Berlin, more than 1,200 United States heavy bombers dropped 3,000 tons of explosives and fire bombs into the heart of the city during the noon hour today.

More than 500,000 small incendiary bombs were showered upon the refugee-crowded capital, with three railway stations—Schlesischer, Alexanderplatz and Berlin North—as the main targets. All three are within two miles of the Air Ministry building in the middle of the city.

The bombers were guarded over the target by 700 long-range fighters.

The first announcement by United States strategic air force headquarters said the attack was directed against railway targets and none of the bombs were dropped through clouds.

Larger Than Any U.S. Raid

The German Agency D.N.B. in an early afternoon broadcast said a 150-mile-long train of bombers was still approaching the city while the first formations already had left the capital.

Starting at 10 a.m. German broadcasts repeatedly reported the movements of large bomber formations attacking the Reich for the 146th consecutive day.

R.A.F. Mosquitos also bombed Erfurt, important railway junction southwest of Leipzig while other planes attacked the Reich for the 146th consecutive day.

Having listed these two exceptions, the W.M.C. order added bluntly:

"No exemptions of any other character will be made."

That extinguished the hopes of some shipbuilding prospects that the scope of the ban might be narrowed before the curfew hour might be set at 1 a.m. instead of midnight.

W.M.C. went to further lengths to make the ban airtight by listing specifically those not covered by the broadcast by Byrnes as "other similar establishments." These included shooting galleries, bowling alleys and pool establishments; amusement parks, such as carnivals; circuses; coin-operated amusement device parlors; skating and roller skating rinks; entertainments or activity of any county and other clubs; dance schools and studios, and gambling establishments.

Mr. Byrnes' list also covered by name only night clubs, sports events, theatres, race halls, road houses, saloons and bars.

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—Heavy bombers of the U.S. 14th Air Force sank two Japanese vessels yesterday in the South China Sea, it was announced today by the navy department.

U.S. CURFEW RINGS FOR NIGHT SPOTS

Midnight Closing of Entertainment Resorts Effective at Midnight

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

Washington, Feb. 26 — (AP)— Wee-hour fun in the United States' night-spots is at an end — for an indefinite period.

Although rumblings of protest continued from some amusement place operators, indications are the government's request for midnight closing of entertainment establishments, beginning tonight, will meet with general compliance. Nowhere was dissent from Mayor F. H. LaGuardia that some unspecified "adjustments' may be made there this week.

Entertainment for military personnel may be continued beyond midnight, but it must be sponsored by "responsible agencies," and be on a "non-profit basis."

The only other easing of the edict issued by the War Mobilizer, James F. Byrnes, allows restaurants customarily open all night for serving food to continue on that basis, but not any of these places which serve liquor or in which a skeleton must call a halt to that part of their business at midnight.

Having listed these two exceptions, the W.M.C. order added bluntly:

"No exemptions of any other character will be made."

That extinguished the hopes of some shipbuilding prospects that the scope of the ban might be narrowed before the curfew hour might be set at 1 a.m. instead of midnight.

Sharp Curtailment in U.S. Civilian Food Supplies Seen at Capital

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Feb. 26 (CP)— Washington officials foresee a sharp curtailment in United States civilian food supplies, particularly meats, because of the growing demands of the forces in the field.

There have been signs warning from a number of sources, official and otherwise, but it is believed the situation will be much more severe than generally anticipated.

Successful operations in the field accentuate the shortages and collapse of Germany will add tremendously to the problem because it lifts the burden of feeding the German population will, for a time, fall almost entirely upon the conquering armies, officials say.

For other Pacific operations huge stock pile have to be built up and maintained and this takes more and more supplies as the lines are ravaged areas.

extended toward Japan and the Chinese mainland.

Ships are in short supply at present through the Pacific bases to the Asiatic theatre and always be kept full so there will never be any let up in the flow of necessities.

The story is true of the operations in other theatres but there are other factors, not affected by destruction of utilities as the defeated Germany is subjugated. It is to be aware of prisoners, who at once create additional drain upon available food supplies.

This the successes of the Allied forces make certain to bring some belt tightening on the home front both in the United States and Canada, even if only to keep the millions of war victims, friendly and enemy alike, on a bare subsistence diet, until there is an approach to normal production in the

CANADIANS OPEN NEW ATTACK ON NORTHERN SECTOR

Advance 1½ Miles In First Three Hours To Win Commanding Slope Near Calcar

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the 1st Canadian Army in Germany, Feb. 26 — (CP Cable) — Two hours before dawn Canadian infantry and tanks opened a new attack on the northern sector of the western front southwest of Calcar, advancing 1½ miles in the first three hours to win a commanding slope south of the stoutly-defended communications centre.

Opposition was not particularly strong as the attack got under way and Canadian casualties were light.

The attack began at 4:30 a. m. after a 45-minute artillery barrage against a slope which Calcar was captured in the first thrust.

Fifty minutes after the bombardment started the Germans threw a counter-attack against Canadian troops, but it was beaten off with mortar and French-speaking Quebec infantry direct south of Calcar on schedule.

Infantry carried by armored kangaroos and Canadian tanks supported the attack on the left flank. The attack on the right flank were on the road to Calcar.

Considerable numbers of prisoners were taken by the Canadians who were opposed by some crack German troops, including paratroopers and Hitler Youth, who fought fanatically, fought in the Ardennes.

Before the Canadian attack went forward, British troops under Gen. Horrocks captured Asperden, south of Goch. The town of Robbenhof has been captured and there was fighting in Hekkens, on the Asperden-Goch towns and nearing Weese.

The western British advance was 1,500 yards. Opposition on the Goch-Weese front which had been extremely stiff, appeared to be slackened somewhat.

The new assault swelled the total of prisoners, which had reached 12,000 by the morning.

14,000 CONTINUE STRIKE

Detroit, Feb. 26 (AP) — An estimated 14,000 employes of the Chrysler Corporation's Dodge main plants continued their 3-day strike today, as negotiations for the declared continuance of the walkout "will be guided by the national situation."

101,000 Chrysler employees in Detroit are involved.

The strikers, members of Dodge Local 3, United Auto Workers (CIO) struck Wednesday in protest against the War Labor Board and international officers of the U.A.W. on Sunday and the Local's officers were summoned to a Regional War Labor Board "now case" scheduling today.

Churchill Confers With G. Bidault

London, Feb. 26 — (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill and the French Foreign Minister, George Bidault, today opened preliminary talks aimed at cementing an Anglo-French alliance.

French economic needs, particularly for food and clothing, are another main topic.

M. Bidault is understood to have given Mr. Churchill the French reaction to the Big Three policy blueprinted at Yalta, and Mr. Churchill is expected to explain how France fits into those plans.

TOKYO TARGETS GIVEN POUNDING ALL DAY SUNDAY

Wave After Wave of Carrier-Based Planes and Superforts Used

Guam, Feb. 26 — (AP) — Industrial targets in the Tokyo area, and elsewhere on Japan's main island of Honshu took a powerful one-two punch yesterday as wave after wave of American carrier-based planes roared over followed by more than 200 Superfortresses from B29 fleet ever assembled.

A communique today added no further mention of the carrier strike culminating on the same afternoon which followed the U. S. 5th Fleet's two-day carrier smash against Tokyo Feb. 16-17.

Striking from the south advance was 1,200 yards. Opposition on the Goch-Weese front which had been extremely stiff, appeared to be slackened somewhat.

The new assault swelled the total of prisoners, which had reached 12,000 by the morning.

DAMAGE WAS DONE

Damage was done to airfields, military installations and transportation facilities in the Tokyo area, Nagoya, Tokyo said, adding "bombs started fires in various sections but "they were almost entirely quelled by nightfall."

Bombs fell in an area adjacent to the Imperial palace at the gates of Omiya Palace, residence of the Empress Dowager Sadako and the Princess of the Imperial Blather, the Japanese said.

Premier Kuniaki Koiso made a second call on Emperor Hirohito today on behalf of the cabinet, this time to "offer our profound apologies for the unforgivable negligence in the approach of danger to his person.

During Admiral Raymond Spruance's first 5th Fleet airfields against Tokyo on U. S. surface unit closed to within 10 miles of the Japanese mainland, Robert Geiger, Associated Press war correspondent, said a destroyer rescued a navy airman from the Bay of Tokyo and off Tokyo's harbor while large units of the fleet came closer than 100 miles of the Japanese mainland to destroy Japanese picket boats.

Tokyo radio gave indications the capital was about to receive its 3rd consecutive day-time U.S. broadcast: an air warning with broadcast "enemy bombers" had penetrated the Shizuoka-Nagoya area and were flying toward Tokyo. There was no confirmation.

British Within Sight of Pagoda Tops of Mandalay

On the Burma Front, Feb. 26 — (Reuters) — Fourteenth Army patrols today were within sight of the pagoda tops of Mandalay, capital of northern Burma.

The town was still hidden from the main body of the Allied troops by hills, in which units of Japanese made the most of the natural defensive advantages.

Kandy, Ceylon, Southeast Command Headquarters announced Japanese troops have suffered severe casualties in abortive attempts to dislodge Indian units from bridgeheads on the north bank of the Irrawaddy River, southwest of Mandalay.

Meanwhile, Allied troops have cleared the Japanese from the east bank of the Irrawaddy before the bridge-building engineers could complete their bridgehead, 40 miles north of Mandalay, and are "satisfactorily continuing" their drive southward, a communique said.

EGYPT'S PREMIER IS ASSASSINATED IN CHAMBER

More than 30 persons were arrested yesterday by police investigators, including two who were said to have been standing near the spot where the Premier was shot down in the Chamber of Deputies Saturday after reading a decree by the King declaring war on the Axis.

The majority of the arrests, however, were merely precautionary, police said. The actual assassin was identified as a 22-year-old Egyptian lawyer who was interned early in the war for alleged pro-German activities.

A State funeral for Ahmed Maher Pasha is planned.

MANILA CONQUEST COMPLETED BUT SNIPING GOES ON

Corregidor Fortress Shaken by Enemy Marines Committing Mass Suicide

Manila, Feb. 26 — (AP) Officially the battle is over, but Manila rumbled today as American artillery blasted Japanese who used a surrender flag to improve their positions in the two buildings they still hold.

At the entrance of Manila Bay, Corregidor fortress was shaken anew by underground explosions touched off by enemy marines committing mass suicide.

Last night loud speakers blared a final warning to Japanese in Manila's agricultural and finance buildings to "surrender, commit suicide or be killed."

The answered with sniper fire in the direction of the loud speakers. When the warning voice gave the enemy 30 minutes to evacuate, Lieut. Richard K. Bishop of East Brady, Pa., said, some Japanese dashed from the building and divided into a defence position at its base, using the immunity period to improve their position.

Dead Crowd Cemetery

There was no mention in today's communique of action in Manila. Saturday it was announced American troops had overwhelmed the enemy's final position in south Manila's ancient Intramuros and destroyed the last garrison.

More than 12,000 Japanese bodies already big been counted.

U.S.N.R. Officer Says Russian-Bound Convoy Given Orders To Scatter

By HARRY C. NASH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 26 — (AP) — The Navy Department Saturday removed its censorship from a statement made by Associated Press by an officer that a Murmansk-bound convoy was instructed by its escort to scatter when it was attacked by Heinkels, Tirpitz and 23 other war ships were approaching.

The British Admiralty earlier yesterday had described as "entirely without foundation" a report made this week of Merchant Marine Seaman Frank Hewlett, Jr., of Norfolk, Va., that several ships had been sunk, and that:

"At the end of the fifth day our escort radioed us to scatter because the Tirpitz and 23 other war ships were heading for our convoy."

(This was the paragraph which was deleted by navy censors when the story was submitted for review.)

After the convoy dispersed, Hewlett said, "We heard radio messages from many ships that they were being sunk..."

Great Ruhr Arsenal Being Approached From Two Sides

25 or More Towns Swept Up In Swift Overnight Drive

By JAMES M. LONG
(AP Staff Writer)

Paris, Feb. 26 — (AP) — Two American Armies spread five miles across the Rhine Valley today in tanks and on foot to within 13 miles of Cologne and, within six miles of the great Ruhr arsenal and its border city of Muenchen Gladbach.

Sweeping up 25 or more towns, the United States 9th and 1st Armies closed within three miles of the Erft River — last water barrier before the sprawling Prussian metropolis of Cologne — and moved within 19 miles southwest of Duesseldorf, administrative centre of the Ruhr.

The armored thrust threatened to cut in two a 225-mile-long coastal corridor the Germans hold from south of Stettin to Libau, in what Prussia, Hammerstein is 11 miles southeast of Stettin.

At the western end of the corridor, the Russians also forced the Germans to retreat Northward from captured Arnswalde to a line along the Ihna river, which the Germans admitted 16 a broad-cast.

The Ihna runs through Stargard and Pyritz, 25 and 35 miles south of Stettin. Neustettin, important communications centre in northeastern Pomerania, is 50 miles east and slightly north of Stettin.

The reaching of the Hammerstein area by the Russians would represent a 10-mile gain beyond Schlawe, capture of which the Russians announced last night. The stronghold of Preusisch-Friedland, 20 miles to the Soviet drive, Moscow said.

Berlin said more than 80,000 men were thrown into the new Russian assaults, reaffirmed which already have struck to within 90 miles of the Baltic coast and have overrun a 35-mile stretch of the Berlin-Danzig highway.

The drive, launched in the area southwest of Chojnice, gained more than a mile yesterday, toppled the town of Rischofswalde, 10 miles to the east of the super highway, and at the same time extended a section of the Berlin-Stettin Danzig railway, Moscow announced.

CITY CURBSIDE DRAINS BEING CLEARED

City curbside drains are gradually being cleared of ice and snow, the initial step of deep snow in preparation for carrying away surface water when, in the matter of a week or so may be coming down local streets. Employees of the local public works department are now clearing the curbside drains and gutters of snow.

Throughout the winter months drains and sewers are kept clear with snow to prevent them freezing but with the first evidences of spring these are cleared that melting snow and surface water may readily escape.

THREE TEEN-AGED LADS LEAVE HOME

Kingston police are seeking the whereabouts of three teen-aged lads who ran away from their homes in the city three days each end. They are Leo Anson, 17, John Griffin, 12, and Harrison Neal, age 13. As they will double as travel together police are of the opinion the trio will be soon found and returned home.

THREE INEBRIATES RUN AFOUL OF LAW

City police here were asked to assist in the successful recovery of a 1940 model Studebaker sedan stolen from Brockville over the week-end. The vehicle carried Ontario licence plate number J-3940 when taken.

Otherwise in police circles a trio of inebriates, who had imbibed freely, but not wisely, but too well at the long arm of the law and today pay the penitential less and costly tax after admitting to drunk charges. Thus they will not have to appear in police court Tuesday.

TWO PERSONS SUSTAIN INJURIES

Two persons sustained injuries on East Dundas Street, Sunday evening, as the result of a car-truck collision at Dundas Mills Fringe, 13 Roswell Street, and Ralph Denison, Napanee, and driver of the motor car received medical aid at the nearby Belleville General Hospital. Mr. Fringe suffered a laceration over the left eye and complained of chest injuries, while Denison was cut on the nose, both injuries being the result of flying glass from a broken windshield.

Police investigated and found a large transport was being driven westerly by Gordon Thomson, Toronto, and had sideswiped a car driven by Mrs. Jack Anderson, Napanee. Information received Bell had passed a parked car and on meeting the Denison car, when suddenly the trailer portion of the transport skidded sideways and struck the Denison car with considerable force, the radiator, headlight, left front tire, windshield and even the battery of the new car were all damaged as the result of the impact.

RESIDENTS COMPLAIN ABOUT 'SLPASH' DRIVERS

Again it is the season when pedestrians become most annoyed when splashed by passing motor as the result of motor vehicles being driven over water-covered city streets at excessive rates of speed. Over the week-end police received several complaints regarding these "splash-and-run" drivers. A good policy to avoid such annoyance in conditions is to have motorists slow down when approaching water areas on the streets. One irritated citizen complained that considerable muddy water had been splashed so high it had ruined the clothing in the baby carriage as well as he and his wife were taking their baby for an airing yesterday.

These Were The Days

English newspapers of 1944 tell a mouth watering story of peace and plenty when the nearest war was a minor sitting in Moscow.

The English gentry, who favored their refreshments in liquid form had no difficulty in meeting the demands. They could get "dozens" and "quarts" of Port, 3 dozens of Champagne, one Marsala, one French and one Spanish Jamaica rum, three gins and one whisky.

Or tea. "Gunters real Turtle Soup from Hoodless" was among the cases at $2.50 each, containing sufficient tins for "Twelve comprising entire parts of the turtle."

Costly silks in those days sold for cents the yard. Best muslins and veil priced at 12 cents the yd. On Christmas Eve, servants were invited to visit "Mr. Jack's sales rooms in Wilton Crescent, London, to sample and taste from a stall at the mart a variety of 60 dozens of Old Brandy, Champagne and Claret" which he was offering for sale.

Dinner-up to the midget size: Viejo de Xeres could be bought in cases of three dozens $8.80 the case and "carriage to any station in England." Sample bottles were $1 while Hennessy Three Star Brandy matured in wood was supplied in quantities of 50 dozen bottles in 3 dozen cases at $3.50 the gallon.

Champagne Very Cheap

Even cheaper from the "celebrated vineyards of Epernay" came the Mo. Chandon at $3.50 the case of three dozens for $8 the case.

The Old Cheshire Cheese of Tooley Street offered Plymouth Gin "of the same strength as at the distillery." Whisky matured in wood was sold in the bottle while brandy sold for 4.50 the gallon.

For the ladies there were Brook's celebrated home-made British wines — ginger, sider, three varieties of sloe and red currant at $4 a dozen bottles. Tea, black or green brought Staple meats were 13 cents the pound, new Russian or tongues 18 cents a dozen and available were reindeer, Canadian and West Australia hams. No mention of turkeys is made.

Dessert fruits from Tangsby's included French prunes, plums, Normandy Pippins, Adels and Pearls and East India preserved ginger and limes. From Jamaica came Jamaica rum, three qts. and one sextuple qt. at $5.50.

Peter A. Mabee Dies at 102 At Bloomfield

Peter Addison Mabee, 102, of Bloomfield, oldest resident of Eastern Ontario, died Friday night after a brief illness. He had been in good health up until a few weeks ago. He was 102 years of age Oct. 22, 1944. For some years his wife and he were Ontario's oldest married couple. She died shortly before they marked their 77th wedding anniversary in 1940, at the age of 101.

Mr. Mabee was of United Empire Loyalist stock. While working in New York as a lad of 20, he decided to return to Canada and get married. He did so, bought a farm and married Mary Hughes. They lived on the farm where Peter was born and his only cabin home. They later went to New York to reside, and were there during the Civil War. Mr. Mabee narrowly escaped being struck by a stray bullet during the Civil War disorders.

They later returned to Canada and settled in the village of Odessa, where they resided for 53 years. Mr. Mabee conducted a general store in Odessa, and was active in community life. He retired from active business over 20 years ago and took up residence in the Bloomfield district.

Clear City Streets Of Deep Icy Ruts With Bulldozers

Action of the local public works department in having no stone unturned to clear the streets of deep icy ruts which have been the bane of motorists is drawing much favorable comment from Belleville and district residents.

Since Friday noon the bulldozer rented from the Diamond Construction company has been in almost continual operation clearing ruts from the streets, while on Sunday a second bulldozer rented from the McPhaul Construction Company got into action. Yesterday morning at 10 o'clock the two machines were working on Dundas Street, Front Street and Bridge Street, while on Sunday they were busy on Coleman Street, Victoria Avenue, Bridge Street and Dundas Street.

Extensive depth of snow on streets in the residential sections of the city had become increasingly troublesome with the thaw of last Thursday and Friday, when wheels dropped through to make turning out ruts almost impossible. Following the passing of the bulldozer, however, motorists are forced to get out their shovels to clear driveways.

Clearing of ruts from the streets is being carried out under direction of the city engineer's department by authorization from Aldermen F. W. Wills and Maynard Pudwell, works, and Mayor Frank Pudwell.

He urged the class to square their shoulders and firmly say no when asked to do wrong. The speaker told of several instances where he had to make decisions, have left a clear message to the young people and then "My word is good man." He impressed upon his hearers that Jesu is still dependable in every day life and to cast on His great work and to use the Bible as a "guide book and not a Bible" in everyday life.

TRENTON

First Paratrooper To See Active Service Home

Trenton, Feb. 26.—The first paratrooper from Trenton to have seen active service overseas, Private Jack Harrington, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harrington, has returned to Canada aboard the Lady Nelson for the American Paratroops and sent to Rider Island where he spent several months. Following his return from Rider he was given an Allied Forces Service Medal and where he was severely wounded in the Sicily campaign by a Ca-nadian hospital in Italy and later sent to England.

Twice Wounded

Twice wounded, Corporal Clarence Whitney, has returned to Canada, according to word his wife and family here.

A member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment he went overseas in December 1939, with the Canadian Army. He was first wounded during the invasion of Sicily and was mentioned in dispatches as saying the Canadian snipers as "deadly". He was one of the first to land on Sicily and Italy. He was wounded a second time and was sent back to hospital in England.

Like most of the lads returning at this time, Corporal Whitney was sorry not to be with the Regiment but is overjoyed at again being at home with his wife and children.

Pte. Carter Home

Sgt.-Lieutenant T. F. (Jerry) LeClair, son of Mr. James LeClerc, 95 Queen Street, is home on leave from the Canadian Merchant Navy. A member of a Canadian Indian oil tanker crew he has been on convoy duty for the past two years visiting many ports including Smyrna, Haifi, Domino Republic, Panama and Curacao, Dutch West Indies and two zons live in Belleville.

Recently Jerry and his crew had an exciting experience at Portland, Maine, when their tanker was ordered to the rescue of an American ship which had been torpedoed and caged in a cyclone. The tanker pulled alongside the stricken ship for 14 hours until the storm had passed and relief came from a U.S. Navy tug.

The work of the Merchant Marine, Jerry says, is the toughest job far from easy and he urged that more aid do sustain the lads on the gas as it is mighty hard to get in the ports.

Varies.

The class members then served delicious refreshments.

Votes of thanks were tendered to various folk who had helped to make the evening a success and those in attendance were all of one accord that it had been a grand event.

The British Admiralty, elaborating on earlier denial that British escort ships had been withdrawn from Murmansk-run convoy to enemy of announced tonight that 91.6 per cent of supplies shipped over the far north route in the last three months did reach their port, he declared safely to Russia.

Most of the vast amount of supplies was conveyed by British escorts, said the Admiralty statement, issued in the result of a published interview with merchant seaman Jack Jacobson, Baltimore, Md., who said the British escort's were withdrawn from a convoy in the summer of 1942 to protect tanker ships, and that 34 merchant vessels were lost by submarine and air attack.

The Admiralty said 24 merchant ships were lost from 36 in the convoy. Three being sunk by torpedo-bombers before the convoy broke up.

The convoy was ordered to scatter, the Admiralty explained, when an attack by enemy surface ships, including the battleship Tirpitz and cruiser Admiral Hipper, seemed imminent.

Drummondville, Que. Residents Clash With Provost Corps, Police

Drummondville, Que., Feb. 26—(CP)—This centre of 10,500 persons 90 miles east of Montreal, Canadian guest today, following a wild rioting morning melee in which residents clashed with draft-dodgers seeking Provost Corps men and Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Estimates of the crowd participating in the trouble ran as high as 2,000 although there was no way of determining the precise figure as the affair was at its height the crowds making up the crowd were spectators or combined their patriotic pasting to vocal efforts.

Nevertheless, so many residents did take an active part that at one time in the two-hour mixup an alert was sent to Lord Shaftesbury military camp, 50 miles away, to prepare to lend assistance. The trouble died out soon afterwards, however.

When it was all over, the joint police force, estimated variously at from 30 to 300 men, had taken 60 men into the temporary custody for questioning. Most had later released all but eight who were taken to Montreal. Eventually another three were released after proving that their business premises were in order. Of the five remaining, one was cleared as an army deserter, three others face charges of refusing to report for military service and a fourth that of failing to apply for and to possess a National Registration card.

In addition, 35 men were taken into custody at various times during the melee for obstructing police officers, but all were eventually released after police had taken them to the building they used as headquarters.

Nearly 100 Injured

Estimates of the number injured ranged as high as 100, but no accurate check was possible because residents who suffered cuts and bruises treated them at home and police did not reveal their number.

That it was known, however, that two R.C.M.P. officers required hospital treatment, as did a Provost Corps man who suffered a deep head wound requiring seven stitches to close.

Scores of others, both residents and police, suffered a variety of injuries from clubs, fists, stones and chunks of ice from the streets. The battle was between residents and the military police. Drummondville city police took no part in the roughup but later they stood guard around overturned R.C.M.P. cars when armed men roving the streets wanted to throw matches into puddles of gasoline.

Cars Overturned

The police conducting the check-up on draft-dodgers and military delinquents came by truck from Montreal, in one of a series of such roundups, and started in Montreal 10 days ago. In all, four R.C.M.P. cars were overturned and a dozen army trucks suffered broken windshields or other damage.

Trouble was brewing from the first, when police started their checkup in rooming houses, poolrooms and a basement drinking club. As they went from place to place, picking up about a dozen men at once, they were followed by a crowd which later had an increasing number of adults, both male and female.

Increased jostling between police and the crowd reached a climax in front of a downtown theatre when an army jeep careened close to an estimated 1,500 residents. Apparently some thought the intention was to run them down and large chunks of ice began flying with increasing regularity until the battle spread over a seven-block area.

Ice Forms Major Weapon.

Recently-broken ice formed the major weapon of the crowd throughout the melee, although the occasional bottle also went sailing in the direction of police. On roofs-top above, other participants rained down ice on residents and police alike. Damaged Provost Corps trucks finally came away when police had for a time continued to halt pedestrians and motor cars to inspect credentials and search for draft-dodgers.

Mounted Police, constables then formed in a solid block and moved away on foot, several times driving the crowd back at the crowd to halt them until headquarters could be reached. There a few windows were broken by missiles and the four cars outside were overturned. Finally, order was dispersed around 2.30 a.m. and the situation has remained quiet since then.

Newspapermen Abused

Three newspapermen who were following the course of the check-up were set upon as "stool pigeons" at one point during the disorders, suffered bumps and bruises, while Gerard Lemire, Beaton Glen suffered a possible fractured nose. He was rescued by an unidentified French-Canadian resident who lifted him over his head and carried him out of the melee after he had been knocked to the ground.

Drummondville natives recalled a similar melee but in a smaller degree during a strike at a silk mill here three years ago, while a group of some 30 youths "rescued" an alleged deserter detained by a small party of Provost Corps men three weeks ago. An overall charge of dynamite was set off under a culvert on a road leading to a school house being used for national registration purposes in 1940.

Capture of Iwo Jima's Second Airstrip Imminent

Guam, Feb. 26—(AP)—Capture of Iwo Jima's second airfield, in the centre of the strategic little island was imminent today as three Marine divisions drove north against considerable air support in an intensified push.

The bloody fight of the Pacific war went into its second month as the Americans holding almost half the island, 750 miles south of Tokyo, and making slow but steady progress northward.

The Marines, already on the main airfield in the southern part of Iwo, captured the east-west runway of the two fighter field (Motoyama No. 2) late yesterday and developed two-thirds of the north-south runway after a full day of heavy fighting.

Their assault followed a preliminary bombardment by artillery and warship battleships. Their planes and Marianas-based heavy bombers gave close support to the ground forces.

This was the first airfield in Japanese hands. A third field, in the southern part of the island, is under construction but far from completion. The only airdrome long enough to accommodate bombers, Motoyama No. 1, was overrun the day after the invasion.

16-Foot Cake Cut At Anniversary

Long Beach, Calif., Feb. 26.—(AP)—A 16-foot cake will be cut here tonight at an anniversary celebration for 14,000 naval dry-dock employes. It is the cake to end all cakes, wants the recipe. It contains such items as 500 pounds of sugar, 1,200 pounds of flour, 30 cases of eggs and 120 pounds of margarine. Allow for a finishing touch—500 pounds of frosting. Baking was done in sections.

PRISONERS ON THEIR OWN SOIL

NOW ITS GERMANY'S TURN TO SUFFER

The Nazis who laid waste so many countries in their drive on Europe are now reeling a taste of their own medicine. They are in retreat and are lucky to lay waste their own land in an attempt to halt the Allied advance. Here is a dash within the borders of the Fatherland which the Nazis have broken down in an attempt to slow down Canadians. But their effort failed.—(Canadian Army Overseas Photo.)

GREAT RUHR

down by the Canadians was over, but were thrown back. The Canadians occupied a 1,500 square mile area without much difficulty, while farther south the enemy had pushed southeast of Goch toward Kleve.

South of the Cologne plain, the American 3rd Army made advances of seven miles which carried the 84th Armored Division to the Rhine river in the vicinity of the fortified centre of Bitburg. A dozen or more towns fell to Gen. Gaffey's Corps. Patton's troops sweeping toward Koblenz on the middle Rhine.

North of the Cologne plain, Field Marshal Montgomery intensified his attacks behind the breaching dispersed Roer and moved the 1st Canadian Army within 1,000 yards of the vital storage-shipping town of Geldern, two miles from the receding Rhine. There, forces were 46 miles north of the 9th Army flank moving toward the Rhine far and away Germany's most formidable.

The American 7th Army invading the Saar district, moved forward on a second industrial region, widened its front through Germany within sight of the ruins of Saarbrucken, 22,000 Prisoners Taken.

Everywhere on the western front, the destruction of the thinly spread German divisions continued. Prisoners taken by the Canadians passed 21,000. The British and U.S. 1st Army which took Dueren, second largest German city to fall in the west, captured 2,000 more. The latest armies took more than 8,000 between them and another barrage of prisoners were streaming back. The bag here now duly to 4,700. Prisoners yesterday.

Weather deteriorated somewhat. German resistance on the Cologne plain, laced with old style trenches and dotted with a profusion of fortified towns, slag heaps and villages, was cracking before the more powerful blows of the U.S. 9th and 1st armies.

Through on 22-mile Breach.

The 3rd army in the centre was clear through a 23-mile-wide breach in the Siegfried line and fighting in other parts of the west wall beyond Saarburg.

The German, backed up into the outer defenses of the great but modernized city of Lower Rhine, failed to execute a single important counter-attack yesterday.

Ninth army veterans, braving costly and delaying minefields, fought through to within 10 miles of 88-millimetre guns toward the southern outskirts of Krefeld (pop. 6,000) in a dash toward the Ruhr.

Among the towns captured was Uerdingen, four miles from the Rhine, 12 miles west of Cologne and 26 miles inside Germany. Others toppled were Gusten, Hasselweiler, Spiel, Granterath, Hoverath, Heiserath, Tristel, Morsel, Munix, Merch, Wiedel, Kuttenhoven, Mersenich, Elin, Binsfeld, Spichten and Kreuzau.

Rail Movements Spotted

As the Allied offensive ground deeper into the vitals of the German heavy German rail and road movements were reported moving into the Rhine, moving north toward impended Cologne. Some great communications and industrial centres almost entirely on the west bank of the Rhine and it is doubly important to the attack. Duesseldorf is on that bank.

The Germans are known to have an armored reserve west of the Rhine to guard the approaches to the Ruhr. This force of Skorzeny, Hitler or able — to get into the fight. The Allies have been virtually indispensable to the German war machine. The Ruhr and British estimates were that 75 per cent of the enemy war industries were located in its panhandle.

The 4th Armored Division of the 3rd Army reached the outskirts of Irrings of the Prueen River in its 7-mile advance east of the Moselle. The division took 1,000 prisoners and seized large stores of booty including many tanks, artillery pieces and wagons.

Before crossing the Pruem anew, the 4th Armored Division captured Irrhoven, Irrel, Ernzen and Minden and cleared Weidingen, Attscheid, Dudweiler and Hamm, all clustered seven miles west of Bitburg.

Patton Using 19 Divisions

Lt.-Gen. Patton, 3rd Army Commander, had committed at least 19 of his divisions, close to 150,000 men, to the battle in the centre. Four of the divisions were armored.

Canadian and British troops in the Goch-Calcar area in the north advanced on the German defence line under a creeping artillery barrage. Infantry then moved across the Calcar-Uedem road within two miles of the Ruhr gateway city of Weeze and on Goch from three sides.

Scottish troops advancing south of Goch were deterred mainly by mines, rather than the 10 fine divisions of Col.-Gen. Kurt Student's parachute army, still on the northern front. Many prisoners were taken from the Elite Fenner Lehr Division and from the four parachute divisions opposing the Canadian Army.

Offensive Growing

A dispatch from headquarters of Field Marshal Montgomery, describing the 1st Canadian, British 2nd and U.S. 9th Armies, said the Germans were attempting apparently to gain odds and ends of their badly depleted reserves to counter the American drive on the Cologne Plain, an offensive growing in strength every minute.

R.A.F. pilots said German transport movements were paralized in northern Holland and northwest Germany because of bombings.

RUSSIANS STORM

A Berlin broadcast said German reserves were being moved into the sector, 110 miles northeast of Berlin. Berlin put for Berlin, and a laid Russian communique said that 600 German dead were left on the battlefield, suggesting a grand scale battle was in progress.

Other Red Army forces battling southwest of Koenigsberg, important German naval station, seized six more towns, while farther to the north heavy German counter-attacks on the Samland peninsula were repulsed, Moscow said.

German Air Losses Heavy

The Germans fought desperately in Poland and Germ in an effort to keep open a corridor between Koenigsberg and Pillau, Baltic escape port 30 miles west of the East Prussian capital.

German broadcasts, meanwhile, said Russian bridgeheads across the Neisse River had been crushed southeast of Berlin, where the Russians for several days have been exploding furious artillery attack in the Cottbus — Forst — Guben triangle.

The Germans also asserted their troops had wiped out Russian bridgeheads on the west bank of the Hron river, east of Bratislava and Vienna, capturing positive near Budapest.

Make Few Gains

Units of Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukraine Army made new gains in their stepped-up assault on Breslau, encircled Silesian capital, and now hold nearly 50 blocks of the southern part of the city, the Soviet high command said. Soldiers have placed the size of the besieged German garrison at 50,000 and the Russians say the Nazis have been ordered to fight to the death in the hope of forcing a full-scale assault on Berlin and Dresden.

The Pomeranian drive highlighted the news along the Baltic eastern front. The Germans said it was launched by five Soviet infantry divisions and several tank brigades in an effort to destroy the German northern flank and lessen the danger of a counter-attack on Marshal Zhukov's frontal assault arc cast of Berlin.

Five big explosions were heard Friday night deep under Malinta hill.

Great pieces of tunnel were blown out Wednesday as the fanatical Japanese touched off a subterranean demolition dump.

Gen. MacArthur announced the capture by 6th Infantry troops of San Isidro and Montalban in sweeping drive to clear the foothills east of freed Manila. He reported steady pressure on all fronts and continuing aerial strikes against enemy air, sea and land facilities from Formosa to New Guinea.

ASSEMBLY

Address on The Orient.

As a guest speaker, we had with us in the assembly this week Mr. Faulkner, who delivered a very interesting talk on the changing conditions of the east. He informed the students of the high educational standards in China in spite of the hard conditions imposed by bloody war, and went on to explain that China will deserve and receive more consideration in the future.

Musical Movie

A film entitled "The String Choir" was presented for the entertainment and education of the student body. The feature demonstrated the start and performance of the individual string instruments by several beautiful selections.

BOYS' SPORTS

Basketball

Flash Seniors defeat Stirling.

Last Tuesday after four p.m. our undefeated Senior Boys' Basketball team downed Stirling in a home game by a 44-12 score. The Stirling team seemed lost on our larger floor and also a bit overwhelmed by the large crowd of Collegiate supporters. The Seniors have now only to defeat Picton on their floor on Tuesday to assure themselves of a chance to play off for the C.O.S.S.A. champion ship in Toronto late in March. With this object in view Mr. Townsend has adopted a strenuous training programme, which stresses prime condition as well as a fine passing play which should result in even better games than are at present being registered.

Tuesday next Picton on Monday after supper, where a decisive win for our teams, weather permitting.

COMING EVENTS

(Week of Monday February 26th to Friday March 2nd)

Monday, February 26th—Monday is the big day for the Junior Basketball Teams, as both boys and girls travel to Picton for the game which will decide whether or not they are still in the running.

Tuesday, February 27—The Senior Boys' basketball team play their remaining game in Trenton today. If Trenton should win it would force a playoff. If B.C.I. continues its unbefeated streak then the next stop in Toronto.

Wednesday, February 28—A couple of teams will face-off tonight in the gym. It's Girls vs Boys and should make a game well worth watching.

Thursday, March 1—The Senior Girls go to Trenton in an attempt to play an undefeated season. Trenton is a bad team to play on their home floor and much will depend on the outcome of this game.

At the Hume Arena it's B. C. I. vs. St. Albert and B. C. I. Seniors vs St. Mikes. Both old teams have a fighting chance to take the Junior and Senior Hockey crowns this season, so come out and give them plenty of support.

Friday, March 2—In place of the regular Teen Age Club in the school, the "Kinsmen Follies" will be presented Friday night. Featured are Barbara Dimelly's troop of dancers, the ever-popular B.C.I. quartet, Miss Mabel Smith and that spirited pianist, Bill Nevin. The price of admission — adults 50c and students 25c goes to the Milk for Britain Fund. This is a worthy cause so come and do your bit for the less fortunate children in England.

OUR SCHOOL LIFE

Chapted IV — Grade XII

For some lucky students this is their last year of early to bed, early to rise school routine. I am referring to our Comercial students. As for those who are not taking this course, you still have another year to go. But don't be envious, just think!! (Censored).

For some mysterious reason you seem to have a demoralizing effect on the lab. (or is it you). You just can't understand why the School Board was to send for new equipment after you mixed the two wrong solutions or why nothing happens when you run out of that blue stuff and use water instead.

Besides added subjects you take on added responsibilities. Study hours increase while you watch those pleasure hours slowly disappear from the face of your timetable.

Also you must take on the supervision of various activities as well as enter into many of them yourself. And here's chance to show your brain as well as brawn by not writing half a French paper on your Latin test or vice versa.

In this year you become eligible for the Student's Council and are by this time gaining the respect of some of your teachers.

In spite of the fact that your Geometry has finally succeeded in making your mind work in triangles and circles you are still surviving and this year you are considering the glamour girls and boys of the school.

LETTERS TO SYLVESTER

My Dear Sylvester:

You make me sick. You make me sick. You nauseate me. Why don't you quit?

(Signed) Nauseated.

Dear Nauseated:

If I quit writing these letters I would have to do my French homework on Sunday nights. As for your other allegations, why don't you come over to my place some night, and we will form a mutual admiration society.

The Changes

Germany's manpower has been suffering heavy losses and her armies are being forced back into the Reich and last week the Germans had a further demonstration of proof of Allied power with the mightiest air raids making the Reich shudder and quake with their intensity. The condition of the Nazi "fortress" which, is steadily dwindling and withdrawing its frontiers on east and west, the raid on the city of Berchtesgaden whose railway station and other military targets were struck and the launching of the new western offensive which is believed to be the beginning of the "final round" of the war against Germany are proofs of the mounting of Allied power into the assault for victory.

There was a time when Berchtesgaden looked good to Hitler, when the Rhine and far west of the Rhine also looked good to him and when he had sent his Prussian eagles far east of the Polish border. But all these things have changed. The other day Marshal Stalin could announce that the winter offensive of his Red armies has taken a toll of 1,150,000 men of the Nazi armies and that the equipment in new Germany had lost three thousand planes, 4,500 tanks and 12,000 pieces of artillery. On the western front nearly a million Germans have been taken prisoner since D-Day.

The boasts of Hitler and Goering in the pre-war time had their day. Now those who trusted in their sheer might and in the unpreparedness of the world which they are now the Allies have seen Nazi power lust shattered and disappearing. Now Germans have something that touches them more closely and intimately than the wild 1938 and 1939 rantings of Hitler and those of late date in his pride of might and surprise. Hitler and his gang must fight on for they cannot face the United Nations think of the leaders of the Nazis and all who have been guilty of the most fiendish atrocities. The boasters and ranters are in a trap that will not fail to spring.

So Berchtesgaden and the proud divisions of Hitlerdom and the far-seized lands which the Germans took for temporary borders, hoping to extend them still further until they should rule Europe, Asia, Africa, the South Pacific and America which was their mad dream, are unsubstantial for Berchtesgaden has been shaken and there has been nothing said whether Hitler's hideout was attacked) and his grand divisions with which he opened the war of conquest have been decimated again and again until some of them are but handfuls or divisions of dead and wounded and prisoners.

So has Hitler's power fallen away, melting before the United Nations' strength of heart and resources.

Landing Craft, Human

The SHAEF communique of February 19 announced that the Thirty-Third Corps of the Fourteenth Army has established a bridgehead on the south bank of the Irrawaddy opposite Myinmu, against which the enemy is launching repeated counter-attacks. All have been repulsed after fierce hand-to-hand fighting.

The assault was preceded by a squad of champion swimmers. These were led by an ex-Irish Guardsman, Commando Captain Michael Muldoon of Newcastle who, in the darkness, slipped naked into the Irrawaddy and guiding the sand banks in the middle of the swiftly flowing stream which was half a mile wide, stood breast high in the water, guiding the first wave of United Kingdom, Indian and Gurkha infantry by means of beacons. Captain Muldoon's comrades picked from the toughest men in the corps, included Captain Jock Elder of Dundee, formerly of the Black Watch, and Lieutenant Barry Kimmins of Bristol. Night after night they had rehearsed under the noses of the Japanese once barely escaping the enemy's patrol boats by floating downstream on their backs.

The actual crossing was made on February 12, between Satpangon and Shwepaukpin, villages one hundred miles southwest of the Seventeenth Division's Kyaukmaung bridgehead. The surprise was complete and the initial casualties were only five killed and one drowned. Every kind of craft was soon ferrying backwards and forwards, carrying men, supplies, munitions and bulldozers.

Severe fighting continues, but the losses of the Japanese apparently exceed those of the Thirty-Third Corps in a ratio of seven to one, although several Japanese attacks were of battalion strength. The largest infantry concentration yet assembled in Burma, helped by aircraft spotters, opposed a fair number of Japanese guns. Twelve Japanese aircraft participated—the first to be seen for months. The country ahead of the Thirty-Third Corps is more suited to tanks, being sandy and covered with scrub, but the early fall of Mandalay is not expected.

Going Back From Exile to Homeland

Everyone can recall the time when President Benes of Czechoslovakia was forced to leave his native land and go to Britain, after the aggression of Hitler. After that the treacherous might of Hitler swept across that country of the Czechs engulfing it before the actual beginning of the present war on September 1st., 1939. Then came the war which Dr. Benes had foreseen. Now after five and a half years the Hitlerites are being steadily and irresistably forced back into the German Fatherland with Berlin as the centre of attack. Benes' country is in part cleared of the vicious enemy and the capital (Prague) its capital, is not yet liberated. But the Czechoslovak leader is going to go back home to take up the government and speed the work of rebuilding his country.

His faith in democracy never failed, though his country, the first to bear the wounds caused by the savage Hun, has seen tribulation. Still he has seen liberation come. Now he sees the Nazi and Prussian powers being pushed or driven to the doom they cannot avoid.

Benes had good Allies. He knew they would not fail his country. In Britain he found a home for a government in exile. Now that government is to be set up on Czech soil again.

What he and his brave people stood for is still their ideal, that of peace in the heavens as the darkness of Hun conquest is disappearing before Allied victory.

Benes has failed and the smaller nations as well as the larger which love liberty are vindicated not only by the consciousness that they have fought a good fight but also by the judgment of the nations of the world. That has been enough of the good, enough of the free and democratic in the world to down tyranny and barbarism.

Dr. Benes and so many million others in all free lands are and will be the victors. Hitler and his gang stand condemned by the voice of humanity. Now Czechoslovakia is joining the other liberated nations in bringing back governments to the homeless people who have endured heroically since Hitler showed his hand over the Sudetenland issue in 1938.

Travel Peak in 1950

(New York Times)

The public's pent-up desire to travel will by 1950 burst into a flood of 21,000,000 overseas travel year, writes the chairman of Pan American Marine News, citing among other figures the previous travel peak year of 1929, when the American public spent $675,000,000 on overseas travel. This prediction on post-war travel was made recently by the National Planning Association. New American passenger liners and planes will be available by that time, it is pointed out, and Europe probably will have recovered sufficiently to welcome American tourists.

What figure domestic travel will reach after the war is still a moot question among travel agents. It will depend on how soon automobiles are put onto the roads for pleasure travel, together with other factors such as fast, smooth trains, reduced airplane fares and de luxe cross-country buses.

HOPE

Now anxiously we wait to hear
The word: The war is won!
And all the agony of fear
For those we love is done.

God grant the whistles soon shall blow,
And all the people sing
And dance and shout with glee to show
The joy that peace will bring.

They said it would be hard and long,
With "Sweat and grief and tears,"
The Might of tyranny was strong
And war would last for years.

But now, we wait the glorious day,
Of total victory,
When Right may put its guns away
And all the world is free!

Plane Crew Helps To Ease Monotony of Long Trip For Pyle

By ERNIE PYLE

In the Marianas Islands — After you take off from one of the island bases crossing the Pacific, the transplane climbs notably and laboriously for about half an hour, then settles off into steady and less laborious flight.

Gradually the intense tropical heat of the ground fades away, and a chill comes over the cabin. Then the flight orderly turns on the heater, and finally it until you are comfortable in your light clothes, even without a jacket.

It was after midnight when we took off from the little island of Kwajalein, in the Marshalls, and we were not to stop again until we reached the Marianas.

Passengers are not allowed to smoke until the plane has stopped climbing and levelled off. Then the flight orderly stands at the head of the cabin and shouts in a stentorian language "The smoking lamp is lit," and then brings around paper cups for you to use as ash trays.

About every three hours the flight orderly would wake us up to feed us. Food for the day, and served on trays just as on the ground, at times.

It got to be a joke among the passengers the way they poured food into us. They let us eat every stop, and about every three hours in the air. They nearly fed us to death.

The flight orderly is a sailor who does the same job as a steward on the airlines. We had two crews and two flight orderlies during our part of the trip, since the same crew stops off half way for a day's rest, and a new crew comes on.

Both our flight orderlies were swell boys. They were 18 years of age or so—12 Navy and Army officers (one a Marine Corps gen eral), three enlisted men, and myself. We were about equally divided. The orderlies took good care of us, were friendly and willing, treated us all alike and they weren't a bit scared of the high mountains.

They wore plain blue Navy dungarees and shirts, and worked with their sleeves rolled up. Our Liner, of Lubbock, Texas, he'd never see him. Howard always has a little joke for Marines, and was the first to ear.

The other flight orderly was Seaman Don Jacobi, of San Gabriel, Calif. He wore a plaited leather belt, and hung from it was a big bunch of keys and a hunting knife in a sandwich sheath. He was the seventh trip.

He seemed quite mature, yet I found he is only 18, and had quit high school to join the Navy. His one ambition is to get home after the war, and go on to college.

It's mighty tiresome sitting in the same seat on a transport plane for 24 hours, even when the seats are reclining ones, as ours were.

The worst part is trying to sleep. You doze off a while and then you start squirming because you can't stretch your legs out and your head has no place to rest. Moreover those who have travelled a lot by air try to limit themselves to the down. The floor is good, but a little hard, and lacks in softness.

They had mail piled in the rear four seats, so I got my blanket and started fixing myself up on the mail bags. An Army colonel ahead of me said, "I tried that, but had to give it up. There are too many square zones inside the sacks and they stick into you."

But I went ahead, and being smaller than the colonel, discovered I could sort of snake myself in between the hard places in the sacks. And by and by I slept most of the journey to the Marianas.

The one funny thing did happen that I'd never experienced before in flying. The plane had quite a bit of vibration, and my head was bouncing all the time. And then I found the right way, really comfortable, and because of the constant necessity for scratching my nose.

How much does the average Canadian know about the dairy industry? Because more than one-third of every dollar spent on milk in one of its many forms by all Canadians should endeavor to grasp something of the economic importance of dairying. The National Dairy Council of Canada has done a real job in its presentation of the case for the cow. The booklet "From Tiny Drops" gives concise, colorful information about the dairy cow and milk, the most complete single food", together with figures that startle the layman relative to the great industry of dairying in this Dominion. Copies is not available for reproducing more than a small part of the interesting story. Readers who desire free copies of the brochure have only to write their requests to the Secretary, Canada Council of Canada, 305 Journal Building, Ottawa.

"The source of the industry is the dairy cow, a gentle creature easily responsive to man's needs, moods and general well-being. Her docile personality is neither glamorous nor spectacular. Nevertheless she is the backbone of a great industry, one doing a $1,400,000,000 annual business. There are some 800,000 farms depending wholly or to a large extent on monthly milk cheques. There are 1,000,000 farmers on these farms, there are the tens of thousands who are employed in approximately 4,500 plants, both large and small, where milk is first handled or processed. In addition there are the many allied trade industries who sell to the dairy industry, persons engaged in the transportation and utility services, distribution of milk and its many products. Finally there are the consumers who fill these people. Yes, the Dairy Cow is a most important economic factor in Canadian life—an extremely important one.

"From Tiny Drops"—the daily output of millions of cows in large and small herds right across the Dominion—there emerges a stream of milk which amounts to the enormous yearly total of seventeen and a half billion pounds, enough to seven billion quart bottles. If this amount of milk were put in eight gallon cans placed end to end they would more than reach around the globe. Not all of this is sold as milk, but it is still not enough for Canadian and Canada dairy export trade. More could be used and it will be, as long as there is a ready purchasing power, and proportionately as the food value of dairy products becomes more widely appreciated".

HYPERPIESIA

High blood pressure, in most cases, is one of the signs or manifestations of the constitutional or organic disease the patient has. It should not and cannot be prescribed for or treated by medicine, diet, rest, climate or anything else, any more than, say, high temperature or high pulse rate should be, without regard for what ails the patient.

Instruments for precise measurement of blood pressure date from 1828 when the U-shaped mercury manometer was devised. The type of instrument now generally used by physicians to measure blood pressure (arterial tension) called sphygmo-manometer, became standard fifty years ago, and is as familiar as the stethoscope or the headlight and speculum among the paraphernalia every good doctor carries in his bag or keeps close at hand for examining patients in his office.

Although I have harped incessantly on the fact that high blood pressure or arterial hypertension or hyperpiesia is not a disease or a complaint susceptible of interpretation or treatment, but a symptom, or sign, of some other condition, some disease, since Nov. 17.

HOME ON THE RANGE

Home, home on the range,
Where the deer and the antelope play,
Where seldom is heard a discouraging word
And the skies are not cloudy all day.

The original version of this popular song, believed to have been written in 1872 by Dr. Brewster Higley, a Pennsylvania country doctor, who removed to Kansas about 1870 and took up a homestead on Beaver Creek near Smith Centre.

In the original "Home" was the original title. Like many other popular songs, the original title was supplanted by the most popular phrase in the song.

This song has been the basis of several later versions and alterations, which, incidentally, are the fact that the authorship of both words and music have been claimed by a number of different persons.

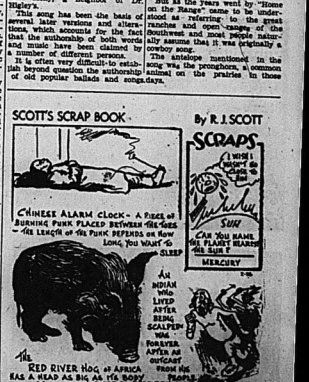
It is often very difficult to establish beyond question the authorship of old popular ballads and songs.days.

They frequently become part of the national or sectional folklore and undergo so many alterations and additions that it is hard to say just who composed the original.

In the early days of the United States, counties were settled into areas or survey and land location purposes.

Each county consisted of a number of townships stretching north and south across a country.

In the case of both the township and the range were given in designating the location of land within a county, as Township No. 5, N., Range No. 7, W.



It appears that it was this kind of range on which Dr. Higley lived at the time he wrote the song and which he had in mind when he wrote of a home "on the range."

But as the years went by "Home on the Range" came to be understood as referring to the great ranches and cattle country of the Southwest and most people naturally associate it with the cowboy song.

The landscape mentioned in the song was the prongborn, a common animal on the prairies in those

WEDDINGS

WHITLEY—ROGERS

In the chapel of St. George's Anglican Church, Trenton, a quiet wedding was solemnized at 2 p.m. o'clock on Saturday, February 24, when Marybelle Clara Rogers, of Frankford, daughter of Petty Officer and Mrs. J. D. Mcclelland, Halifax, N.S., became the bride of Donald Whitley, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Whitley of Trenton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. K. L. Bradford.

The bride was charming in a floor length gown of white satin and net made with full skirt, long tight sleeves, sweetheart neckline, and a halo of matching satin and net with a finger-tip veil. She carried a shower bouquet of red roses and bouvardia.

Calisthenics To Slim Down

The exercise, shown here, is good for reducing the waistline.

By HELEN POLLETT

To let the waistline thicken is to sound the death knell of the trim, youthful silhouette. It is to be that pleasing inward curve from below the ribs to the hips, a line that is vital for anatomical perfection.

Forty-aged girls must guard against figure changes that sneak up on one, mainly because the diet contains more calories than are necessary for the body and because exercise is forgotten.

As Extra Duty

Fighting off spread amidships should start as soon as the tape measure registers an extra inch. Catch fat cells young and you can delete them. Let them grow and they form heavy layers, and you're in for a long siege. Keep an eye on the bath room scales. If you should do something, the weight gaining will go right on.

Everything cutting down on fats, sweets and starches, foods which cause fat cells to form and multiply, will often lop off a pound a week; that is reducing fast enough. Do not be tempted by pastries or fried foods. Do have lean meat, fish that is not fat, poultry, but terrific cottage cheese, eggs, fruits and vegetables. Do be miserly about sugar, butter, cream or sugar. Citrus fruits add great assists are your diet friends. When dieting drink plenty of water each day.

Daily Calisthenics

Five minutes of calisthenics every morning will not bore you, and they will rid you of waistline blubber. Stand tall, chest lifted, arms extended on a line with the shoulders. Swing the arms (still held straight) from the body; as far to the right as you can, pivoting at the waist line, then to the left. Back to first position and repeat.

You will be conscious of muscle pull down to your hips. It is that muscle pull the exercise that knocks adipose tissue galley-west.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Divorced Girl Asks: Why All Men Consider Her Fair Game.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

"Six months ago I was granted a decree for infidelity, desertion, non-support and physical violence. You see there were plenty of grounds.

"I'm 24 years of age, considered pretty, dance well, am thoroughly domestic, and I'm not a bad sport, old-fashioned. This was understood by my husband's friends who often chaffed me about my conservatism. No sooner was the decree granted than almost every man of my acquaintance, both married and single, wanted to "console" me, as they put it.

"I was hurt to the quick to think these men could have imagined I would accept such advances on a decent husband, home, children is what I want.

"When I talked to mother-about these proposals she and men considered a divorced woman fair game. She has placed me under no obligation to go out among my friends and make new contacts to help forget my plight.

"Am I a Misunderstood."

Since divorces have become so prevalent—formerly one marriage in six going on the rocks and now one in five—divorced women have been regarded as what you aptly term "fair game."

The divorced woman is supposed to be able to take care of herself; she incurs no responsibility. Men are still cling to conservative behavior hesitate about inviting an unmarried girl to a situation that would jeopardize her good name and imperil her future. We still have men who cling to ideals, sometimes called old-fashioned, that make fair better living.

If one of these highly modernized unmarried girls "goes her own gait," the modern man incurs no responsibility. He feels her way of life is of her own choosing. The case of the genuine widow is different. Society doesn't as distinct from the divorcee known as "grass widow" or "golden eagle." The widow has champions inspite of herself. Which the divorcee is not likely to have. She is on her own; she paddles her own canoe, and if that fragile craft founders, it's up to her.

Concerning your own case, your desire is to have a decent husband, home and children. That's understood, and it will be understood when you show you're not in the market for what you call consolation, you'll undoubtedly meet the right man.

BRIDGE ST. CHURCH W. A.

On Friday the regular monthly meeting of the Women's Association of Bridge St. Church was opened by Mrs. Doris Burgoyne singing "The Lord's Prayer" in unison with the pianist Mrs. J. R. Guthridge.

Mrs. Edward Frances conducted the worship service, Song of Solomon Chapt. 5. Communion on Sunday, March 4th.

"In the early church believers gave their lives for their faith, but today there seems so little value placed on human life, which is tragedy, a gift of God." Such education' meant to cause a change in Mrs. Truscale quoted from articles written by Dr. Fosdick, emphasizing showing that to be adequate, adult education must aim not only for the study of international problems and economic problems, but for the development of family life and cultural religious and recreational interests as well.

Mrs. Morden discussed the meaning adult education could have for the Association.

Members are being forced into positions of responsibility in worthwhile places. It isn't enough to be members. Leaders in the church must have educational programs. Women who believe in a better world peace will not bring it to pass in the next year but if it is ever brought to pass public opinion will help the job and, who can do more to mold public opinion than enough women who talk enough.

"We must educate ourselves," she said, "for convincing and effective service, in the spiritual life of our church, in the home, and in our country."

In the absence of the President, Mrs. J. Wood, Mrs. R. Hollins presided and received reports of the following: the secretary, Mrs. R. Grant; the treasurer, Mrs. R. Grant for Warden Service Branch, Mrs. A. E. May displayed a chart and requested that all ladies listen to a broadcast by Mr. Donald Gordon, Thursday evening March 6. Mrs. Clarke announced that her group would have a tea at the home of Mrs. F. S. Deacon, March 20th.

Mrs. Frances announced that the V.O.N. was presenting an interesting lecture on venereal diseases by Miss Stirrey in the Collegiate on Wednesday March 7th.

Members were reminded of the Red Cross Tea in the church on Thursday March 1st. The meeting closed with Mizpah. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Rollins' group.

Natural-Looking Eyebrows

THAT is really pleasing to ladies' eyebrows, gracefully lined with delicate curves edged, is a credit and commendation to the facial powers possessed by which say Eye for beauty will acknowledge. BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

ADDRESSED TO SUB-DEBS.

You're all glamored up for the dance, and you look sweet, you're perfectly grand gal. You look in the mirror and think you look pretty elegant. But do you look it? Bring your age, you are always in a flutter, and we just wonder if swishing the comb thru your hair, slathering into the new make-up tricks, but we do not, don't we? Is any of the bathtub and get yourself together this week the speedy time in which you do it. Is it a matter of evening you'll wonder if you have tag ends of hair straying around your collar, or lipstick spread will not have an evening gown. You've seen girls at the party looking that way, haven't you? Sure you have.

When you're all dolled up in a long, swishy evening frock you do feel grand, don't you? Then why do that without spending a little time on your hair, your toilette.

Yet sometimes suspect that wear- ing scuffy shoes, Pa's shirt with- talk hanging out, and blue jeans —all right around the house and on the playground—have much more glamor than the elaborate get-up of the exquisite details of dress. When Cinderella was a young lady she boasted of the fact that it took her two hours to get ready for the grand occasion. She spent about half that time grooming her demountable hair and bathing herself until double-turreted. Then she had to shimmy into her slavey.

Have a leisurely bath and give yourself a brisk rubdown; it will rest you. Don't grab the atomizer and douse on the perfume; they will smell you a mile away. Use a light spray on chest and arms; the alcohol in cologne will evaporate and the essence will remain.

Before you start on the make-up spree, breathe deeply and count ten. Then do it again. Then get down on smoothly, to tint the lips delicately.

After you arrange your hair—and be pretty fussy about it, as the coiffure is most important—polish it up with something so you will not have flyaway hairs. Remember there are no more evening," when you'll know it should be thrown away.

THE MIXING BOWL
By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist
Hello! Homemakers! We must be thrifty! One way to be just that is to spend every food dollar wisely as possible. Each week when you purchase groceries see where you can save twenty-five cents for the extra War Savings Stamp your grocer has available.
Everybody's doing it. Yes they are buying a War Savings Stamp at the grocery counter on Stamp Day—that is every Friday.
Our homemakers are doing it by:
1—Buying seasonal products.
2—Buying food in the quantities that they can store successfully.
3—Buying food that they can make into nutritious homemade dishes, e.g., soup bones for soup, yeast cakes for quick breads.
4—Buying more whole grain cereals to cook instead of packaged cereals.
5—Buying according to a planned menu.
PORRIDGE
Use a double boiler for cooking porridge. Pour boiling water in top and bottom parts of utensil and place on element when turned to high. Add cereal and salt, cover and cook 30 mins.
If desired, use milk in place of half or more of the water. A few raisins or cooked fruit added to porridge may be stirred into cereal before serving.
Quantities: Use two cups water (1) 1 cup milk (2) 1-2 cup flaked wheat, (3) 1-3 cup oatmeal (4) 1-3 cup cream of wheat, or farina, etc.
BOILED RICE
1-2 cup rice, 1 quart boiling water, 1 tbsp. salt.
Pick over rice. Wash under cold water faiset about 2 mins. separating the grains to wash out the starch coating. Keep the salted water—a tablespoon of salt to a quart—in a deep saucepan. Bring to a brisk sprinkle in the rice. Cook uncovered at a rapid boil without stirring from 12 to 15 mins., until a few grains on a fork are soft but not mushy. (Use a large kettle, it will boil over.) Rinse the cooked rice with hot water to remove excess starch and again separate kernels by heating in oven or kettle. Cover with tea towel until ready to serve. Makes 1-3 cups.
RICE MUFFINS
3 1-4 cups flour, 3-3 cup cooked rice, 8 tsps. baking powder, 2 tbsps. sugar, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, well beaten: 2 tbsps. melted butter, 1-2 tsp. salt.
Add cereal to milk. Combine dry ingredients, stir milk, beaten egg and liquid fat together. Add to mixed dry products only enough to dampen flour. Spoon carefully in greased muffin, pans and bake 25 mins. in a slightly hot oven at 400 deg. Makes 12 muffins.
TAKE A TIP
1—To make a clean cut through the meringue on a pie, use a sharp knife which has been dipped in hot water. The meringue will stay high instead of being crushed.
2—A wooden spoon is very useful for handling clothes which have to be washed in very hot water. Use it to stir the suds, to work the clothes up and down and to remove them from the hot water.
3—Instead of washing the rolling pin after each use, scrape off the excess flour and put it back into the flour bin—it won't stick to the next dough you roll out.
4—When there is pie crust left over, it's a good idea to roll it out, slip a piece of wax paper under it and one over it. Roll it into a tube shape and store in the refrigerator. This takes little space in the electric refrigerator and it can be used without getting out the rolling pin and board again. (Be sure to take it out and leave at room temperature for 20 minutes before fitting into pie plate.)
THE SUGGESTION BOX
Mrs. C. A. J. says: — Here's an easy way to remove burnt food from glass cooking utensils. Just fill them with boiling water, add a little household bleach and set aside to cool. An hour or an hour the black crust will lift off, and after thorough washing, the dish will be spotless.
Mrs. B. F. Says:—If you live in small premises, where cooking odors quickly drying must be done indoors, set in your clothes woodenclothes drier in the bathtub. The "drying" will be achieved.
Readers:—Thank you kindly for your suggestions. Received recipes have been answered directly.

Toronto Maple Leafs Absorb 5-2 Licking Sun, by Canadiens And Tie Rangers 4-4 Saturday

Maurice Richard Establishes New All-Time N.H.L. Scoring Mark of 45 Goals

(By REDDIE LEE)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Attendance figures at National Hockey League games during the week-end were a further indication that you just can't fail about hockey fans.

The 13,981 paid customers who jammed Montreal forum last night did not part with their cash so much to watch Canadiens trounce Toronto Maple Leafs 5-2 as they did to see Maurice (Rocket) Richard establish a new all-time N.H.L. scoring mark of 45 goals in 44 games, surpassed only by Joe Malonk's 46 goals, in the 22-game 1918 season.

There was also a season for the attendance of the 15,764 persons who turned out to watch New York Rangers fight by a call's width for, to grab the coveted fourth-place playoff berth from Boston Bruins when the teams tied 4-4 in a clash at New York. Rangers had moved up within a point of Bruins by holding Leafs 4-4 tie at Toronto Saturday before a crowd of 11,456.

But there was no explanation for the 15,981 fans who watched the second-place Detroit Red Wings blank Chicago Black Hawks 3-1 at Chicago and leave Hawks with only the faintest hopes of overcoming seven-points separating them from fourth place.

The same two clubs drew only 10,178 onlookers when Wings handed Hawks a 4-2 set-back Saturday at Detroit.

Three Minutes Before End.

The Montreal crowd wailed until three minutes before the game ended before Richard grabbed a pass from Tim Blake and beat Turk McCool cleanly with a rising shot. He was given a 45-minute ovation and thirteen reports said the pandemonium far surpassed that accorded the Rocket when they won the Stanley Cup a year ago.

Besides Richard, pet Canadiens' cool ahead with the only goal of the opening period and Mick Mehl tied it up early in the second. Before the period ended, Montreal was ahead again on two fast goals by Richard, Bouchard and Blake while Toronto was short handed. Frank Mosienko got the other Leaf goal in the third and Elmer Lach scored for Canadiens before Richard set his record.

The second largest crowd of the season watched Rangers pile up a two-goal advantage in the period on goals by Ab Dell and Hank Goldup but Bill Cowley whittled it down to 3-1 before the session ended. Bach scored a goal in the second, Jack McGill tying it up and Cyrile Denis putting Rangers ahead again. Bruins scored two fast ones early in the third from the sticks of McGill and Armand Gendreault. Goldup scored the tying goal in the dying minutes.

Opened Scoring.

At Chicago, Pete Horeck opened the scoring for Hawks in the second period on Joe Cerwyn tied it up in less than five minutes and put them ahead with his second goal of the night mid-way through the third. Sid Abel scored the clincher on a breakaway near the game's end.

Ab Demaroo contributed two goals to the Ranger cause at Toronto Saturday night in the first period and the tying counter late in the third. Gus Kyle put Toronto ahead in the first and Ross Johnstone, Art Jackson and Drewery Schriner added the others in the second. Grant Warwick scored for Rangers in the second and Pete Thurier made the third Ranger goal two minutes before Demaroo's tying counter.

At Detroit Saturday, Wings jumped into a three goal lead in the first period when Sid Jackson, Syd Howe and Ted Lindsay connected. Murray Armstrong scored the final Red Wing tally after Pete Horeck and Bill (Red) Mitchell had counted for Chicago.

BUFFALO BISONS TIGHTEN GRIP

By The Canadian Press

Buffalo Bisons tightened their grip on the leadership of the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League by two successive wins over the weekend while Cleveland Barons remained undisputed leaders of the Western Division with a win over St. Louis Flyers and defeat at the hands of Providence Reds.

Buffalo's victory 4-3 over Hershey Bears Saturday marked the last of the scheduled games for Buffalo at Hershey and also the Bisons' first win over the Bear there. The St. Louis Flyers fell to the Bisons by the six-goal score last night.

It was the Flyers' second successive defeat over the weekend having been downed 11-2 by division leading Cleveland Barons Saturday. The Barons were not so successful when they had to bow 8-3 to Providence Reds last night.

Indianapolis Capitals also took it on the chin over the weekend with two defeats suffered at the hands Saturday at Pittsburgh 11-3 and Hershey Bears 5-3 last night.

Sports Roundup

(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Howard Johnson, Oregon's coach on leave, who shows perfect form when he's left the United States soon after springing a three-point basketball scheme, sends this further explanation: "I had no idea of making what seems to be a radical suggestion when I started my study. It was primarily for scouting and coaching purposes. However, I am convinced now that these suggested changes may help solve the problems on the score and the fan, the man who is not a basketball player."

A generally overlooked point, which led to the idea of rewarding long shots, Hokem adds, is that many kinds are becoming strictly one-hand shooters, which leads to the domination of the game by any big guy who can play a "key hole" zone defense . . . The 21-foot arc may not be quite right, its originator concedes, and maybe 23 feet would be better. Only further experiments can show.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKLESON

London, Feb. 24.—(CP)— Famed cycle specialists Raleigh Cycling Society Street journeyed daily for more than ten weeks to the Wiltshire hamlet of Beckhampton. Their object: speed, endurance.

Because of their treatment. Bolton Wood, two-year-old in the King's stable, won the Grand National. He was slowly getting blind when highly-paid specialists famed for saving human eyesight were called in by Sir Malcolm Upiher, Fred Darling.

Bolsena, half-brother to 5,000 Guineas winner Big Game and who is entered in the 1945 Classic, developed when Sid Jackson, Syd Howe and Ted Lindsay connected. Murray Armstrong scored the final tally after Pete Horeck and Bill (Red) Mitchell had counted for Chicago.

Britain's thoroughbred racehorse population, which fell to a low level in the early years of the war, is slowly is returning to normal.

A newly-published supplement to the General Stud Book reveals there is no longer any danger of a shortage. For instance approximately 2,500 foals were born in Britain and Eire during 1944, compared with 2,383 in 1942—the lowest war year.

He's Some Man.

He may wear last year's straw hat, his finger nails may need manicuring, his vest may hang a little loose on him and his pants may sag at the knee. His face may show signs of second-day growth, but don't call him "old man." He's your father. For years he's been rushing around to get things together. Never once has he failed to do the job that had to be done. He thinks that you are the greatest boy on earth, bless him. When you do plan to get your hair back, wear loud clothes, smoke cigarettes and fall to bring home the bacon. He is the man who won the love, life, partnership and respect of a some man, and of the greatest woman on earth—Dad, the man." If you would win as good a wife as he did, if you turn out to be half as good a man the chances are you will have to go some.

Wrong Number!

A Dick Tracy touch was added to the Loyola College basketball scandal when it was revealed that early this season, all college coaches in New York were given a secret phone number to call if any of their boys were approached by gamblers. The moment this phone rang, the coach on the end would know something evil was afoot, and no explanations were to be necessary—only the time and place of a meeting with the gamblers, which all the players were instructed to arrange for, as they appeared to "go along" with any racketeers who offered bribes.

"Just call this number, the police will do the rest," the basketball coaches and players were told.

The Brooklyn College boys "went along" with the gamblers all right, when they were offered the $2,500. But they went too far. They forgot to call the phone number, and went instead for the "wrong numbers" the gamblers wanted them to arrange in the final score!

GALT RED WINGS TIE FOR SECOND WITH FALCONS

Defeat Young Rangers 5-2 In Last Scheduled Game of Season

By The Canadian Press

In the last scheduled game of the O.H.A. junior "B" series Galt Red Wings earned a well-deserved draw with St. Catharines, 12 points below St. Catharines, with Galt's victory over Young Rangers on Tuesday last.

Saturday's encounter say a listless bonspiel first period but Young Rangers managed to hold a 2-1 edge at the close of the middle frame. Galt did all the scoring in the third, collecting four goals in a row.

Cavanagh of Galt was head man with two in all, other scorers being Pavalich, Kashuba and Krupnicki. Kazarian also tossed the pass that resulted in a goal on two occasions. Payne and Elliott were the cage-minders for the losers, who with four pass credits being distributed, two to Gagnon and one each to Pidhenny and Payne.

JUG McSPADEN OUT IN FRONT

Pensacola, Fla., Feb. 24 — (AP)— Harold (Jug) McSpaden, Sanford, Me., continues his campaign for a winter golf title in the second round of the $6,500 Pensacola War Bond Open today after blasting the first 18 holes in eight-under par 64.

Jug knocked off five birdies in a row on the first nine, posting only a six-under par 30 and came home two-under with a 34. He had nine birdies, one a 12-footer on the 18th green, eight pars and one bogey, and finished the day three strokes up on his nearest rival, Sammy Snead of Hot Springs, Va.

Snead, winner of the Gulfport Open earlier this week, carried over yesterday with a bogey five on the first hole, but got his driver working and slammed out a five-under par 67.

Sam Byrd, Detroit, fimled a two-foot putt at the 18th hole that would have given him a 66 and ahead and ended up in a dead heat with Sgt. E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Little Rock, Ark., for fourth money.

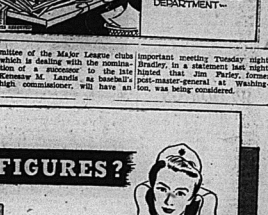
The outstanding bout in the Canadian army championships at Aldershot last night was the slugging victory of Lance-Corporal Andrew Anderson, Victoria, B.C., over Lieut. Leon Lecuyer, Montreal, formerly Canadian Olympic boxer, in the featherweight title.

Anderson failed to win championship when Gnr. Jack Storey of Windsor, Ont., and Cpl. Vic Murdoch of Victoria for the lightweight crown, and Pte. Danny Gennaro of Montreal for welterweight victories in the lightweight division. . . . Walter Hagen, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., has been appointed coach of the world champion Cardinals, but has accepted for military service following a physical examination at Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis. His brother, pitcher Merv Cooper, son of the Cardinal staff, recently was rejected after an examination at the barracks, but was reported out for the season with a badly sprained ankle.



Passed by Allan Kunis, formerly of the New York Rangers, who scored three goals, Camp Borden Tanks established Brockline All-Stars 10-8 in an exhibition hockey display at Timmins last night.

Leading scorer for the Northern Ontario squad was "Wink" Wilson, with three counters.

According to Ava Bradley, owner of the Cleveland Indians, the committee of the Major League clubs which is dealing with the nomination of a successor to the late Kenesaw M. Landis as baseball's high commissioner, will have an important meeting Tuesday night. Bradley, in a statement last night, hinted that Jim Farley, former post-master-general at Washington, will be considered.

ARE YOU GOOD AT FIGURES?

9 BLOOD DONATIONS mean 1 CHANCE TO LIVE

Answers to your Questions:—

Who is eligible?
Any man or woman in normal good health between the ages of 18 and 50 can donate blood.

Will it hurt?
No. The very slight sensation is usually not noticed at all.

Will it harm me?
No. The complete medical check-up by the qualified examining physicians at the clinics can be your assurance that the donation can do you no harm. The clear records of thousands of many-time blood donors bear this out.

How long does it take?
A very short time—about 45 minutes in the Clinic is the average time for the whole procedure, including the physical examination and registration, then making and enjoying the refreshments afterwards. The actual donation takes only a few minutes.

What can I eat before?
Eat nothing containing fat (including milk or cream) for six hours before making a donation. You may have fruit, or fruit juices, tomato juice, toast without butter, black coffee or tea without cream or milk, cereals with honey or maple syrup.

What shall I do now?
Telephone your local blood donor clinic—or even drop a note in the mail—register your name as a donor and settle a time convenient to you for an appointment. In a day or so you will receive a card through the mail confirming the time of your appointment for a medical check-up and donation.

HIS CHANCE FOR LIFE IS IN YOUR KEEPING

CANADIAN RED CROSS SOCIETY

IT TAKES nine civilian blood donations to give one injured soldier, sailor or airman an initial transfusion . . . a chance to live!

That's why so many blood donors are needed by the Red Cross . . . why there's an urgent call from every blood donor clinic across Canada for more and more civilians to do their share. There is a shortage of serum.

If you are now a blood donor, visit your clinic again as soon as possible, and next time, take one or two new donors with you to show them how simple it is.

If you have not yet answered this vital call, get in touch with your local clinic immediately. No true Canadian would deny any one of our gallant fighting men a chance to live.

Would you?

LESSON NO. 616
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

"The lucky stiff," Mr. Pigg the trump suit all wrong and scored something like nine boat." Such was the complaint of West after south took all 13 tricks in this deal:

NORTH
♠A 10 8 5
♥A Q 5
♦K 6
♣K Q J 9
WEST	EAST
♠K J 9	♠A 7
♥J 10 8 7 4	♥9 3 2
♦6 5 3	♦J 9 7 2
♣10 6 5	♣8 7 3 2
SOUTH
♠Q 6 4 3 2
♥K 6
♦A J 10 9
♣A 4

Because south started with a spade bid, south got it into his head that south had the spade king. So, when two got started on a slamming expedition, north shoved it into seven spades.

The opening lead from west was a heart. When dummy hand in the north, west, south, east hands wilted. There were no losers in side suits, of course, but the trump suit was in terrible shape.

With king and jack missing, suppose you have the ace in one hand and queen in the other. The customary manner of playing such a suit is to first take the ace and then lead small toward queen.

If the king does not fall on the ace, you hope to lose only one trick that way. Because with queen then on the king, you hope to force it out of the second round and win with queen the third.

But at the grand slam, losing one trick is fatal. And there is only one hope of losing no spade trick. That is to lead the queen and find the jack all alone in the east.

Declarer led the spade queen. West and dummy ducked. When the jack fell on that trick, declarer was able to finesse west out of the king and nine. Two future spade leads from south did that.

Had west covered the queen with the king, the result would have been the same. Because dummy would play the ace and the jack drops.

No other placing or outstanding trumps would permit taking all the tricks. So, although south was held to but the one trick as they were, his plan of play was just lucky. It was scientific.

There will be no Allan Cup playoffs this year. For the first time in the history of the Trophy, donated 41 years ago by Sir Montagu Allan, the senior hockey competition in Canada will not be completed by interprovincial series.

Decision to abandon the series was announced yesterday by President Frank Sargent of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association when a telegraph poll of branch organizations showed unanimous voting against the senior playoffs. There was no immediate official explanation of the Allan decision but it had been brought out previously that some clubs would not have anxious to make the trip to Vancouver, the selected city for the final games. Also there is a possibility the annual meeting of the C.A.H.A., planned for Vancouver in conjunction with the Allan Cup finals, may be held elsewhere. It has been stated The junior finals for the Memorial Cup are expected to be staged in Toronto.

The American indoor track championships, were staged at New York Saturday night without the Swedish Olympic Gunder Haegg and Haakon Lidman, who had not been heard from since they left London on May 11. Lidman finished fourth to Haegg's two miles feature in the 5,000 metres, 27 seven strokes better than Byron Nelson of Toledo, O.

The group headed by Larry Macphail acquired control of the Yankees more of shares in the New York Yankees baseball club, thus providing 100 per cent ownership of the New Orleans League Club as well as teams in Newark, Jersey City, Kansas City and elsewhere, with rights to shoot Yankee players. The latest deal raised the total price to a reported $2,600,000.

Cuban fight fans take their sport seriously. After Carlos Perez of Dominican Republic won a decision Saturday night over Kid Tunero of Cuba, a riot developed in which a youth was killed and others wounded. The 12-round bout was refereed by the total American and Caribbean Middleweight champion, Holman Williams.

The government ban on any horse racing in the province of Ontario has not been greatly lifted to allow French horses to race in the province this season.

At least two of the fleet turf followers gathered from a recent visit of Mr. Drummond, racehorse owner who discussed this question with officials of the English turf authorities.

Drummond's mission was a development of a conversation with the French investigation to clear up the mystery surrounding the mysterious depredations on the French turf. Many horses of fine class in France ever since the Nazis overran the country. Some have gone over the enemy stay-at-home sports and stud farms.

Among horses stolen were Brantome and Pharis II and authorities believe that with the problem of determining that any horse purporting to be Brantome or Pharis and others is just that. Two horses will be by Pharis were considered to be the best in France last year.

Where Snow Shovel is Unknown

By W. H. COLCLOUGH, Vancouver
(In Stratford Beacon-Herald)

"And the rains came . . . Vancouver is suffering its first real rain of the Winter. For the past 24 hours Old Man Rain has been spilling himself over the city and the mainland with watery glory. Not thunder—thunder comes only once a year—and is an occasion for much excitement. Just wind, but rain and then more rain. The gentle wind drifts in from the southeast, probably moving north from the heavy California rains.

Naturally heavy rains in February do little or no crop damage. However, reports are drifting in that swollen creeks and rivers are flooding certain sections of short roads; but, with no ice conditions to speak of, there is little damage, truction to property. In the low lands of the city, some cellars are flooded but, strangely enough, most of such flooding is the result of a coast building practice.

In the East the average residence is equipped with a cistern, into which goes the rain water from the roof for domestic purposes. Vancouver uses the water in the taps is 100 per cent. soft, so that cisterns are unknown, and water from the gutters is not wanted, and simply runs from the wooden eave-troughs through a metal pipe at each corner of the house into the ground. Ordinarily, this water would be directed into the sewers, but here in Vancouver the earth is so porous that the water seeps away through the soil. Occasionally, as at the present time, the water works its way into the basement, but this is a very rare occurrence.

Vancouver treads a snowstorm, most of all. Snow has fallen but so far this Winter, nor has there been a heavy fall for several years. When the snow comes it falls with unbelievable speed, sometimes a foot in an hour. The snow is soft, wet and heavy and ties up transportation in a complete manner. The railways are not equipped for snow, switches fill, wires break and a state of general paralysis settles over the network of lines in a short time. Usually the next day sees all the snow run off again in regulation soft-Spring-day style.

The Winter at the Coast is not over yet, although some old-timers tell us that Spring is here. Snowdrops and crocuses are showing in some gardens. Robins, varied thrushes, juncos and a darkly colored bird about the size of a robin are flitting here and there over the green lawns in search of food.

Reports from the East indicate a very cold Winter, with names like Maryland. A correspondent writes from Hanson Lake, Manitoba "This is the worst Winter yet. Subzero days, much snow and considerable East wind."

The average Canadian knows nothing of the discomforts of withering and penetrating east wind and fog. Cities are built differently here at the Coast. There is little or no wind at any time, but of what there is the east wind enjoys a certain freedom. Cities sometimes sweep the Gulf, and when the Fraser River sweeps about Sidcotard and Chilliwack, the gale-like breezes do whirl a few windmills.

The most disagreeable climatic variation is fog. Some Winters are worse than others. There are times when the local papers give the information that fog persists for days or even weeks. Usually the fog drifts in around 10 in the evening and rises about noon the following day. It is strangely local in one section of the city fogbound, another part clear. Fog is the product of Spring. It is formed with a tang of frost in the air at night. Cold, clouds or rain clear up the fog with apparent ease. The city's record for fog is not particularly fog-free all the year around.

Snow does come at times, unknown at the Coast, and can rarely ever seen slows or mittens. There is no snow-plough, and the few real old man climate delivers sight and perfect months out of the twelve.

Bomb Damage to English Railroads

(From London Calling)

During the intensive eight months of bombing, September, 1940, to May, 1941, the Southern Railway, by virtue of its geographical position, suffered the most from aerial attack. During that period 1,164 incidents occurred affecting the running lines between Waterloo and Queen's Road stations, 2 1-4 miles apart, making it the most bombed section of line in London.

On September 7, 1940, a heavy caliber, high explosive bomb fell on one of the Up main lines at a point between the Mets of lines, penetrated the viaduct, and exploded before reaching ground level. Three sets of lines were left spanning the crater, and 11 motor vehicles stored in the arches of the viaduct were completely wrecked. Within 24 hours tracks farthest away from the crater were using and trains were running again in the normal way.

In the early hours of October 16, 1940, a large bomb shattered the greater part of the 2 1-2 acres of glass in St. Pancras station and flood platforms 1 to 4 were badly damaged and Nos. 5, 6 and 7 were unusable owing to the vast amount of debris covering them. The train shed signal boxes controlling all the St. Pancras traffic were severely damaged, and it was impossible to work trains from any part of the station.

Emergency signalling had been installed by 4hr a.m. the next day, and some trains were able to use the station. Repairs to the station structures were retarded through the danger caused by falling glass from the shattered roof. It was necessary to clear the splintered pieces from the girder work. However, repairs had been effected and such an extent that normal working was resumed on November 17.

In March, 1941, direct hits were made on Paddington station by two high explosive bombs and a large incendiary. One high explosive pierced the roof over No. 1 platform, causing damage to two jack arches and part of the platform coping. Damage from the second high explosive was more serious. This bomb exploded on platforms 6 and 7, making a crater 40 feet in diameter and 12 feet deep, and destroyed 85 feet of the platform.

Extensive damage was also caused to Nos. 6, 7 and 8 lines and the station roof. Debris was scattered over two other lines and the interlocking platforms, all of which had to be closed for a short period. Emergency and restoration work was under taken at once, and by evening of the same day all damaged or obstructed lines were repaired and all platforms opened except short portions of Nos. 6 and 7 which were reopened later in the week.

Southwark Street Bridge between Blackfriars and Elephant and Castle carries four electrified running lines and five others. During the night of February 19, 1941, a bomb struck the bridge, completely destroying the down fast line and cutting into the road taking the running lines of conductor rails, bridge decking, and three tracks with them. The gap was 40 feet wide for 100 yards. Both girders of the bridge was littered with debris, and Blackfriars Signal Box was wrecked. For clearing the debris and erecting a shin an excavator was used, and oxy-acetylene cutters burnt up the main girders into units which could then be handled. Fifteen days later a temporary bridge had been installed enabling traffic to be resumed.

On the night of May 10, 1941, a heavy bomb fell 50 feet south of London Transport's circle line tunnel, halfway between Gloucester and King's Cross stations, where it penetrated 40 feet before exploding.

The south wall of the tunnel was badly cracked, for 150 feet, and the running tracks were lifted up 18 inches over a distance of 80 feet. A train was just passing this section of line at the time. Fortunately the driver escaped even only minor damage.

Bomb damage on March 3, 1943, the 8.45 p.m., Liverpool Street to Harwich train, crowded with servicemen and civilians, was travelling at reduced speed between Shenfield and Ingatestone. Suddenly track in front of the train received a direct hit. The driver could do nothing, and the train ploughed into the yawning crater, carrying him and his firemen to their deaths. The tender separated the engine, and the carriages following were fantastically fanned out behind—yet, with the exception of the unfortunate driver and fireman, only one passenger and the guard were slightly injured.

MINOR LEAGUES PLAN TO STAND ON OWN FEET

10-Man Committee Will Recommend Changes in Major-Agreement

By JIMMY JORDAN
(AP Staff Writer)

Chicago, Feb. 26 — (AP)—Minor league baseball "kicked around" more or less by the majors for years, is ready to stand on its own feet and walk itself.

The smaller leagues, from class AA down, no longer will be content "alive" class D circuits, will take the first step in that direction today when a 10-man committee meets here to make recommendations for revision of the present agreement.

Among the proposals expected to be offered in revision of the agreement which expires next January are:

1. Greater self-government.
2. Guarantees against post-war major league expansion.
3. A voice in selection of a commissioner to succeed the late Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

Thomas Richardson, president of the Eastern League and chairman of the committee, said no formal proposals for changes have been considered, and added that his group probably will sit the proposals rejected during the three-day meeting here and then recommend revisions which will be acted upon at the November meeting of the National Association.

Several leagues were interested in having the major league agreement include guarantees against major league expansion because of the probability post-war air travel will make it possible for teams from coast to coast to compete on a league basis.

Under the present setup, any major league team can purchase a minor league franchise which, under the league $5,000 and making suitable arrangements with the club owner, without consulting the league's stability. That would give the major league opportunity to place teams in such cities as Los Angeles and San Francisco of the Coast League, Milwaukee of the American Association, New Orleans of the Southern Association, of Baltimore of the International League.

THE SECRET OF THE MARSHBANKS

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

CHAPTER THREE

"I'm not going to live at the Marshbanks'," Cherry told her. "I'm going to take a position!"

"The judge said you'd be with us only a few days. He is going to play bridge somewhere tonight, and he's having his dinner at seven, Mrs. Marshbanks and Miss Amy are going out to dinner before a party, and he's to bring them home dear knows when. It's a boring-out party for Miss Patsy Randall."

"I know. A debut. Then Miss Marshbanks is a debutante's chaperon," Cherry brightened, eyes shining in a grimy pale face. "I'll bet she has a beautiful dress! I suppose she has! She said, hastily substituting the latter phrase for one of which Sister Seraphine certainly would not have approved.

"She's not two", the maid said, a little grimly. "She'd not made up her mind when I left which one she'd wear!"

Cherry was not only imaginative by nature, but she had a quick intuitive sense of what others might be feeling.

"Oh, and you had to come away to meet me!" she apologized quickly. "Mr. companion gave her an odd look.

"I didn't mind that my dear," she said. "There we are." Arrived at, as the car stopped at the foot of an imposing flight of stone steps. "I'm going to slip upstairs and I'll not see you again unless you want me...Mollyil show you your room. I'm taking off my old lady after dinner, but she's away and I'm trusting to a movie tonight. You ask Molly anything you want."

Cherry and her patient-leather bag were abandoned for just a few moments in the big entrance hall. She had time only for a stone-staring impression of such spaciousness and beauty and color as she had never seen before, of soft rugs beneath her feet and dimly lighted rooms on all sides, of potted palms and bursts of winter flowers, before Judge Marshbanks came forward to take possession of her, and confide her to the care of Molly, a pretty maid with very black eyes and a very white skin, a white lace apron and cap, and a neat little gray woolen uniform.

By this time the girl was too much dazed to believe her senses. She followed Molly upstairs to an incredibly luxurious bedroom, with an unbelievably complete bathroom next to it, brushed her hair and washed her face in a dressing table complete bewilderment, and descended again, still under Molly's escort, to the dining room where it appeared that she and her host were to be the only persons at dinner.

He was halfway through his meal; here was served to her fresh and hot, but she was unable to eat. The quality of the Italian lace that was spread on the polished wood, the beauty of china and crystal, the soft light of candles and such as Cherry had never seen in her life before, her every demand could exist, and the numbing sense of being only in a dream made it impossible for her to taste or swallow anything. Even the food was beyond what had been her most fantastic imaginings; a spoonful of whipped cream spreading itself upon her plate, a golden crust of hot butter but sweet and hard and twisted like a tiny rails. Her hot roll made into a lover's knot bound together with poppy seeds, her prune garnished with crisp curls of bacon and a buttery crisp brown sauce and a clear as amber jelly.

"Don't you like that?" the judge asked, looking over his paper.

"It's wonderful", the maid's valiant attack upon it.

"What is it by?"

"Sir, sir. Chicken, I guess".

"That's partridge, sir; you don't like it Martin will get you an omelette".

"Oh, no, please! It's delicious". Th her own disgust and surprise, her voice thickened. But he did not seem to notice it, and when he returned to his paper she managed herself finish her dinner, and felt her self more steady.

A sudden sense that she did not belong in this scene, that it had nothing to do with her, that she never should have entered it, had almost wrecked her self-control for a moment. With the blinding force of a revelation she knew that her rumpled childish dress was absurd, that the dowdy hat she had left upstairs, the shabby patent-leather bag, the ugly school shoes and cotton gloves and stockings had no place in this house, and were like nothing that had ever been here before. She knew, inexperienced as she was—she had read it in her host's first look—that her shabbiness and homelessness had shocked him. And he had seen only once before, flushed with excitement, the lovely dresses made up into her handsomest self as a brown-skinned little girl eye in feathers and fringes.

The knowledge that came to her in this flash of shame and pain made the big dining-room chair in which she sat seem a place of torture to her, dried her throat so that she could not swallow, caused her fingers to feel clumsy and helpless, to drop knives and spill water and crumble bread untidily.

But she did her best to conquer the feeling, and was quite calm when a man came in, unannounced, and drew a chair to Judge Marshbank's side.

The judge, after a casual friendly greeting, glanced over at her and said, "Mr. Lester, Cherry", and then, "This is Miss Rawlings, Kelly".

Judge Marshbanks' visitor, twisting a little to look at Cherry, acknowledged the introduction only with a nod and with a level, curious look, and went on talking in a low tone.

"You're not going to this jamboree tonight, Jud?" he said.

"Good heavens, no! But I may pick you up later if you like. It's late enough, I'm going to the club, myself, to sit at the Randall party, I suppose. You dressing later?"

"Oh, I don't think I'll go at all! I think I'll go home," the visitor observed. "But, of course, I had to see what one deb looked like before I left. Isn't this the first job of fair for her?"

"She was down here a few minutes ago, sure that she was going to look awful and that nobody else was growing on the tip of her nose," the older man said in tolerant explanation. "She's dining at the Sogrese', in Burlingame, going down with Fran, and will come back to the party."

"Darling!" said Kelly Coster, flinging up his wrists to see the time. "What time do these bullets dine? It's eight now."

"The dinner is supposed to be at eight—seventeen miles away," Judge Marshbanks said, "and they have to till time until midnight so they're not worrying! Fran's dining down there, and she'll play bridge until it's time to go to the party."

They talked on of places and personalities unknown to Cherry, and Cherry had a chance, over a fluffy souffle of chocolate and whipped cream, to study her hostess' companion. The judge was tall and handsome, with a fine head, rather coarsely bulit, with big, hard, nervous hands. His hair was parted far from his square, fine face, less for style than a mouth that Cherry found a certain fascination in watching.

It was not that it was handsome, as the judge's fine clipped mouth and restrained rare smiles were. Kelly's was a wide, hard mouth, packed with big, shining teeth, and he used his mouth forcefully, now pressing it firmly closed in denial, now splitting his brown-red, square face with a great flashing smile, now widening his thin-lipped lips together into an expression of scorn that snatched his quickly folded arms and tossed head.

To her he seemed old; but not as old, certainly, as the judge. Thirty, perhaps. She marveled from what she could not help overhearing, that he was a sculptor, that he lived in some place across the bay called Sausalito.

Two women came downstairs. One was a girl of Cherry's age, as fresh as a spray of apple blossom in a fluffy frock of pallet yellow, with silvery yellow orchids pinned at her shoulder. An innocent-faced girl, with a lovely heart-shaped little face framed in soft curls, who nodded that had ever been discontented blue eyes.

The other woman was dark too, but of a very different type. Cherry's first impression was that she was very tall and very thin, with a long face, deep-set eyes, and straight black hair that was cut in a deep bang. Her skin was dead pale, her lips startling in contrast, for her mouth —wide, soft and full—was colored like flame red of a poppy. A tight, black velvet gown outlined her body, its full skirt swirled about her many seams. Long diamond earrings dangled almost to her shoulders, and at her breast a circle clip of diamonds blazed in the dining room's fading light.

"Skunks," she said simply. Her voice, hoarse and deep, thrilled suddenly in the silence. Both men were on their feet as she came languidly to the table. "Of course you don't know your're polecats!" she said.

The girl, after having said, "Sam's here," and been told that Fran had walked back in the direction of the main salon, and had disappeared, introduced Cherry to his wife, who acknowledged the little ceremony only with an absent glance in Cherry's direction.

"And you do all the dirty work," said Fran Marshbanks, in a lazily amused voice, and again her voice shocked Cherry with its very beauty. It was a rich, low voice, that seemed always about to be broken with laughter or tears or both, shattering. Somehow it was that yet clearly indicated its ownership of beautiful and flawless and pride.

"Well, my dear, a debutante party—", he pleaded.

"I know. But you owe it to Amy. But she did not care very much, either way. "As for Mr. Lester, he went on, carelessly reproachful; "he is apparently engrossed in his soul; he ought to be cultivating rich, homely girls who will buy their portraits painted, and here is an occasion when he could meet, not one of them, but all of them! Are you dressed?"

My dress clothes are circa Pre-Marsters, Mrs. Marshbanks," the painter said. "If I painted anyone it would be myself, and you say you won't sit for me."

"Because I won't go to Sausalito and dress in a transformed barn," Fran answered composedly. "Because I won't, that's all."

"I know it's like that. Besides, I'm just bringing Amy out in society," the woman went on, "and I have maternal obligations."

"Maternal! You!" What's she to you? Sister-in-law?"

"I wish that's what they were to hear you!" Family intricacies then must and drink to her," Fran said. "She's getting back from Florida Monday, by the way; you might come in for a cocktail and meet her. She'd be a subject for you! No, she added, returning to the original topic, "Amy's not my sister-in-law. Amy's my work that out, Jud. What's Amy to me?"

"She's my brother's child", he elucidated. "She's my niece, and that makes her your niece by marriage."

"That makes her my niece by marriage," Fran repeated, turning the slow beauty of her dark eyes upon Kelly. Cherry saw the look and it made her feel oddly hot and then cold. There was flame in it and challenge in it and provocation, and though the girl could not have given these things names, she knew what they were and what they meant.

"I'll have to come here and paint you at the house," Kelly said in an odd voice after a moment.

"Ah, well, if you could do that!" —I don't see that we're such criminals, I do, Kelly," she said, "you're two perfectly good escorts, out there in the lady's dog-cart; dance; very little; I hardly know these people—why on earth should I go?"

"To please me," Fran suggested, with an oblique glance at her husband and the hint of an unwilling smile.

"You'll be dancing or playing bridge."

"I'll be bored. I know that. I'd much rather stay at home and read Coventry Patmore. But for one thing," Fran said confidentially to the painter, somewhat lowering her tone as the judge went away to answer a telephone call. "I do it for Amy. After being so much abroad with Jud's mother, spending Winters in Palm Springs and New York, she's out of everything. We have to give her some sort of party next month. I must get a fresh my mind as to how it's done. It isn't to be now that I'm going to sit at home with Jud," he said, his tone quite changed.

"You don't really know me at all, you fine nervous fiery fingers were busy with the delicate lace on her handkerchief. "You've seen me only conventionalized."

"Janie saw Beatrice once," he said.

"It's so pleasant," said the woman, "to talk to a man who doesn't think Dante's a hospital and who pronounces Beatrice properly."

"I shall hope as our friendship ripens into real affection," Kelly said with little inclination of his head, "to please you in more important ways."

"Our friendship is going to ripen? How nice!"

"I don't be sure it will be nice. It may be — distinctly unpleasant," he warned her lightly.

She looked at him through half-closed lids at this, in a silence so long that Cherry, who had finished with cheese and coffee, could feel her heart beat in her throat painfully.

"You interest me," Fran presently said quietly.

"I can't think at this moment of anything I'd rather do," he answered in the same deliberate, half-serious fashion.

The judge returned before either spoke again, for although there was nothing in their words, Cherry noted that they did not say them but sat looking deeply at each other for a full half minute before Fran dropped her eyes. Amy came in from the box, following by two young men in formal evening attire that Cherry was little stir of departure. Cherry instinctively triumph when the others rose, that was convent training, but she suffered agonies of shame when nobody paid any attention to her.

When they all left the room she followed, not knowing what else to do, and slowly mounted the stairs between the great sweeps of her heart that no one would notice her or speak to her. Completely out of coats and sitting down on the stairs until they should be gone, she heard Fran's loud voice behind her.

"You'll have to ask Jud that," the woman said.

Flt. Lt. Hyndman Completes Set of Airmen's Portraits

Flight Lieutenant R. S. (Bob) Hyndman, of Ottawa, a Spitfire fighter pilot with a tour of operations to his credit, has added, temporarily, he hopes, the flaming career of his aircraft and taken up the less adventurous life of a war artist.

Bob enlisted in Ottawa, the "Flying Capital" in 1940 and after Williams and Saskatoon, received his wings, taught flying for two years at Uplands and was then posted to Digby-ville. Then he went overseas.

He flipped his "Spit" in the air for the first time in August, 1941, and during the next thirteen months piloted his fighter with bombs, V-sites, railroads and other enemy targets. He completed his tour of operations last January.

Bob at present is specializing in portraits of famous Canadian personalities, but regards his present wartaistic role as a temporary interlude with the hope they'll let me fly again.

Many Noted Airmen.

He has completed a set of portraits of the Canadian fighting leaders as well as outstanding Canadian airmen in other branches of the service. Included are AVM. C. M. McEwen, D.S.O., O.B.E., Air Officer Commanding the Bomber Group and former commanding officer of the Trenton Operational Training Unit; Wing Commander "Johnny" Fauquier, DSO and Bar, DFC; Group Capt. J. E. Lane, DSO, DFC and Bar; Group Capt. "Al" Deere, DSO and Bar, DFC, former group captain in the RCAF; Flt. Lt. "Buzz" Beurling, DSO, DFC and Bar, DFM and WC. R. W. Reid, DSO, DFC and two Bars, a black and white sketch of which hangs in a recent edition of "Wings Abroad," RCAF publication of overseas.

Besides these portraits, done in oils, he has also completed some charcoal sketches of other well-known fliers.

Bob came by his artistic ability naturally, as his grandfather was noted under Cecil Schaeffer, now RCAF war artist, at Central Technical School, Toronto.

1937 to 1939 he was an illustrator for a publishing firm in Kingston and in that period studied at the London General School of Arts and Crafts.

Sketched in Spare Time.

He didn't lose sight of his art while he was busy knocking Jerries out of French skies during the following D-Day. During his life in his fighter squadron he was busy in his spare time painting and sketching his crew mates and other service friends. He produced at least eighty full fledged "oils" and numerous sketches.

Some of his work is included in the service exhibition now being arranged by the RCAF at the National Gallery in Ottawa next year.

He is a son of the Hon. J. D. Hyndman and Mrs. Hyndman, who reside at 100 Park Road, Ottawa.

Bateman Motors Safe Cracked, $56 is Taken

Robbers blew open the office safe of the Bateman Motors on East Moira Street, Tweed, early Sunday and stole the cash contents, which Proprietor Bateman placed the loss, police learned over the weekend.

Entering a small bake near the combination knob of the safe, the robbers are believed to have used the nitro-glycerine method of placing a "soup cup" around the knob and affixing the cap with "soup", blew the safe combination off.

The robbery was discovered by company employees who returned to the office at 8.30 o'clock Monday morning. Police were immediately notified. Investigation, which followed lasted all day, revealed sufficient evidence to have the matter still being closely observed. The safe robbery occurred sometime after 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon when the premises, while on patrol at that hour, were checked by Mr. Bateman, the proprietor of the garage, and the major portion of the week-end's receipts, which, barring only changes money behind.

The clerks of Sidney and Thurlow townships, at a meeting held in the above decision, according to a special committee of the local fire committee regarding city fire fighting equipment going to rural centres or areas a few days ago. Hope to Increase Summer Resort Accommodation

Discussion of plans for 1945 publicity for the city of Belleville and the County of Hastings will take place next week when the executive of the county of the city and county met, it was considered.

The discussion will be unique in that in former years the main points were those designed to attract tourist trade to this area, while this year efforts will be made to induce county resort owners and others who cater to the tourist trade to increase certain types of accommodation.

Many Disappointed.

This is an aftermath of the experience of 1944 when tourist resorts, hotels, cottages and other vacation spots were crowded to capacity with a large number of potential vacation holiday makers turned away because or lack of the part of accommodation desired.

This situation was general, according to Mr. J. A. Gray of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. Neighboring counties had the same experience, he declared, and county directed through Chamber of Commerce channels met with similar disappointment.

Hope to Help.

Due to gasoline restrictions, the greater number of tourists travelled by train. They came, it was felt, in the main, to this area because of its nearness to the large influx of vacationists, but it is felt, will equal or even better that of 1944.

King Henry VIII And Anne of Kleves

It is not the first time, in all probability, the British foreign office have been heard from in regard to Anne of Kleves, usually described as the northern anchor of the Siegfried line, writes the York Times columnist. Actually, it may be remarked, in parenthesis, this final defence has in possess remarkable flexibility, both in depth and length. Allied troops hacking their way through the German defences are every little while described as having cut their way through the Siegfried Line, only to have it appear in later despatches that the Siegfried Line consists of a great number of separate lines, many of which still remain to be pierced.

It is not really a line at all, but a zone apparently capable of taking on additional girth. Similarly, it would be no great surprise to hear now that the Anne of Kleves line, better to retain as the place from which came Anne of Kleves. And she in turn lives in history for the remarkable fact of being married to Henry VIII and not getting her head cut off. She was the fourth to be married, and one of her by having Parliament annul the marriage after few months. Authorities seem to agree that Anne of Kleves was remarkably ugly and dull, but that this was why Henry treated her more humanely than he did poor Anne Boleyn. Anne of Kleves lived in retirement in England, surviving her former husband by a good many years.

But though King Hal treated Anne of Kleves with leniency, all things considered, it would appear that he took it out of the man who had to do with arranging the marriage with Anne. This was Thomas Cromwell, who rose from obscure beginnings to the highest office of state. Earlier in his career Cromwell was secretary to Cardinal Wolsey, who, it may be remembered, himself came to grief over Henry VIII's easy way with marriage and divorce, the occasion being the first and most famous case of all, hivolving Catherine of Aragon, with far-reaching historical consequences.

Shakespeare's Version.

It was Cardinal Wolsey who said to his secretary, as recorded by William Shakespeare:

O Cromwell, Cromwell,
Had I but served my God with half the zeal
I serv'd my King, he would not in mine age
Have left me naked to mine enemies.

But it seems that Cromwell did not take this warning to heart, or perhaps no amount of good advice would help when a person was up against King Hal. Ten years after Wolsey died, a heavier axe because he failed to give satisfaction in the case of Henry's first wife, Thomas Cromwell went to the block, partly because of Anne of Kleves. The trouble was not wholly with Anne's unattractive personality. With Henry VIII marriage was largely an instrument of policy. His foreign policy on the continent changed abruptly about that time, as foreign policies have been known to do.

Matter of Portrait.

This is a very few words we have got around to the reason for our opening statement. In suggesting that long before Field Marshal Montgomery the streets of Kleves may have resounded to British footsteps, we assume that at some point in the marriage negotiations between Henry VIII and Anne of Kleves a representative of the English King may have visited the lady in her home surroundings. But that is only conjecture. Anne father was dead at the time and she may have been living at the court of her step-in-law the Duke of Saxony, to whom Henry lspelled out a portrait of his intended bride. The Duke was sorry to report that his court painter Lucas Cranach was ill, and finally Henry VIII commissioned no less a specialist than Holbein the Younger, who was then in his employ, to do the work.

Holbein produced a portrait of Anne with which Henry VIII seemed to have been greatly pleased. The picture is now in the Louvre, and the experts speak of it as painted "with great fidelity," so it is a little difficult to say why Henry should have been pleased with it, considering his later feelings. But perhaps at the moment he was more pleased with the foreign policy than with the lady.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

With the R.C.A.F. Overseas, Feb. 24—(CP)—A Saskatchewan gunner helped bring down a Messerschmitt 109 after an attack on Osterfeld though his Lancaster had been badly damaged and both its turrets were wrecked.

P/O. W. A. T. White of (3568 Trimble St.) Vancouver, was pilot of the plane. The ME109 overtook the aircraft, firing at intervals. The Lancaster was riddled with holes, the trimming tabs and elevators shot away and the port outer engine stopped.

Then the German made his mistake. He flew to within about 50 yards of the starboard. Plt. Sgt. R. J. Jones of Kindersley Sask., and Sgt. G. H. Hopkins of Northcon, Ontario, in the damaged mid-upper turret, swung their guns by hand.

They poured bullets into the enemy at point-blank range and watched him burst into flame and go straight down.

James Donald Techee, 23-year-old New Brunswicker an airman mechanic in the R.C.A.F. three years ago, has been promoted flight lieutenant commanding a flight of rocket-firing Typhoons of the West Riding Squadron with R.A.F.'s 2nd Tactical Air Force in Holland.

Jimmy is "techee" to everyone, his surname becoming a nickname because of his more than six feet in height. The son of a St. Stephen, N.B., sawmill agent, Jimmy says he's found flak big main worry.

"When I've been on ops. I've never once seen an enemy aircraft . . . not even a flying bomb," he said.

Canadian flying Liberator bombers helped prepare the way for the invasion of Samrez Island off the Brittany coast, Reuter in the South East Air Command's offensive against gun positions on the Japanese stronghold. It was published the greatest air offensive of the Burma war.

Wing Cmdr. Hugo Beall of London, Ont., a Canadian in the R.A.F., led one Liberator squadron, and watched his men obliterate their target. Not a single enemy aircraft rose to intercept.

"The navy was blasting away as we arrived and as we bombed the landing barges were moving into shore," said WO. Howard Hughes of North Bay, Ont. His co-pilot was P/O. Ted Rawson of Kamloops, B.C. Other Canadians on the operation were Sgt. Henry Moorman of (7500 Osmond St.) Vancouver and Plt. Sgt. Charles Butcher, Sackville, N.B.

Ranging north to the Verona area in Italy on a recent operation, the R.C.A.F. City of Windsor squadron bombed and cut a supply line serving Kesselring's northern-most troops. The disrupted line was a railway between the manufacturing towns of Bologna and Monselice.

"There was lots of flak in the area but none for us," said P/O. Frank Doyle of (2021 Ave. W.) Vancouver. "We sailed over the target and let fly with bombs from 2,000 feet. The first one did the trick."

P/O. H. R. Curtis (140 Erskine Ave.) Toronto and the four planes that attacked, Capt. Spitzenberger (Plt. Offr. F/O. G. J. Hélmer of (20 Burnside Ave.) Ottawa and FO. R. O. Webster of (33 Brock St.) Kingston, Ont.

KILLED BY ROBBERS

Washington, Feb. 26 — (AP) — The bodies of two men, gagged and bound and both shot between the eyes, were found last night in an auto trailer parked on a used car lot in downtown Washington.

HARROW WAR MEMORIAL

Harrow, England (CP) — An appeal for contributions to a Harrow War Memorial Fund will shortly be sent to Old Boys of the famous English public school. Public Requested To Use Care in Mailing Parcels

To speed morale-building mail to members of the armed forces overseas and particularly to those soldiers who may be convalescing following wounds received on the battlefront, the postal department again is asking the general public to use care in addressing parcels and mail for overseas.

The department advises that addresses printed in block letters are much more clear than ordinary "hand-writing." Complete addresses make for speed in sorting and delivery of mail "over there." When writing to wounded men who are in hospital the usual complete address should have in large letters and preferably in red ink the two words "IN HOSPITAL."

So, if you have a friend or a relative "over there" who is under hospital care, address your parcel or letter just as you have been doing before, giving the unit as usual, and then in big bold capitals "IN HOSPITAL." That little extra care will speed the message to its destination and will mean a lot to the lad in the hospit.l cot.

Allies Prepared for Germany's Collapse

Churchill Promises Future Aggression To Be Impossible

Terms Proposed Polish Boundary Fair Division

By JAMES P. KING
(AP Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 27 — (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill declared today the great powers were completely prepared to take collapse of Germany, said the proposed Polish frontier would "not sow the seeds of future war," and gave his personal assurance of Russia's good faith in plans for the peace.

The prime minister demanded a vote of confidence from the House of Commons on the Crimea plans for a peaceful world, challenged particularly those who have criticized the Polish decisions.

He promised drastic and effective steps "to render offensive action by Germany impossible for generations to come", and called on Germans again to surrender.

Stevagar Rale by U. S.

Mr. Churchill said the United States would play a "vitally important part" in a new, far-stronger World League "which will be not shrink from establishing its will against the evil doer" by force of arms.

Giving the first public account by one of the principals in the momentous Crimea Conference, he termed the proposed Polish boundary "the fairest division which can be made between the two races."

Marshal Stalin has given "the most solemn declarations" that Poland's sovereignty and independence would be maintained, he said, and "the decisions now have been joined in both by Great Britain and by the United States."

Then Mr. Churchill added:

"The impression I brought back from Crimea and from all my other contacts is that Marshal Stalin and the Soviet leaders wish to live in honorable friendship and equality with the western democracies. I feel also that their word is their bond. I know, as a British statesman who stands on its obligations more solidly than the Russian Soviet government."

To Save World, Not Rule It.

He declared the objective of the great powers was "to save the world—not to rule it," and declared "the world organization cannot be based upon the dictatorship of the great powers."

Mr. Churchill interrupted his address an hour luncheon.

At one point the Prime Minister delivered a warning which indicated that the question of Russian participation in the war in the Pacific may have been at least raised at the Yalta conference.

He said the San Francisco World Security conference opening April 25 "will bring together the chosen representatives of the United Nations who have declared war upon Germany and Japan by the first of March, 1945, and who have signed the United Nations declaration."

Among diplomatic and parliamentary observers the question was whether Churchill meant that Russia would declare war on Japan by March 1—the day after tomorrow—or whether he merely was referring to the tickets of admission to the San Francisco conference.

The Press Association first gave the Prime Minister's words as "Germany and Japan."

In a later version of the text issued, the words were "Germany or Japan."

Then, by telephone to a query, the Press Association corrected the text to the original version, leaving it stand at "Germany and Japan."

Plan Drastic Steps

In shaping the new peace, "we intend to take steps far more drastic and effective than those which followed the last war so as to root out or eliminate by Germany utterly impossible for generations to come," the Prime Minister said.

Mr. Churchill demanded a vote of confidence in the Yalta plans for a peaceful world, especially challenging those who have created their criticisms upon the Polish decisions.

"If we were confronted tomorrow with a collapse of the German

Counter-Attack Thrown Back

Rome, Feb. 27 (AP)—The U. S. 10th Mountain Division has thrown back a strong German counter-attack in the area of Mount D'Elia Toscana, inflicting heavy casualties and capturing a number of prisoners, the Allied Command announced today.

The enemy counter-attack, which was launched in a dawn mist, was preceded by a heavy artillery barrage. After being forced to withdraw, they continued to throw heavy fire against the American positions in the mountains.

Brazilian troops who had moved to Mount Castello when the U. S. mountain troops made their push to Mount Belvedere and Mount D'Elia Toscana last week likewise were subjected to heavy enemy artillery fire. The Germans apparently up a small counter-attack near La Serra.

British Troops Capture Pagan

Kandy, Ceylon, Feb. 27 — (CP)— British and Indian troops have captured the ancient Burmese city of Pagan, 30 miles southwest of Mandalay, with a drive far inland from field territory that caught the Japanese by surprise.

A southeast Asia command communique last night announced the capture of Pagan, a censorship permitted description in a front dispatch of details of the river crossing, which took place Feb. 14.

The communique said the troops crossed the river in strength for a two-pronged drive on the big oil field towns of Chauk and Yenangyaung, and that Pagan, with its airstrip, a bridgehead four miles deep and a front wide was established.

Pagan is famed for its 5,000 glittering pagodas, and is considered one of the wonders of the East. Burma's great central oil fields stretch south from that city.

25,000 to 30,000 Casualties Caused In Attack on Berlin Says Report

New York, Feb. 27 (AP)—From 25,000 to 30,000 casualties were inflicted in Berlin yesterday by the 2,000-plane raid, Stockholm's Tidningen said today in a dispatch reported to the office of War Information.

Central and northern sections of Berlin were the worst hit, with "thousands of freight cars destroyed," the dispatch added.

A new type of incendiary bomb which cannot be extinguished with water, and which causes huge fires of unprecedented extent," the newspaper declared.

London Attacked

London — A fleet of 1,100 American bombers made another daylight attack on Berlin where fires still burned from yesterday's record blow that swerved south and pounded the big railroad centres of Leipzig and Halle.

The bomber train, protected by 700 long-range fighters, stretched for 150 miles as it roared to the targets 80 to 100 miles southwest of Berlin.

The Americans left the objectives, the German radio said, formations of R.A.F. bombers were flying in from the west and that yet other formations were heading for Berlin.

It was the 15th consecutive day of powerful attacks on Germany.

Hitting Berlin for the seventh night, the Mosquito crews said they observed scores of fires burning over a wide area. The R.A.F. struck at Berlin every week and struck anti-aircraft fire from the U.S. Flying Fortresses and Liberators crippled over Berlin and Leipzig, scoring a single enemy fighter. The Americans lost eighteen planes over the seven fighters.

Crews thought I would see the day when one could attack Berlin with so little trouble," said Capt. Joy Smith, of Weeping Water, Neb., Yesterday's load of more than 3,000 tons of explosives was unloaded in the very heart of the German capital, destroying railway stations were the primary objectives.

CANADIANS REACH OUTER DEFENCES OF HOCHWALD LINE

Five-Mile Advance Made Since Attack Opened Monday South Of Calcar

By ROSS MUNRO
(CP War Correspondent)

With the 1st Canadian Army in Germany, Feb. 27 — (CP Cable) — Canadian troops today fought their way through the mud into the outer defences of the Hochwald Line as their new offensive gained momentum, mauling the German 180th Parachute Division and taking 1,000 prisoners.

A five-mile advance has been made since the attack opened yesterday south of Calcar on the towns of Keppeln, Hollen and Todtenhausen have been captured. Ontario troops entered Hollen on foot, mopping up that important town.

"The Hochwald Line in which the enemy is fighting is Siegfried's third and final line of Siegfried Northern defences between the Maas and Rhine Rivers, and was the way to the industrial Ruhr, which the Germans have been calling on to defend to the last man, Canadian Lights

Canadian casualties have been comparatively light and the whole operation is rolling ahead to plan. But there were some gloomy periods yesterday when heavy ground fighting developed with the infantry and tanks pushed on with grim determination.

By this overnight comeback, several vital features of the Hochwald Switch Line have been occupied and the Canadians finally on the slopes dominating the Hochwald Line itself.

This morning, under gray skies which still are restricting air support, the infantry and tanks slowly moved down the slopes west of Hochwald Switch Line itself.

Motive Sought By U.S. Police

Binghampton, N.Y., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Police sought a motive today for the non-burial of five bodies, found on display after shifting them in a downtown cemetery, it was learned.

Detective Capt. Otto J. Kreutzer said Oscar Harding, a son of Mrs. Hattie A. Harding, 82, identified as one of the dead, was buried in another cemetery Oct. 9, that he had attended the funeral from the same casket, which he believed contained the body of his mother. Mrs. Harding's daughter, Mrs. Krause said the funeral arrangements had been operated by Donald Colling, Ackley and shandler for two months ago.

He added that the local rationing board reported that it had issued gasoline to Colling for a trip to drive to California upon his statement that he planned to go to another undertaking establishment there.

27 SENTENCED TO DEATH

New York, Feb. 27. (AP)—The Bulgarian People's Court has sentenced 27 Bulgarians to death for collaboration or anti-partisan activity, the Sofia radio said today, it was broadcast reported yesterday by the Political Commentators Committee.

Citizenship, Freedom Of Empire May Go To Poles in Br. Forces

London, Feb. 27 (CP) — "The Citizenship, Freedom of the British Empire"—if the Dominions approve—were offered today by Prime Minister Churchill to Polish forces serving under British command.

Paying tribute in his speech in the House of Commons to the large forces of Poles in the Middle East and airmen now fighting gallantly, as they have fought during the whole of the war," Mr. Churchill said Britain never would forget the debt it owes to the Polish troops.

His government, he said, is resolved that as many as possible of these forces shall be returned to Poland to participate in the life of their country and added:

"And for all those . . . under our command I earnestly hope it will be possible for them to have the citizenship and freedom of the British Empire if they so desire.

"I am not able to make a declaration on that subject today because all matters respecting citizenship are required to be discussed with the Dominion country and the Dominions and that takes time."

MAIN AIRFIELD ON IWO JIMA USED BY U.S. PLANES

Half of the Five-Mile-Long Island Now in American Hands

Guam, Feb. 27—(AP)—Capture of Iwo Jima "in a few more days" despite heavy fighting was predicted today by Lt.-Gen. Holland M. (Howlin' Mad) Smith, after his Marines won a critically important hill in the Central Plateau defense area.

Lieutenant-General Smith—now from Iwo's main airfield—said: "At this time, the Marine commander estimated that almost half of the five-mile-long island was in American hands at the start of the second week of the fifth month of the Pacific war.

Motorcade Airdrome No. 1 on southern Iwo Jima was put to use for the first time yesterday as fighter artillery spotter planes, little ways being put into operation between the Japanese defenses and bombers. The field is 700 yards long.

In the centre of the American battle line, Marines captured Hill 362 just east of the central airfield for a military triumph as significant as the earlier capture of Mount Suribachi at the south tip of the little island.

The Hill provides direct observation of the major Japanese defences and troop dispositions around the centre of the north, across which the assaulting Marines still have to make an uphill fight.

The central airfield, Motoyama No. 2, was virtually in American hands. Only the northeast tip of the two-strip fighter field remained of the enemy control at nightfall yesterday.

Mopping up was progressing in the central airfield area, Major Gen. Schmidt, at the southern end of Iwo, said little enemy fire fell on the beaches. Supplies and reinforcements were pouring ashore in increased quantities.

GEN. MACARTHUR RESTORES CIVIL GOVT. AT MANILA

Proclaims City Capital in the Philippines With Osmena as President

Manila, Feb. 27—(AP)—Gen. MacArthur proclaimed Manila today capital of restored civil government in the Philippines even as fighting continued within sight of the presidential palace and the Japanese defenders.

While MacArthur spoke in a moving ceremony at Malacanan Palace, Filipino troops, assisted by a new landing behind the enemy, were locked in a fierce struggle for control of Nichols airfield, seven miles south of Manila.

Japanese resistance in the south was strong, although in the north the Filipinos had driven through to within two miles of Baguio, summer capital of the United States and revered the stricken city.

Gen. MacArthur, surrounded by high officials, read a letter from President Roosevelt.

"Your country once again is at liberty to control its destiny to an honored position in the family of free nations," he said.

"Your capital city, severely punished though it be, has regained its ancient place as a symbol of democracy."

President Osmena, accepting the responsibilities, declared that in resuming the hope it might be possible to "restore the Philippines to have complete independence this year."

Earlier today, Filipino troops had dislodged in a commanding area the Japanese defenders of Nichols airfield, only 11 miles from Manila. Yesterday they landed Sunday on the Zig Zag Pass, 11 miles south of Manila, and by last night had driven a 1 mile channel between Luzon and Mindoro Islands. They also have moved west end of a direct route through the Zig Zag Pass to Batangas. Less than a week ago, the area was held by the Japanese invasions of Capul and Biri islands in the San Bernardino Strait between Luzon and Samar.

5-MILE ADVANCE

Paris, Feb. 27 (AP)—American tanks and tank-riding infantry broke through German defenses in the Siegfried Line yesterday and today in a raging attack into Germany in Rentgheven, 15 miles southwest of Aachen, front dispatches here said from the Eifl River.

S. Pacific Fleet headquarters announced today.

RUSSIAN TROOPS REACH BUBLITZ IN BREAK-THROUGH

Only 28 Miles From Baltic Coast Between Danzig and Stettin

Germans Report

London, Feb. 27—(CP)—Russian troops in a break-through in Pomerania have reached Bublitz, only 28 miles from the Baltic coast between Danzig and Stettin, the German High Command said today.

The push, aimed at cutting off Gdynia and Danzig, also thrust to Rummelsberg, further east and 38 miles from the Baltic, the broadcast communique added.

The German broadcast reports of heavy tank battles all along the Oder-Neisse river facing Berlin from the east, the veteran 1st While Russian and 1st Ukrainian armies meanwhile were jumping off from a front offensive for the Reich capital.

The German communique said the Russians crossed the Neisse at several points, but were stopped. It but declared they were repelled.

Moscow Gives No Hint.

Moscow gave no hint, however, of what was happening on this vital sector. LAST nightMy Soviet communique, one of the shortest in weeks, reported only minor actions on the Prussia and in besieged Breslau.

Coupled with the Nazi reports of fighting in Pomerania, where a new German assertion that Red army fighting patrols to the north had driven to within 23 miles of Stettin, Pomerania capital and Baltic port at the mouth of the Oder.

By German account, large Russian and German infantry and armored forces were fighting on a 100-mile line extending from Kustrin on the Oder-Neisse line southeast of Berlin, southward to the Lusatian Neisse at Guben, Goerlitz, Niesa's second city of 44,000 and the outskirts of Dresden.

Reich Neisse Everywhere.

Front reports from the Nazi Transocean Agency said Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukrainian Army had reached the Neisse "everywhere" but that the German hold on its confluence with the Oder southeast of Guben, the agency said the opposing forces were locked in a "merry-go-round of death."

Berlin has reported the Russians fighting in the suburbs of both Guben and Forst, Neisse river towns.

Guben gains in East Prussia were announced in the Soviet communique last night, with fierce fighting on both sides of Koenigsberg, key to the Baltic coast, for more than 2,000 German days.

Rail Communication Opened.

The German declared yesterday the Berlin-Danzig garrison had opened rail, water and road communications again from the West through Pomerania capital to Pillau, scene of German Heydekrug, 30 miles west of Koenigsberg Jan. 21 through capture of Gross Heydekrug, 30 miles east on the northern shore of Kurisches Haff.

Moscow announced capture of 15 more blocks of buildings in Breslau, Berlin's last army shock troops were within two miles of the heart of the city.

Youthful Paratroop Germans Taken, Found Far Below Usual Standard

With the 1st Canadian Army in Germany, Feb. 27 — (CP Cable) — The armored strength is fighting in the Canadian Army in yesterday's offensive on the Hochwald Line was a great surprise to German prisoners, according to prisoners.

A German lieutenant, captured with his company early in the battle told you: "We had only small numbers of tanks in this area. If we had known you had so many we would not have fought at all. There were too many of them, so many."

It appears that the German Army on the Rhine is having a tough time keeping even its crack units up to standard due to losses and fast-diminishing manpower resources.

The Canadians captured hundreds of 17-year-old and 18-year-old youths from the 6th Parachute Division, one of Germany's elite formations. They had been in the line only since last November when they began infantry training. Their fighting qualities were far short of the usual standard of German paratroop formations.

Many of these youngsters were stationed in northern Holland but several days ago they were rushed by train and truck to the Hochwald Line.

Heavy Artillery Already Shelling Cathedral City

Defences Splitting at Seams Along 200-Mile Nazi Front

London, Feb. 27 —(AP)— A Berlin broadcast said United States troops had reached the Erft river at Bedburg, within eight miles of Cologne.

Paris, Feb. 27. (CP) — Massed Allied drives toward the Ruhr intensified today, with Canadians fighting into the last defence line guarding the northwest corner of the German industrial district, and American tanks breaking into the outlying defences of Cologne.

Canadians advanced five miles capturing the strategic road centre of Udem and reaching the outer defences of the Hochwald line, less than 12 miles from the Ruhr. The U. S. 1st Army, to the south, was closing in on Cologne, its heavy artillery already shelling the great cathedral city.

The U.S. 3rd Army, captured high ground overlooking the Erft River, moved to within a mile of strategic Bitburg and drove to within towns in the Rifels along a 30-mile front to which we present pressure gave forward the middle Rhine and Moselle Polders.

Splitting at Seams.

All along the 200-mile Assault front from Emmerich on the lower Rhine to the new solid bridgehead across the Sgar River six miles east of Saarlnrg, the thinly spread German defences are splitting at the seams. Spokesmen for both the 21st and 12th army groups declared that clean cut break-throughs had been achieved. Prisoners captured in February alone passed 80,000; the total since June 6 has passed 1,300,000. Yet only a fraction of Gen. Eisenhower's 73 German divisions had been identified in the battle of annihilation to clear all Germany west of the Rhine.

Reports hours behind the fast pace of the U.S. 1st Army said its men were looking at Cologne chimneys and spires 10 1-2 miles ahead. Capture Six Towns.

The 8th Army captured six towns including Venrath, five miles from Munchen Gladbach, westernmost point of the Ruhr, 12 miles away, and Rodert, administrative centre of the Ruhr, and only 13 from Cologne. Flies across the Rhine from Dusseldorf.

The Canadian advance carried to within 22 miles of Duisburg, world's greatest inland port and chief centre of the Ruhr which in 1943 crafted three-fourths of all German war plants.

1st Canadian Division.

The Canadians captured Keppeln, Hollen and Todtenhilgel and badly mauled the German 8th Parachute Division, from which 1,000 of the 2,000 captives were taken.

Troops crocked into Odor Calcar and unmoored Rundstedt's "Caen Ridge" on the northern front. The Canadians took and firmly established all high ground dominating the Hochwald and Siegfried line defences of the forest's outer defences, in which a switch line of the Siegfried defications awaits them. A few odd elements still were being wiped up in the Udem area, 5,500 in a five-mile valley 15 miles west of the Ruhr city of Wesel.

Canadian officers termed the progress "good," and said that the greatest handicap. The mud is the only thing to be critical on the northern front, heavy dispatches said, because the enemy is in a precarious position.

The Hochwald is the last big German stronghold in the northern Rhineland, and forward positions have within 1,000 yards of the woods with tanks and artillery.

A few German tanks were defeated in Keppeln in an armored battle in the streets. Southwest of Endern, the Canadians were holding ground in great strength.

West of Goch, Scottish troops were battling furiously and waging a battle in a seminary near the Maas River.

The Canadians and the American 3rd and 9th armies captured 20 German towns overnight. The largest was Hasiena, a critically important road centre and the last large place before Mienchen Gladbach.

At places on the water-logged Cologne plain, the Americans had penetrated 33 miles from Germany and about 100 miles from Berlin. They were less than three miles from the Erft river, where a stout German defence line based on a wooded ridge and old style trenches was given Field Marshal von Rundstedt his last chance to stop the Allies from reaching the Rhine.

Great gains were within grasp. These included Cologne, 598,000, greater Cologne-Leverkusen-Opladen, 1,000,000; Dusseldorf, 540,000 and 111th in size; Duisburg, 451,000 and 19th; Munchen Gladbach, 127,000; and the Ruhr metropolis of Essen, 901,000, which the Americans will menace from the heights 18 miles away. Outflanked Trier, 96,000, was within sight and four miles of the 3rd army.

The battle on the Cologne plain was a rout, but the gains were virtually as fast as the engineers could wad and wade across the rolling country. The Germans had tried to convert into a field Eisenhower's 73 divisions, but the man strength left west of the Rhine was not enough to stop the onslaught.

Hundreds of the hard pressed eastern front were known to be accounted for much of the thinest. Rundstedt appeared to have been placed in a position where, against a major force attack, he has to retreat, since he lacked troops be ascribe in middle ranks. He had assigned 10 divisions to the Roer front and 10 to the Saar.

German Press Weakly.

Even if German rule weaker than it does appear, there was more than 60 divisions, many of them fresh and reinforced, that force guarded the 400-mile stretch from Aachen to the Swiss border. Also, von Rundstedt was believed to have the 5th Panzer Army east of the Rhine for a counter-attack to save the Ruhr, but that army had been smashed in the abortive Ardennes offensive.

The American army, forming the northern jaw of the trap that is closing around the Ruhr, advanced 21 miles yesterday, near the Hochwald Line, believed the Siegfried system of defence line in that sector. Stouffville-Uxbridge Orange Hall, to said to have been entered.

Field Marshal von Rundstedt called upon his command to have "fanatical Ruhr approaches to the last man, and to the last round, that they otherwise all would be lost.

In the affairs of the city Henry Greenleaf took a keen interest and during 1922, 1923 and 1924 he served as a member of the city council and in 1925 he was elected Mayor of the city and filled the office in a most capable manner. Depth of Snow Greatly Decreased In This District

Despite the recognized excessive depth of snow in the north, until the past week, the absolute minimum quantity of water thaws, tops of high knolls and hills with a southern exposure in some instances are already beginning to appear through their winter mantle. Depth of snow has very noticeably decreased since last Wednesday when the first thaw came. Rain fell Thursday and Friday of the snow was reduced until although no water has yet appeared on the surface, farmers generally are beginning to take on new life with a corresponding reducing of labor required for supplying water for stock.

In the city the milder weather has been evident by the drying of sidewalks in the downtown areas, while snow in backyards has been measurably reduced with the city as a whole presenting the annual dirty appearance of late winter.

Three Outstanding Rotary Principles Theme of Talk

Three outstanding principles of Rotary International, in the commemoration of its 40th anniversary, were clearly outlined by Rotarian Reginald Hamilton, president of the Trenton Rotary Club, in a talk given before the members at the weekly luncheon on Monday.

These principles, Mr. Hamilton said, were friendship, the opportunity for service, the ideal to help those who are unable, through physical disabilities, to have new zest in life.

"Friendship, he defined, as consisting of courage, sincerity and the standing up for a principle whether right or wrong. It does not deal with but knowing a man. The friendship idea in Rotary, like any other organizations are going to go far beyond the confines of the club.

"Friendship is easy if you like a man," Rotarian Hamilton continued, "but it is a thing that should be big enough for you to like a man in spite of his errors of judgment."

Placing of Opportunities.

Placing of opportunities for those able to help themselves had been exemplified in Rotary, Rotarian the speaker said, citing as an illustration the Hotel Club sponsored by the Trenton club men.

Lincoln, he said, might have been a still greater statesman had he had the opportunities now available to the boys of the country.

Parents, he added, having in mind the man of design of the future should place every opportunity before their own children for the great men in the future will be yours or mine."

Rotarian, the word go, should look with justifiable pride on their achievements in the rehabilitation of crippled children, "inasmuch as there is one in your club or one of these our children" may not deserve the people in the ordinary sense of the word, but they are still in touch with actual work for the children when the words were born with emphasized meaning.

Rotarian Hamilton then stated International Rotary convention in 1937, the speaker had visited Holland and had the honor of Belgian women to commemorate the battle of Waterloo. Two days and limbs, the tonsili and other operations of crippled children were done by Rotary could be turned into things material, the mound would be larger than that of Waterloo," he said.

Case Cited.

He cited one of the cases of the Trenton Rotary Club, that of a bright brave 11-year-old boy who was stricken with a fatal disease. His people were underprivileged and lived "close to the ground" in fact the lower floor of a dwelling was ground itself."

The boy developed tumors off the spinal cord that ran the length of the spine. A spongy growth pressed underneath an arm. We took him to Toronto after which expert gave him six months to live. The lad never complained. He endeared himself to his nurses and was satisfied to play with a toy or a book or a game. Both his parents he chatted with everyone. Then doctors decided to operate on the arm growth and the lad was taken to the big chief mourners in Trenton, where he was buried in the side of a hill, were past presidents of the Rotary Club.

"The gratitude of the parents was marked. But more, it was suggested that the club help others in the community. "You have done enough for us. We cannot thank you for much, was their reply."

"Then the case have had a Skippir ending, Rotarian Simmons said, and it is one of the things that all Rotarians should be proud.

Great Unselfish Movement.

In wishing "many happy returns of the day" to Rotary International, which he defined is as one of the greatest most unselfish movements, that has been in vogue for many years. But he greatest work he already done there is a research committee in Rotary he said, that is finding out its pulse on things to come. "May that research voice of Rotary International be a great success."

A toast was introduced by Rotarian Ralph Mathias with Rotarian J. C. Herity expressing the club's appreciation. President "Pink" Pitcher was in the chair. Several Trenton Rotarians were present as guests.

CHURCHILL

forces, there is nothing that has not been foreseen and arranged beforehand by the European Advisory Commission," he said.

He gave no hint as to when he believed that collapse would come. Significant he did say that the war in Europe had been prolonged a good many months beyond the hope of last autumn while the eventual collapse of Japan was nearer than previously anticipated.

From the 50-year-old Prime Minister came definite assurance that the great powers had taken into consideration the role of the little nations in the future World Security League to be established at the San Francisco parley.

"The world organization," he said, "cannot be based on the dictatorship of the great powers. It is their duty to preserve the world, not to rule it."

The Prime Minister said his government had "a right to know" where it stood in parliamentary opinion on the Yalta Conference.

Mr. Churchill pledged himself to a showdown with his critics in opening a discussion of the Crimea Big Three pact in which members of a small group of Conservatives have been sharpshoot at the "Big Three" Yalta Conference.

The debate, heralded as one of the most important ever held in the British House of Commons, was the biggest crowd to the House in years.

Among early arrivals in the gallery was the Russian Ambassador Gusev.

He said he was against Japan was discussed by him and President Roosevelt and the joint British-American staffs at Malta before they proceeded to Yalta to meet Marshal Stalin.

He declared that within the war in Europe had been prolonged what a good many months beyond what the year period against Japan had been shortened by months by the American victories in the Pacific.

As for the Polish question, he said the Big Three "faced realities in a manner that is unexceptional in any act of gaise on which parliament has to express its opinion."

The government feels that it must know where it stands with the Yalta Conference.

Plans already made, he declared, are fully reaching that "if we were confronted with a number of colleges or the German forces there would be nothing to do but to have seen and arranged beforehand by the European Advisory Commission."

Another note of criticism came from both sides of the Atlantic over the failure to invite France to the Crimea Conference. Mr. Churchill said the three great powers felt they could not "cast upon France the cruel and burden of the war, and could not be expected to be asked to be placed upon their fighting line together."

He added, however, that during the last five days the French Provisional Government headed by Miss Bidault had been "fully informed" of the decisions which had been given an opportunity to express their most effective manner the views in it.

"France may find many reasons for contentment with the Crimea Conference," Churchill said.

Swinging into plans for the future, the Prime Minister caused laughter in the House when he said:

"The San Francisco conference will bring together all the nations who have been at war with Germany and Japan and many are declaring war on Germany since Yalta."

Mr. Churchill announced for the first time that Foreign Secretary Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., Undersecretary Clement Attlee, would represent Great Britain at San Francisco.

Words Closely United

"The Crimea Conference," the Prime Minister declared, "finds the Allies more closely united than ever before, both in the military and political sphere."

Quite more warning the German people that they had better surrender now, Mr. Churchill declared:

"Let Germany recognize that it is futile to hope for a division among the Allies and that nothing can avert her utter defeat.

"Further resistance will only be the cause of more suffering. The Allies are resolved Germany shall be completely disarmed, that militarism in Germany destroyed and war criminals justly and evilly punished."

Then he gave a more detailed account of what the Crimea Pact means, saying:

"It is not the purpose of the Allies to destroy the people of Germany, but when them without the necessary means of subsistence. Industry is not revenge but to take such steps as are necessary to enable us to secure the future peace and safety of the world.

"There will be a place one day for Germany in the comity of nations, but only when all traces of Nazism and militarism have been finally and irrevocably eradicated."

He warned, however, that "Germany's capacity for war and production shall be eliminated or controlled and Germany shall make compensation in kind to the utmost of her ability for damage "done the Allied Nations."

He did not specifically mention the demand of Russia — and some other Europeans — that German labor be forced into repair work. But Britain and the United States have clearly stated they would make no claim for such labor.

Mr. Churchill carried the fight directly to critics of his government's Polish policy and asserted he believed the Russian claim to land east of the Curzon Line was just and reasonable.

"If I demand this frontier for Russia," he declared sharply, "it is not because I bow the knee. It is the fairest division which can be made between the two unequal races.

"I cannot conceive that we should not regard it as well informed and fair proposal."

Churchill explained in accepting a frontier which over intervening distances is 200 to 300 miles further to the east than was Russian territory for many generations under the Czarist regime."

Two Main Issues

He said the Polish problem was divided into two main issues — the frontier problem and the freedom of Poland — and asserted:

"The freedom, independence, integrity and sovereignty of Poland have always been the British government more important than the Polish frontiers.

But for the "prodigious efforts and sacrifices of Russia," he maintained, "the Poles as a nation and as a race were doomed by Hitler to be destroyed or reduced to a servile state.

"I repudiate and repulse any suggestion that we are making a compromise with principle or yielding to force and power against right and established convictions. We cannot forget that for five years, at the time, all the three great Allies were fighting for life.

"While new Polish frontier, he said, will not sow the seeds of future wars.

In stopping the new peace, he said, we desired to take steps for more drastic and effective than those which followed the last war as to render offensive action by German militarism impossible for generations to come.

Mr. Churchill said the Yalta agreement did not "by far" give Britain's continued reception of the Polish Provisional Government in London and explained the negotiations would be resumed, "until such time as the Polish Provisional Government has been reconstructed on a new and broader basis and a new provisional government formed in principle."

The Yalta agreement, he added, did not "involve the exercise of mediate" recognition by Britain of the Lublin Government, devoid of national government now operating in Poland.

"There would have been no hesitation," he declared if the Polish Government had consulted us or taken counsel," he contended. "The Polish

Program for Coming Year Outlined to Members, Other Business Concluded

Between delegations and business the regular session of the City Council on Monday night did not conclude until after the midnight hour, Reeve W. C. Mikel, Chairman Cleo R. Young, secretary-treasurer-Orland Pinkston and Commissioners Charles Symond and Maurice Callaghan of the Parks Board, Lorne Munro, local last year-er and Police Chief Walter Probert all appeared before the members and it was after ten o'clock before the regular session of the council was started. The time was extended two hours at one point of the proceedings to allow the business to be completed before adjournment.

Mr. Mikel came to the council with a request, that the city celebrate its Air Home Week in 1946. He stated that Belleville was incorporated as a town in 1850 and a re-union was one of the best things for a city because it received a lot of publicity at low rate of cost. The members looked with favor on the proposition and it was decided to

The Recent Clinic

When almost eight hundred persons, members of the staffs of the city businesses, hotels, restaurants and of other employers attended the two-day chest clinic under the Division of Tuberculosis Prevention of the Ontario Department of Health at Belleville last week, they indicated in a clear manner how health-conscious men and women of the towns and cities and countryside of Canada have become, and the task of educating the people to regard their health as the most treasured possession has reaped already a good harvest and offers the promise of still happier day when the population will be one hundred per cent alert to every requirement of health protection and maintenance.

These eight hundred persons do not make up all who have been examined here by the provincial and local health authorities for employees of the large industries had previously been examined.

The efforts of health authorities and public men have long been directed to the work of educating the public to care for health. This publicity has been one of the agencies leading to this growth of general interest in personal health, and also the general health of the people.

The great struggle now being waged in Europe and in the Pacific have laid stress upon the necessity of health, the sound body and the sound mind. Examinations of young men for the services have revealed many physical handicaps and this has emphasized the need of health measures to maintain the nation's people as well as in war. Industry has learned a lesson in the need of health through the incidence of illnesses and the loss of man-hours through inability of some workers to attend to their duties efficiently at times.

The Provincial Department of Health is to be commended on the steps which have been made and are being taken in improving the health of the people of Ontario. Improvement of the conditions of the people in respect to tuberculosis is one of these. A great improvement has been attained but more remains to be done to guard and guide the people in the way of health for their own and society's sake.

All this gives a forecast of further progress.

The hearty co-operation of industry and employees in this clinic at Belleville is deserving of praise. They have done well.

Hitler Pessimistic

Hitler has at last admitted that Germany has been given a terrible beating so that "there is no greater terror in store for us." This he wrote in an address which was read at a meeting of the old Nazi guard on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the announcement of the National Socialist program. A part of the text said on Saturday that his sense of duty and work prevented his attendance at the anniversary meeting.

His entire speech except for a brief change in attitude at the close was one of pessimism and he seemed to revel in dark thoughts and to toy with the idea of himself as a martyr. Characteristically he attacked the "Jewish Bolshevist plague" as he called it and also characteristically he threatened shirkers with annihilation and demanded sacrifice to the last breath.

Hitler's type likes to relish the thought of sacrifice and he said that he would be "happy to bear everything others have to bear to the last as long as it is possible to be human." Along the same line of thought was his statement that he was sorry that his mountain retreat at Berchtesgaden had not been destroyed in the recent Allied raid and remarked that "whatever I can call my own is no more valuable than what belongs to any people." He is posing as a martyr before himself and Germany. He was not posing as a martyr in May 1940 when he danced a jig at the time of the fall of France.

He admitted that Germany was putting up or would put up a last-ditch stand and repeated again and again that he hoped Providence would not let down the nation when it put up such a fight.

He is in a mood that is most pessimistic and he seemed to delight in thinking thoughts of gloom associated with destruction. At the time of the Allied landing in North Africa he had a spell of gloom resting upon him at a meeting at Munich and seemed to take sad pleasure in conjuring up a picture of himself as staying in Germany in the event of the war going against Germany. He said he would not leave Germany, a reference of course to the flight of the Kaiser to Germany as the First World War was closing and revolution broke out. Now events have turned against Germany very definitely and these events are enough to throw him into deep gloom. So he spoke in such a vein about Berchtesgaden. It suits his mentality and mood to speak of destruction. All his regime has been marked by destruction which has been the prevailing attitude and finding his program collapsing he still likes to cherish thoughts of destruction. He has been a destroyer because he delighted in it for he is a glorification of selfishness first of all, despite his references to his love for "his" people. Under his regime his associates have been destroyers and criminals of the worst type and their atrocities will not be forgotten for there are to be tribunals set up to try the offending Huns. Hitler is a study in evil.

112 Spellings

(Christian Science Monitor)

How many ways can you spell Aleutians? A censor reports that letters from soldiers assigned to a single Pacific station spelled the name of those islands 112 different ways. Our guess is no recipient scoffed at the spelling.

In another period like this one when great Americans were doing considerable writing—turning out things like the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution—a person could indulge his every taste instead of the dictionary about many words, and be counted none the less a scholar. We like to recall also the remark of the professor of literature who said: "It doesn't matter much if a person writes 'I seed' for 'I saw' provided that person has really seen something."

Last night the boys wrote Aleutians 112 different ways, have certainly seen something, and, what's more, done something. They may spell Aleutians as they wish, for all we shall say. One word, however, we emphatically will spell with a capital, and the right way, homebodies and soldier boys alike, it has four letters that spell—home.

What the Servant Knew

(Manchester Guardian)

Mr. Lloyd George's earldom has resulted in a flood of information about the exact position and titles of all his sons and daughters. It seems to be thought that no one nowadays appreciates the correct form in such niceties. A hundred years ago the servants' hall was naturally acquainted with those details—and may be so today in establishments where they are of vital importance.

G. W. E. Russell used to tell a story of the two little boys, respectively the eldest and second son of an earl, who were playing on the front doorsteps of their home when the elder fell into the hall below.

The younger called to the footman who picked his brother up: "Is he hurt?" "Killed, my lord," was the immediate reply of a servant who knew the devolution of a courtesy title.

Prices of Stock

(Minneapolis Star Journal)

Two Hereford bulls sold at $50,000 each at auction in Denver, and stockmen, prettly excited, talked of record prices. That may be a record so far as Herefords go, but dairy breeds have sold much higher.

During our previous war-inflationary period, a two-months-old Holstein bull sold for $35,000 at the 1918 national Holstein sale, at the Minnesota Fair Grounds. The year before, Mike Enright of East Grand Forks, Minn., sold a bull to Col. Gustav Pabst of Milwaukee, Wis., for $65,000.

And at the national Holstein sale in Milwaukee in 1917, the Carnation Company paid $106,000 for a bull, believed to be tops for a public sale.

WISE GRANDMA

The time when I was sick-a-bed
The doctor shook his head
At many a thing my Grandma said.

"Give onions once or twice a day,
Until typhus fever keep away!
Bread mould is good for cuts!" she'd say.

"When pennies in the damp, turn green,"
She told us with a smile serene,
"They'll help to keep a sore spot clean."

The doctor viewed her with alarm.
Said he: "In spite of all their charm,
Old women do a lot of harm."

Now moulds, produced by science pure
And methods new, precise and sure,
Are working miracles of cure.

Through long the tribute's overdue,
I'd say, in light of knowledge new:
My grandma knew a thing or two.

Chief Pilot of Pyle's Plane Has Had Noted Career as Airman

Ernie Pyle is with the Navy in the far Pacific. This is an article written on his way.

By ERNIE PYLE

In the Marianas Islands — (Delayed) — Our chief pilot on the last long leg of our flight from Honolulu to Guam was Lieut. Comdr. Don Shirvin. He's from the family that owns the hotels in Oklahoma City and even if you didn't know it you'd know from his creased heads and neck that he's either a Texan or Oklahoman.

Commander Shirvin has never worked at the hotel business though he has to have freedom, and said about the hotels: He has been flying 26 years — flew for oil companies in South America, went to Spain during the revolution and flew combat there.

Then came the war and he went into the Navy and flew combat in the South Pacific. But he likes big plane best, and now is transferring from airplane to flying boats.

Just before daylight Commander Shirvin sent the orderly back to wake me up, and sailed me to come forward to the pilot's compartment. Then he had me sit in the co-pilot's seat, and from that exalted vantage point on this monster of the air I saw the dawn gradually come and lighten the ostiony acres of clouds on three over the wide Pacific.

Flying is mostly monotonous and dull. But there are always little peaks of grandeur in every flight. Seeing this dawn come was one of them. It was an unutterable thing, and couldn't help but be thrilled by it.

Commander Shirvin likes flying as a hobby, and has taken 1600 feet of color film of just such dawns and sunsets as this one. He said the folks at home wrote that if he saw such things often, no wonder he liked to fly.

* * *

We came out of the boundless sky and over our island destination just a little after dawn. The island was very beautiful — and incredibly far from home — down there in the Pacific blue.

It seemed unbelievable that we could find and drive ourselves to it unerringly out of the vast Pacific spaces. It was like a blind man finding a dime across a field, and putting his finger directly on some previously planted knob of a wire fence on the other side. But as I say, they do it all the time. (Thank the Lord.)

Then Commander Shirvin asked if I would like to stay up there while we landed. Indeed I would. For that is a rare invitation. I stood just behind the two pilots while we circled the field and dropped lower and circled again.

The instruments of these immense planes is like a ritual in school. The co-pilot takes a printed list, entitled in daylight, "Pre-Flight," of instrument board. Then he starts reading aloud, down the list. After each item the pilot calls back "check."

It takes five minutes to go through all the complicated adjustments to change the plane from something that will only fly, into something that will also range successfully with the earth. Always the typed list is read aloud and checked to make sure that no single thing is forgotten.

And then we were ready. It was right down close to the ground, and sweat was pouring off me. Over his shoulder Shirvin gave commands and radio the coming and the ground

Premier Drew Defines Government Attitude Toward Allowances Act

Toronto, Feb. 27 (CP)—A statement by Premier Drew, defining his government's attitude toward family allowances, was expected to end speculation of the Ontario legislature today. But the possibility of an early termination of the present session was not yet ruled out.

Debate on the controversial issue was deferred to the Throne Speech debate after Premier Drew told the government is not opposed to family allowances but suggested that the Act be permitted to lapse in order to prevent the Federal Act going into effect. A. A. MacLeod (Lab.-Prog., Toronto, Bellwoods) called the Premier's statement a "humiliating retreat" and declared it is certain that the House sit down to discuss the allowances question.

It was Mr. MacLeod's motion that today opened the way for vigorous attack on the administration by representatives of all non-government parties, leading to the persistent rumor yesterday that dissolution would result. It was thought the government might seek a confidence vote and, if defeated, would dissolve the assembly.

Crisis May Again Arise.

When the issue comes up in the Throne Speech debate tomorrow or Thursday, a crisis may again arise. Mr. MacLeod, C.C.F. opposition leader, is expected to move an amendment on the subject, which will probably be supported by the Liberals and Labor-Progressive as well as the C.C.F.

Premier Drew told the House that Mr. J. G. Althouse, M.P., has calculated this in my own family would entail the purchase of vitamin supply....

Excuse me, but I must interrupt right here to call to the attention of these puzzled nutrition authorities who take frequent issue with the sound off on the half-baked theory that a well balanced diet supplies all the vitamins the ordinary individual needs. Here is the considered judgment of the Professor of Experimental Medicine in the medical city of Cincinnati, that his own family scarcely gets enough vitamins from what he eats and he presumes to be a reasonably well balanced one. Maybe some of the prominent debunkers of the vitamin school tell the Professor how to do the trick. I notice that no one ever offers a simple menu of the well balanced diet so difficult to attain.

I have accomplished this in my own family (Dr. Mills means) by reinforcing the dietary vitamin supply with the regular addition of a crude extract of alfalfa leaves—alfalfa is one of the richest known sources for most of the B vitamins. (End of quotation from Dr. Mills' book.)

That reminds me, Brady, that a long time ago we printed in this column a report by a western farmer who declared that his cows never ever he felt the need of a lift, and a cup or two of freshly brewed alfalfa tea never failed to refresh and restore him when he came in feeling depressed and weary. Now I do not guarantee any result from alfalfa tea, but better alfalfa tea can do no harm in any country you may like or in any form. If you do try it and fail to feel the desire to look to your head and prance about the pasture — don't write to me about it. Remember, in this instance I'm merely passing along Dr. Mills' suggestion.

The B vitamins are soluble in water and hence alfalfa tea will contain a considerable amount of them, and also a certain portion of steeping or heating the better.

Most people naturally assume "Julian" comes from the calendar in his capacity of dictator. The calendar was drawn up under the jurisdiction of the Roman pontiff, however, and Julius Caesar was elected "pontifex maximus," equivalent to "pope" of the Roman Roman religion. It was in his capacity as pontifex maximus that Caesar extended the duties and function of revising the calendar.

The Julian calendar was in general use until the adoption of the Gregorian calendar, which was put into effect by the supervision victual.

Rflm. R.K. McFall Returns Home

Marmora — The homecoming of Rifleman Robert K. McFall to his wife and two children at Roseville on Saturday afternoon was a happy one indeed. Rifleman McFall, who has been overseas for the past two years, was met at the station by his wife and family and friends.

Rifleman McFall was with the Canadian Scottish Regiment when he was captured on December 19, 1941. He crossed to Sicily with the Canadian Scottish Regiment with D-Day, 10 days after. Subsequently he took part in the landing at Reggio on the toe of Italy. After being in Italy for a few months he was travelling with comrades in a Bren Gun Carrier when it was struck by a German 88 shell. Rifleman McFall was unconscious for a short time when rendered first aid for further treatment. Duty and the command was short, discipline was the most salient feature of the army, he was not unduly concerned about the goings of the Atlantic. Looking back on his experiences Rifleman McFall recalled the strafing and bombing of Naples and his countries found awaiting the Allies on the blanks of the W.V.S. and the Red Cross of Canada.

"Wherever we landed," he said, "we found the English people very good." Several interesting things Mr. McFall saw during his time in Italy, but his grandest thing, he said, was the warm welcome he received from his wife and family. His elder son, Robert Allen, celebrated his third birthday on February 8th. This boy, it is interesting to note, is the fourth generation of the McFall and Irving families. Rifleman McFall and his father and grandfather bearing the same name.

TULIPS AT EDGE OF SNOWBANK

Port Hope, Feb. 27 (CP)—Native Motherlovers would probably be amazed at the hardiness displayed by their favorite tulips at Dale, Ont., near here.

Bulbs, ranging in height from one-half to two inches, are already thriving at the foot of a snowbank. Reason for the early growth is that early snows prevented the ground from freezing.

90 Canadians Among 3,000 Prisoners Of War Liberated by Reds

Moscow, Feb. 27 (CP Cable) — Ninety Canadian officers and other ranks are among 3,000 Allied prisoners of war liberated from German camps by the Russian Army who will be home shortly from a reported 1,000 miles away, Brig. Hereward Lafferty, Canadian military attache, announced today.

No names were available.

Col. Admiral E. A. Archer, Chief of the British Military Mission here announced that about 2,000 British officers and 1,000 other ranks former prisoners, will go home shortly. All have been found "in very good physical state," he said, but the majority are officers, non-commissioned officers and men.

The first group is expected to arrive in London March 6th (tomorrow).

The authorities hope to make broadcasts in English, Russian and Polish, directing all liberated prisoners to collection points which they will be guarded to Odessa.

At the camp teams of experts will, usually under Red Cross identity of all prisoners. It is known that some Germans already have tried to pass themselves off to the Russians as Americans, Britons or Canadians.

Brig. Lafferty is furnishing the press food copies in accordance with a prisoner repatriation agreement signed at Tehran.

The Russians are preparing a transit camp near Odessa until they be taken over by a British repatriation party at Tehran.

Pass in Review.

Prince Albert, Sask., Feb. 27 (CP)—The 120th, 121st and 122nd Battalions in the open, in temperatures ranging to 30 below zero, the 1,760-men and officers of Canada's "Eskimo force" marched past Governor-General Alexander, Premier Hon. Mackenzie King, M.P., and Premier Hon. Jean Lesage in the saddle of two horses, passed in review before Brig. G. A. H. Trumbell, officer commanding Military District No. 12 Sunday, to mark the completion of the first phase of exercise in fighting under sub-zero conditions in Saskatchewan.

Platoon of the R.C.A.F. army co-operation squadron, which participated, rossed overland during the 30 kilometres required for the long line, 1 vehicle, a jeep, in the reviewing stand.

Commander of the international aspect of the exercise, representatives of the British and United States armies were on the reviewing stand. Also on the stand were Lt. Col. W. E. Medlicott, D.D., district chief of Staff of the exercise, and Lt. Col. Trumbell.

Of the 1,500-men and N.C.O.'s, 80 percent are R.M.A.s personnel. It is stated they are slated for overseas service, senior N.C.O.'s and key personnel were granted service furloughs.

Several score of observers representing the United States army and the British War Office participated in the exercise.

Following a return to Prince Albert completed a six weeks' tactical exercise at Big Bonge, 180 air miles north of Prince Albert and 300 from the starting point. Including taxi-ing, manoeuvres, about 800 miles were covered. For the six weeks the men had no shelter other than the special winter tents prepared for the exercise.

Mechanical equipment put to the test included virtually every vehicle which operates in a potential north role in Winter fighting. There were tracked carriers, ambulances and jeeps, in addition to wheeled vehicles which included jeeps and tracked vehicles from lumbering tanks to the gun carriers, weasels, and others specially designed for use on snow covered terrain.

LOOTED OF TREASURES

Toronto, Feb. 27 —(CP)—Francis H. Taylor, director of the Pennsylvania Museum of Art, New York, Saturday night told the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada that the German armies looted Europe of about $26,000,000,000 worth of art treasures and gold and jewelry.

46-Below Weather, Night Treks, Live Ammunition Simulate Battle Conditions in North Saskatchewan

Ottawa, Feb. 27 (CP)—Night treks in 46 below zero temperatures in northern Saskatchewan with 1,150 airborne and ground troops engaged and live ammunition used in simulated battle conditions were part of the first-of two winter army exercises announced by defence headquarters.

The exercises were described as the "most extensive" undertakings of this nature ever attempted by the army in Canada."

The Saskatchewan "Zhilmo" exercises covering 270 miles on a round trip from a Prince Albert base, ended after six weeks and were designed to test the mobility of modern formations in underveloped country during acute cold weather.

A British Columbia "Polar Bear" exercise, still continuing in the area between Williams Lake and Bella Coola, is similarly designed to test the movement of an airborne force in mountainous wet cold conditions with limited shelters and transport.

Defence headquarters said they could not give any indication as to ultimate use of the knowledge gained and training gained in the schemes but they announced "extensive co-operation" have been given in equipment and experts by Britain and the United States.

Only likely theatre of operations for use of such knowledge as gained in northern Saskatchewan, would be the interior of northern China where conditions on the British Columbia coast might be likened to those of German-occupied Norway.

The headquarters announcement referred to peacetime benefits to the Canadian northland and added:

"The general benefits include the building and improvement of roads, the resultant changes that may be expected in design of vehicles, clothing and shelters and in the fields of medicine, dentistry, nutrition and hygiene."

The R.C.A.F. assumed the role of supply, dropping casualty evacuation, photo reconnaissance and tactical airdrome maintenance in northern Saskatchewan. Few details of the British Columbia scheme were given but an mension was made as to whether the navy was used on this coastal project.

5 Neutral Nations, Possibly Six, Reported Banned

By ALEX SINGLETON

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 27 — (AP)—Spain, Switzerland, Portugal, Argentina and Eire said Reuter have been banned from the San Francisco conference, it was reliably reported Saturday night.

Even a declaration of war—the ticket for admission to the peace table for other neutral nations—apparently has been turned down in the case of these countries.

Only a change of government, it was reported in responsible quarters might win some of these countries a place back in the good graces of the major powers and a seat with a vote—in the projected world security council.

It is significant that none of the countries declared war on Germany in the "Big Three" decisions to give other neutrals until March 1 to make up their minds.

But at the same time, it was obvious that countries which persisted through dealings with the Nazis right to the Axis were in the ascendency will have to pay in the form of pressure.

The decision—confirmed by Turkey's announcement that it had until the first of next month to make up its mind—was regarded here as chiefly the result of an ultimatum laid down by Russia.

Reuter's dispatch indicated she would refuse to share the peace table with any representative of Gen. Franco's regime.

Conditioning the Complexion

Penny Singleton has a lovely, clear complexion.

By HELEN FOLLETT

NATURE provides the coverings of the body surface with a delicate and marvelous oiling system. In every pore is a tiny gusher to exude what the skin needs for its well being.

For some reason or other, this lubricating system isn't always properly regulated. It spouts too much oil, causing complexions to shine like a good deed in a naughty world, or it may shut up shop, so skin sticks, let the epidermal coat carry on as best it can. Which isn't very good, as the women who suffer from a dry skin well testify.

Sebaceous Glands

It is likely that sebaceous glands are affected by the diet; many skin specialists suggest certain foods for overcoming conditions of the skin that are not normal. The "oilies" are warned against fried foods, pastes and chocolate. It is suggested that the face should be well soaped twice a day, but water should be frictioned into the flesh for a minute or two.

remove the suds; a cold rinsing must follow because of the favorable reaction on the blood stream. Astringents are helpful. Witch hazel serves as a corrective when sebaceous glands are over-active.

Dry Complexions

It has been noticed by facial operators that women who suffer from dry complexions and scaling scalps usually are on a fat-free diet because they are afraid of gaining weight. A little more fat should be added for the complexion's sake.

After the reception Cpl. and Mrs. Adams left by train for Toronto, while to spend a few days in London, Ont. Upon their return Mrs. Adams will reside in Napanee and Cpl. Adams will report to his unit at Moncton, N.B.

Shopping or Sunning

By PRUNELLA WOOD

CRISP as a sunny morning with a blue sky and just enough chore to clothes to decorate it . . . that's the cotton chambray frock. And it's in that same color scheme, too. The dress, of plain and blue and while striped chambray, has a sun-suit top and skirt full enough to become a figure, which has shed its girdle. The jacket covers the bodice and surrender to make this suitable model a useful one for marketing.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Problem of Acknowledging a Compliment

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently I had the opportunity of singing at a large church affair and since then I have been receiving many compliments about my singing. I acknowledge these kind words with a smile and a "Thank you." My friend says that for me to thank you makes me sound conceited, because it means that I know I have a fine voice. What do you think about her comment, Mrs. Beeckman?

Donna.

Your friend's comment doesn't make sense. Saying "Thank you," as you properly do, means that you are expressing your appreciation to the person for his or her kindness in saying something pleasant. How in the world could there be any showing of conceit in your gracious "Thank you?" Indeed you have a right to be proud of these good words, and if I were you, I'd add to the "Thank you" . . .

"You are very kind to say such nice things, and you make me very happy and proud. (Tell your friend that's a good healthy pride doesn't mean "conceit!")

In thanking for a compliment there are two kinds of people: (1) the ones who make pleasant comments seem bigger or stupider by saying, for example, "You know, singing terribly." I think it was awful;" and (2) the ones who, like you, accept the compliment with a gracious "Thank you" or adding as I have suggested, a few more words of appreciation.

Rules for a Church Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My wedding is to be in church; formal; paid of honor and best man. Will you please answer several questions for me?

1. Do I pay for the maid of honor's bouquet?

2. In a double ring ceremony does the maid of honor carry the groom's ring?

3. On which side of the church does the bride's mother sit, and on which side the groom's parents?

4. When the bride is married in church does she change her street clothes, or wear her wedding gown to the reception at her home?

Jo

1. Customarily the bride or her family pays for the flowers to be carried by the maid of honor. These flowers are an important part of the attendant's costume, since they must harmonize with it in color and design. Therefore it is practical to order them when the decoration flowers are ordered, for church and reception.

2. Yes, the maid of honor is the custodian of the bridegroom's ring, handing it to the bride at the moment that the best man gives her ring to the bridegroom. Then the bride puts the bridegroom's ring on his finger immediately after she has received the ring from him.

3. The bride's mother sits in the first pew on the left of the aisle; and the bridegroom's parents, in the first pew on the right of the aisle. The reason for this is that since the bride-groom's parents are the guest of honor at the wedding, they sit on the right of the bride's mother, who is the hostess, and the host, the bride's father, who joins his wife after the part of the ceremony in which he gives the daughter in marriage.)

Preview of Summer

Spun Rayon Resort Dress

By VERA WINSTON

MOST OP, the resort clothes shown so far are of the simple, effective type that can go through a torrid summer looking gracious and charming whatever the scene. Effectively simple is this resort and summer frock of spun rayon in a delightful shade of coral. Black satin braid is used on the bodice, in rows that extend to the back. Two flaps pockets on the bodice are braid trimmed. It has a circular skirt above matching plastic buttons of throat-to-hem closing.

Fashion Flashes

A CRISP FEELING marks the fashioning of spring—what with crisp sailors and suits of such crisp fabrics as faille, taffeta and moire. One of these silk suits in black, brown or navy is a smart after dark as during the day. Simply tailored, they take briefly to accessories.

NO END TO the ingenuity with which milliners use ribbon. A charming pillbox is trimmed with high front bows of satin and tulle. In back there are long wide streamers to hang or to be tied under the chin in a big bow.

THERE'S NO ARGUMENT possible against the assertion that pearls are popular, since the shops report that they're going practically sold out as soon as advertised. A nice idea for a new treatment is to twine a double strand of pearls around and around a black velvet neckband.

GROWING SMALLER, yet quite adequate for the job, is the verdict on the handbag, after seeing all the new offerings. Nice for afternoon dress-up is a purse of black suede, a small oblong softly scalloped edge. It is trimmed in the centre with jet and crystal beads in a flower design.

FROM ALL ACCOUNTS, there'll be plenty of black at the shore come summer. A pretty bathing suit is in black taffeta styled on princess lines. The top is in self fabric lattice work over pale pink or pale blue jersey with shoestring shoulder straps.

The Experts Say

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 27 (CP)—A dose of sulphur and molasses used to be generally the lazy tired, end of winter feeling that little most of us take these days, but grandmother's cure was sound from a nutritional point of view, says Ann Bunna, assistant director of the Consumer Section of the Health Department's Nutrition Division.

Important vitamin B1 is found in oats, pork, green vegetables and whole grain cereals, while molasses is mainly in darker colored foods like dry fruits, red meats and especially liver, and also in whole grain cereals.

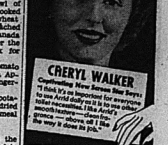
Molasses tops the sugar foods in nutritive value, contributing calories to the diet plus worthwhile amounts of calcium, iron and B-complex vitamins, it says. Dr. L. B. Pett, director of nutrition, present day molasses is neither so dark nor so nutritious as old time black-strap.

Anne's menu containing plenty of vigor-giving iron and B1 might include these foods: At breakfast, a glass of orange juice, a bowl of whole grain cereal like cooked rolled oats, topped with wheat germ sprinkled on top, a poached egg on toast, milk and cocoa. Approved bread, and coffee for the family; and members, milk for the children.

Lunch or supper; cream of tomato soup, fresh fruit in season, Melba toasted bread and butter, gingerbread with lemon sauce.

Dinner: pork chops, baked potatoes, buttered carrots, stewed dried fruit (prunes or figs) and oatmeal cookies, milk, tea or coffee.

Skin care pays dividends in the kitchen as well as in the bathroom and here are helpful tips on the subject from the Agriculture Department Consumer Section:



An old story, but worth retelling, is the one that most people fruits and vegetables except when they're consumed raw. Cooking takes the food values where they belong —in the blood.

Grate the skins of citrus fruits before peeling to keep the gratings in a covered jar in the ice box. They will add interesting flavor to cookies, a fruit salad, sugar cubes for hem and countless other dishes.

Vegetable Razzle: The cooked and vegetable razzle will be a nice addition to Sunday's supper when served with a salad, and the Consumers of the Agriculture Department. A salad with apples in it seems to have a natural affinity for this combination.

For the razzle heat three cups of tomato juice and one bay leaf. When hot add 2 1-2 cups of grated soft Cheddar cheese, stirring it in slowly and continuing to stir until the cheese melts. Add three level teaspoons dry mustard, one teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon pepper, three teaspoons Worcestershire sauce and one tablespoon butter. Season with cook or reheat three cups of mixed vegetables and make six slices of toast. Arrange the vegetables on toast and top with the rarebit mixture.

GOOD PROMOTION marks many of the new fashions. A charming laundry-purdy print in rayon crepe is used for dresses, under hats, gloves and even umbrellas.

HOW JAPAN FACES TWO-WAY THREAT

As Marines battle furiously to wipe out the Japs on Iwo and seize airfields within 750 miles of Tokyo, the clearing of Manila bay for American ships continues and the pattern of the two-way thrust on Nippon grows steadily clearer. Many observers consider the thrust up from Iwo, as indicated in inset map, to be the quick way, but others insist that after Manila must come a smash to the south China coast and the occupation of Formosa, indicated on large map, while planes batter Nippon from Iwo and move toward the Bonin Islands.

Belleville 'Bears' Defeat Stirling-Marmora Combines In Second Game of Playoffs

Locals Always on Top in 4-3 Victory and Many Fights Mar Contest

Stirling, Feb. 27th — (Special) — In a game marked with free-for-all fights, the Bears came from behind to win by the third period, the Belleville "Bears" defeated the Stirling-Marmora "Combines" from the round O.H.A. game with a 4-3 win here last night by taking the Third Inter Junior O.H.A. group series in two straight games. In a best-in-three series Coach "Toots" Holway's Belleville sextette took both ends of a two-game series and now meet the Kingston Victorias in the first round of the Junior "B" playdowns in O.H.A. with the first game slated to be played in Belleville Thursday.

Belleville was always on top on a sticky sheet of ice, that saw the game go 10 minutes late in starting owing to the blackness of the surface. None under way, however, Belleville took a commanding lead with Barrett's early goal and were never headed as the period score ended 2-1. 3-1 and finally wounded up 4-3 in favor of glory with free-for-all fights that featured the first playdowns in O.H.A. with the fans came slated to be played in Belleville Thursday.

The game slated to be played in Belleville Thursday.

Locals Carried the Play

On heavy ice Holway's charges carried the play early and seemingly had more success with their combination plays than Coach Neal's Combines. Chasing an elusive puck-her-on heavy ice, Barrett successfully skirted the Combines' defence and broke hard, but, to no open the scoring. With Holway in the lib box for tripping, the Combines evened the count without hesitation when Trumble whipped in Coombs' pass. When it looked all even, however, the Belleville line of Day, Greatrix and Moher gave Holway a busy season, but the Combines' goalie rose to the occasion, following which Fitzpatrick twice beat Courtney and Bastedo at close range, sending back into form Coach Holway's initial line staged a three-minute passing play, that paid off for their second goal as B. Meagher stepped to pull Uiman out of position, passed to Barrett, who took care of Wright before giving the rubber to A. Meagher, who had only Mcilroy at his mercy for a second Belleville counter that ended the period scoring.

Series of Penalties

The middle session was a series of penalties as the officials were trying to keep the game under control with the existing conditions of sticky ice. Nine minor penalties were meted out, but only one resulted in a goal, that Barrett rifled to Coombs. While the latter was lamenting on the bench another Belleville three-way goal resulted with Bernie Meagher ringing the bell behind Uiman as Don Barrett as the period ended 3-1 for Holway's lads.

Came the third and most hectic frame that opened with Uiman, Stirling goalie, following a Belleville offensive, that saw Jean Barrett, the ice and Day relieved of the puck in the process. Belleville being the proverbial target of the Combines. Police and coolers-headed fans restored order, with the help of the referees, but no penalties resulted. Following the bedlam Coombs elevated the hopes of the home-town fans by napping Jacobs Coombs's pass-out during a scoring play by Bastedo, Cousins and Trumble.

Following the game the Combines swarmed the Belleville dressing room wishing the visitors every fortune in their future games.

The line-ups — Belleville: goal, Fitzpatrick; defence, Holway and Green; centre, Barrett; wings, Al Meagher and B. Meagher. Moher, Day, Greatrix, Reeves and Lyall. SAM BREADON SAYS MEETING IS POSTPONED

Committee Appointed to Select New Baseball Commissioner Not Ready

St. Louis, Feb. 27 (AP)—Mystery surrounded baseball's next move to find a new commissioner today, following an indefinite postponement of what was to have been the first formal meeting of a four-man committee considering possible candidates.

A secret meeting scheduled here for today became known publicly three days ago. Yesterday, Sam Breadon, St. Louis Cardinals' owner announced postponement.

Mr. Breadon has indicated many times that he felt the work of the committee—himself, P. K. Wrigley, Chicago Cubs; Don Barnes, St. Louis Browns; and Alva Bradley, Cleveland Indians—should be private. On-the-scene observers attributed the premature announcement of today's session figure in its postponement.

Mr. Bradley said he had been informed by Messrs. Breadon and Barnes by telephone of indefinite postponement. He said he plans to leave for New Orleans on business next week and does not expect to meet until after then.

Mr. Wrigley also said he had time to get much information to discuss with other members.

Mr. Barnes, in a statement to the press, said he was ready to meet any time. In announcing the postponement, Breadon gave no indication of when the four might get together.

Meanwhile, official action on the appointment of a successor for the late Kenesaw Mountain Landis remained at a standstill.

GALT RED WINGS DEFEAT OSHAWA IN FIRST GAME

Young Rangers Dispose of Marlboros in Other Bracket of Playoffs

(By The Canadian Press)

The first of the O.H.A. Junior "A" playdowns, in Toronto and Galt last night, gave early promise of keen competition from here forward the Memorial Cup finals. Galt, the Red Wings were forced to come from behind to down Oshawa Generals 4-2 in the initial clash of the best-of-five series while overtime was required before Toronto Young Rangers could dispose of their Orchard rivals, Marlboros 4-3 in the opening encounter of a rest-in-three grouping.

Generals, last year's Dominion champions, took command with a 3-0 lead against Red Wings but the latter evened the score in the middle session and Curtis carved the winning goal in 4:17 of the third period on a pass from Brompton inch, with Frenchy Mayer of Galt scoring an insurance counter a minute later.

Foglin, Adamo, Curr and Mayer scored for Generals in the first game while Oshawa counters went to Gallagher and Semanchuk. The rivals meet again at Oshawa Wednesday night.

Young Rangers and Marlies battled all through their all-Toronto debacle, with Rangers bulging the net first in each of the periods—once more in 24 seconds of overtime when Fleming gained the payoff goal. The scores were 1-1, 2-2 and 3-3 for the successive rounds, and they'll carry the close margins into the second meeting at Maple Leaf Gardens Saturday afternoon.

Matchmen for the Rangers were Payne, Dyzdale, Bishop and Fidelberry while the goal-finders for Marlboros were Michaelc, Two and Kirby.

MARITIME CLUBS REACH PLAYOFFS

Halifax, Feb. 27 — (CP) — Maritime hockey clubs are swinging into the season's home stretch with playoffs in the Halifax City Senior Hockey League due to start shortly, the semi-finals in Nova Scotia's senior group are due to be shortly completed, and the New Brunswick senior playoffs are in the closing rounds.

In New Brunswick, the Saint John Beavers, who knocked Moncton Hawks out of contention in two straight games, continued with a 7-6 victory over the Amherst (N.S.) Ramblers to win the opening game of a best-of-three series for the right to meet Edmundston for the New Brunswick title.

The Amherst club is classed as a New Brunswick entry due to the sending player used by the Maritime Amateur Athletic Association Edmundston entered the finals by trimming Campbellton Papermakers 7-4 and 12-2.

In the A.H.O.-C circuit Pictou Rifflers and New Glasgow Bombers will tangle in the finals. New Glasgow gained entry by eliminating Robert Amy Seamens, and Pictou downed St. Francis Xavier University of Antigonish. Ebbert Air Force, which topped the league, was rested out by Army in the regular schedule.

In the Halifax senior league H.M.C.S. Cornwallis has top place, while Halifax Merchants and Dartmouth R.C.A.F. battle it out for second place, with the latter two having won three starts, while the Halifax Tars have lost their last two games.

ARTHUR KING WINS OVER SHEARS

Toronto, Feb. 27, (CP)—Arthur King last night edged Montreal's Jerry Shears in the Canadian featherweight boxing bout here to keep Jack Allen's record in circulation. Shears, who travelled from Montreal by air, where he earlier fought a three-round exhibition bout, defeated King last time they met.

Girard Boisvert of Montreal, and Jack Hamilton of Toronto, also produced the best fight of the supporting card, Boisvert, in the 135 pound Cordens was awarded the decision after a hard fight.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

A committee of 10 members representing the National Association of Basketball Coaches of America has resolved minor baseball should take over the duties of a commissioner to succeed the late Kenesaw Landis, the Association has decided. The committee, headed by President Clarence Rowland of the Pacific Coast League came out for a boost in the maximum player draft price to $7,500, and greater protection for the "B" and minor clubs. Frank Lawrence of the Association also suggested the minors were in a receptive mood for a merger of the two leagues because the fans were more interested in the appearance of new kids and oldsters" in organized baseball.

Bob Wilson of Pittsburgh Pirates Junior team limits his opponents to the individual scoring records of Maurice Richard and Elmer Lach of the past week, according to the latest released last night which showed he had registered two goals and seven assists during the period. Richard has scored two goals and one with 31 points, one less than Wilson's new total.

Credited with being the first overseas member of the Royal Canadian Engineers to win a decoration, Lieut.-Col. Bill Sweezey, R.E., C., former star of Western Mustangs, Edmonton, has won the Intercollegiate gold with 18 hits. He has been detailed to take an advanced staff course in England. He was seriously wounded at Dieppe.

The Saskatchewan Amateur Hockey Association last night announced Prince Albert Black Hawks would represent the Northern Junior hockey league in the Saskatchewan playdowns.

If Moose Jaw Canucks end their series this week with Regina Commandos, whom they lead three games to none in the best-of-seven series, Canucks will be home to Prince Albert in the first two games of the playdowns, on March 5 and 6.

The Quebec Senior Hockey League decided last night that its semi-final series would be best-two-of-three affairs, and that the finals on a best-of-seven basis, and set tentative dates for the semi-final. Four and fourth-place teams will meet in one bracket of the semi-finals, and second and third teams in the other. While Montreal Royals and Quebec Aces appeared assured of first two spots, is has not yet been determined which will be Commodores or Hull Volants will wind up in third spot.

Shrubb by a hockey stick during an American Hockey League game at Pittsburgh two weeks ago, defenseman John Kukkola, 26, of the St. Louis Flyers has lost the sight of his right eye, it was announced last night by his club following examination by five eye specialists.

RIVER ROAD

An Irishman entered a barber shop for a shave. After he was seated and the lather applied, the barber was called to the adjoining room, where he was detained.

The barber had in the shop a pet monkey which caused amusement by imitating its master. As soon as the barber had left the room the monkey picked up a razor and, propping itself on the lather and proceeded to apply it to the Irishman's face.

Just then the operation was finished to the monkey's satisfaction, the little animal picked up a razor and, after stropping it, turned to Pat to shave him.

Irishman (firmly sitting erect)—Stop that! Ye kin tuck the towel in me neck and put the soap on my face, but begorrah, yer fathers not to shave me.

On to Kingston.

In one of those games played on soft ice, that is usually productive of out-breaks of flashcuts, Toots Holway's local kids beat the two Combines 4 to 3 at Stirling to earn the right to meet the Kingston "Victorias" in the O.H.A. playdowns commencing at the Hume Arena Thursday night.

Feature of the game was Don Barrett's early initial period goal that started things off on the right foot for the Belleville "Bears" and they never headed from then in. The Stirling-Marmora went down battling but it was the strong aggressive play of the locals that took its toll. There were two fights in the Belleville line, but the orchids went to Holway and Doug Trumble and Cousins who hit the twine, but it was difficult to play puck hockey on such soft sticky ice, although Belleville seemed to play good hockey well with the combination plays.

Tough Opposition.

Now Belleville meet the Kingston Victorias, a team that has been playing in the Kingston senior city league all winter. True enough the "Vics" have a formidable team on paper, but they didn't win the junior "B" title last year with a championship, so the fans can go to the rink Thursday well proud of the fact the Bears won the "Little Six."

Getting back to last night's game, the Combines went down fighting but did not take their reverses quite as hard as their fans. The third period was filled with fights, not the calibre that officials and players could not have handled, but the old-time free-for-als that saw the combatants swarm over the boards and take part. Following the game the Combines swarmed the locals' dressing room to wish them good fortune, only to see Doug Day, Bill Holway, Al Meagher and some of the rest showing outward signs of the physical pounding they received by the fans. The players had a good laugh, the Combines' executive did everything possible to avoid such trouble and all ended quite amicably.

Remember When.

The Kimberely "Dynamiters" were crowned amateur champions of the world when they won a 2-1 overtime victory over a Swiss team at London, England, eight years ago today, England, Olympic titleholders and previous holders by the Dynamiters, clinched second place with a 3-1 win over Sweden.

Incidentally with the recent abandonment of the Allan Cup series by the C.A.H.A. there will be no amateur world hockey championship until 1945. The C.A.H.A. announced the fact there would be no Allan Cup series this spring over the weekend. The Allan Cup champions are recognized as world amateur champions, except in 1936 when England won the Olympic hockey crown. However the Dynamiters recaptured the world title the next year.

Pitches Eight Shut-outs.

In addition to holding the major league record for consecutive scoreless innings, and being one of the four who are tied for the American League's longest winning streak, Walter Johnson also has a record—at least for pitchers of this century—for pitching the most consecutive games for his club and all of them shutouts.

In 1908, Johnson's first complete season in the American League, the Senators were seventh and the old New York Highlanders were eighth. Ty Cunnilline and his club arrived in New York on Friday, December 4 with only three pitchers—Johnson, Tom Hughes and Jim Keely. Hughes' wife became ill and he went back to Washington, Keely bobbed up with a sore throat.

Johnson worried for the first game of the series and won, 2 to 0, over Jack Chesbro and Slow Joe Doyle. On Saturday, Walter beat Manning and Lake, 6 to 0. There was a Sunday lull, but in the first game of the Labor Day double-bill, Johnson vanquished Chesbro again, 4 to 3. Hughes was back to work the nightcap, which also was won by the Senators.

In turning in his three shutouts, Johnson yielded six hits in the first game, four in the second and only two in the third.

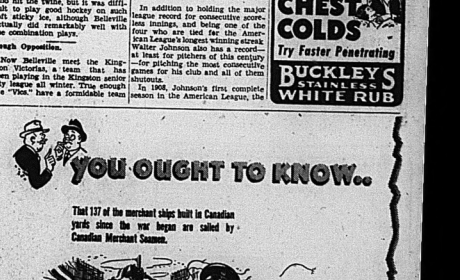
Toronto, Feb. 27 — (CP) — Canadian professional golfdom is soon to lose one of its most colorful figures when Vancouver's rotund little Scotsman, Davie Black, retires. Forty years a professional divoter in Canada—26 of them at the beautiful Shaughnessy Club on the West Coast—Davie soon plans to take a last look at the Emerald grass of the first fairway and at the snow-capped mountains he can see from the door of the pro shop. Born in Troon, on the west coast of Scotland—a golfers' town of 25,000 inhabitants and five courses—Davie took an apprenticeship at one of the clubs there. In 1905 he came to Canada and started as pro at Montreal's suburban Outremont Club. Five years later he went to Rivermeade in Ottawa and after 10 years there moved to Shaughnessy.

Winner of countless tournaments, his most notable feat was capturing the Canadian professional three successive years starting in 1919. For that he was presented with a duplicate of the P.G.A. Cup and is the only man in Canada to win that distinction. He also won the P.G.A. tourney in 1913.

He won the Pacific Northwest Open in 1926, '32, and '36. In the 1920 P.G.A. meet he set the golfing world a-buzz when he broke the Royal Ottawa Golf Club's record with a 68 in the first round and to top it off went out in the afternoon and did the course in 67.

Ten years ago he set a new course record at Shaughnessy with a 64, but it was broken the following year by one stroke. Davie start of a new championship rink doesn't mind that, however, for it was his own son, Ken, who snapped it and went on to win the Jubilee tournament at the expense of the foremost golfers on the continent.

Plugging for the Ladies.



Northern Ontario's fleet sweetgrip "Rooster" of ladies golf, Barney Welch of Kirkland Lake, has been lobbying to revive the game in places where it has died out. Poor Eva Tyme takes all the bumps. When she gets to the latest out, trumps. And suddenly it hits her nanny is dead, she took out one too many.

The bidding goes like this:

SOUTH	NORTH
Pass	1 S
2 H	2 S
3 NT	3 H
4 H	Pass

How do these players know they have that many hids? An opener starts with a basic of five tricks. Responder worked from a basic of two tricks. Each raise in number shows another trick.

South has four tricks; three high cards and a short card in spades, for an in.

North has six tricks; five high cards and a short card in diamonds. See how they show their two tricks.

North's opening shows five tricks. His only raise is the three heart bid that shows his strength. South's showing four tricks with his balls of twos; a raise with two hearts; a raise with four hearts.

With south as declarer at four hearts west leads a club. The contract is made despite two losers; a spade, a club, two diamonds.

Winning the first trick with club king, south takes two rounds of trumps with ace and queen. A spade trick is lost to east who wills to take it on the second round of that suit.

Opponents also take two diamond tricks and then lead a diamond or a club. If a club, dummy wins with the ace, draws a third round of trumps, and leads the now set up spades.

If opponents return a diamond instead of a club, dummy trumps. A spade is trumped by south, who takes a trump round next before returning to dummy with a club to lead the spades.

On the spades, south stuffs, any losing card he may have left. The main idea was not to lead the third round of trumps until the spade ace was gone. And dummy must then be an entry to dummy.

When entries are thin, provide for an in.

AT THE CAPITOL
Alch Ladd

Dedicated to the proposition that American gangsters are gentlemen with hearts of gold in contrast to the mobsters of Nazi Germany, Paramount's swift and furious spy drama, "Cloak and Dagger", opened at the Capitol theatre last night. You may imagine the proposition adequately proved.

"Lucky Jordan" is Alan Ladd's first starring picture and in this offering his thriller he shows why Paramount decided him to cinematic heights with rare haste. He was previously featured with the chronicle Lake in "This Gun for Hire" and "The Glass Key", both smash hits.

In "Lucky Jordan," Ladd is supported by a brilliant young newcomer, blonde and gorgeous Helen Walker, Sonny Tufts of the Broadway stage, is a sure bet for star-dom herself. Others in the picture are Sheldon Leonard, Mabel Paige and Lloyd Corrigan.

"Man in the Trunk"
A friendly ghost with a knack for being humorous as well as tantalizing, makes for one of the merriest mystery comedies of the season, "The Man in the Trunk," which opened yesterday at the Capitol theatre.

A dead man comes back to life in this 20th Century-Fox film, and saves an innocent party from a seat in the electric chair by helping two young people solve the murder which considered him out of the world.

Raymond Walburn is the ghost while Lynne Roberts and George Holmes are the young people. Walburn, whose lines were mainly verbal in trunk, is hilariously significant upon his return to life. Indeed, he is a howl — or a horror, who would rather haunt a lady's boudoir than a house. Miss Roberts and Holmes, two fast-selling newcomers, handle their roles handsomely. And the story abounds in thrills and suspense, as well as rollicking humor.

The Universal News completes the double program.

DEMPSEY NAMES TEN BEST MEN HE HAS FOUGHT

Gene Tunney, Retired Undefeated Heavyweight of World, Placed at the Top

By RUSH NEWLAND
(AP Sport Writer)

San Francisco, Feb. 27 — (AP) — Puffing a big cigar, jauntily nonchalantly for rapid-fire comment, Jack Dempsey said: "I'll name you the 10 best men I fought. They may not be the best boxing men, but they would have licked a lot of the so-called top heavyweights and maybe some of our past champions."

The old Manassa Mauler, himself one of the real champs, was in San Francisco, his one-time stamping grounds, en route to the South Pacific on a tour of duty as head of physical education and recreation for the U. S. Coast Guard.

Question Dempsey: "Who was the best man? Why Gene Tunney of course. He licked me, right here in 1926 and defended it successfully against me the next year. Incidentally, he was the only man I ever fought, later than he was given credit for.

"After Tunney, they come this way. Tom Gibbons, Carpentier, Carl Morris, Firpo, Bill Brennan, Jess Willard, Luis Angel Firpo, Jack Blake, Fred Fulton and Battling Levinsky, in that order. That's 10. Other Good Men.

"Then had some good ones around here from 1915 to 1918 who made me believable for me. They were Willie Meehan, Jack Gardner, Jack Downey, Al Horton and Charley Miller. It was during the four-round days. The fights would be about over before I could get started. Meehan beat me five out of six. I think, and Downey boxed my ears off.

"The hardest hitters I met were Firpo, Blake, Carpentier, Tunney, Brennan and Fulton. Firpo could punch, and after them Gunboat Smith because he was a strong fighter man. The Gunner hit me so hard on the chin in 1914 that I thought that I was doing until I was walking down the street and found that I didn't even know I had won the fight. It was a terrific kick in that right hand. Tom Gibbons was a powerful left hook. Gibbons was the hardest to fight. He was fast, had good on the inside stuff, and was a clever boxer and got up. I was over the hill when I fought Tunney three years later."

By HYE BOSSIN

Cecil B. De Mille, a member of the American Federation of Radio Actors, recently refused to pay a one dollar assessment levied by that union. He got much publicity out of it and lost the right to appear on the radio with members of the union.

Now Edward Arnold, a member of the AFRA, answered De Mille. "Mr. Cecil De Mille," said Arnold, "has discovered that his private one dollar autocracy is in conflict with the march of working men toward a prosperous tomorrow. And his private decision must not be forced on his fellow workers."

Gregory Peck, star of "Keys to the Kingdom," is a Gary Cooper type and he is preparing for future cowboy roles by learning to ride and rope. . . . "Stole Fate" is being made on the 20th-Fox lot and a real circus was hired to provide background. Director Walter Lang was forced to bar visitors because all the nearby droppings and odors played hookey to ride the merry-go-round, the ferris wheel and on Segalcheated Hollywood . . . Talk about types, Franklin Pangborn became a hotel clerk for the first time in "You Came Along."

"O. Henry," the life story of that fabled author, will become a film if this try is more successful than the previous attempt. There is a story cost of $900,000 against it now . . . The largest television company in the USA proposes a weekly payment plan, through which a person gets a set and the right to tune in for $2.25 per week until it's paid for . . . Some Winnipeg listeners were tossed by a jurisdictional dispute between two rival unions and one of the idle movie projectionists made some humorous comment. "Most of us," he said, "haven't had a holiday except Sunday in years and when we get a day off our wives want to go to the movies!"

Overheard: "It takes all kinds of people to make a world — and a few to make a fool." . . . A producer sent a vacationing actress a telegram: "Move heaven and earth but get back Friday." The actor replied: "Am raising hook. Will be back Saturday" . . . "Greed," someone remarked, "is a strait jacket with pockets." . . . "I'm going to quit my job," a secretary was heard to complain, "my boss is on the phone so much I can't get any dates!"

David O. Selznick got Ingrid Bergman from Sweden and has made arrangements to import Frank Sundstrum, one of his leading young actors . . . Sabu, whom the USArmy Air Force knows as Sabu Dastagir, has been on more than 25 bond promotions as a rear gunner . . . Errol Flynn, who has a talent for acting, writing and getting himself into trouble, is also a top-notch tennis player. He recently teamed up with Bill Tilden for some charity games . . . "If you want to make money," Flynn once said, "be around where it is." Bill Farmer, radio effects boy, seems to have benefitted by proximity. He having been chosen for a role in "They Were Expendable."

DAY DISPLEASED WITH SHOWING OF MAPLE LEAFS

Recalls Eric Prentice From Pittsburgh Hornets to Try and Put Life Into Squad

By The Canadian Press

The singular lack of success which Toronto Maple Leafs have shown in recent contests has brought the club management almost at close to a state of pleasure as the team is in occupying top place in the National Hockey League race.

Riddled by injuries, Leafs still are in the throes of a month-long losing streak, have dropped five of their last six starts and blew a big goal lead to tie in the other clash against New York Rangers last Saturday. Montreal Canadiens are 20 points ahead of Toronto who have 41 while Detroit Red Wings enjoy a 12-point advantage.

Coach Gene Conacher (Hap) Day said he is "extremely displeased" with Leafs' lackadaisical performance and recalled young Eric Prentice, who played five games for the team last season and has spent most of the year with Pittsburgh of the American Hockey League, is expected to play against Chicago Black Hawks at Maple Leaf Gardens.

"No other Maple Leaf team has ever had a record as bad as ours during the last month," he said, adding that "something" has to be done to put some spark into the squad.

Lach Leading Rocket Richard In Scoring Race

Montreal, Feb. 27 — (CP) — With Maurice Richard and Elmer Lach of Canadiens each waging their Alphonse-and-Gaston battle for top spot among National Hockey League scorers, much of the interest in the waning days of the regular season centres around Richard and Lach. Only two points separate the pair, between-zone Blake of the Canucks and Boston's Bill Cowley.

The weekly scoring records released by the NHL-AHA show Blake and Cowley still locked in third spot with 61 points each, as Blake battles to make it one-two three for the Canucks and put the Cowley calls on his wiles to prevent such a thing. Leafs are former winners of top scoring honors.

Meanwhile, Lach is leading Richard by a single point at the head of the list, participating in one goal that his line-mate didn't figure in to break the former deadlock between them. Lach has 67 points on 31 goals and 46 assists, while the habitat record—while Richard has 66, record of 30 goals and 36 assists for 66 points.

Harold Fyrton, who had failed the penalty parade with 96 minutes in majors and minors in 40 games.

THE SECRET OF THE MARSHBANKS

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

CHAPTER 6

"Who is she?" said the Judge's grandmother, rather petulantly repeating a question that had been asked all through the dinner. "Is she a relative of Mrs. Marshbanks?"

"Not a relative, Mother," said Mrs. Marshbanks's husband, "but a friend of long standing. Her name is Kelly."

"I'm the mouthing season," said another male voice, and there was a laugh.

"And you don't have to ask people like that here, Fran' said without feeling. "You told me last week she was handsome. Honest-ly!"

The last word was rich with protest, reproach, indulgence. Cherry crouched close to the rail. She could present," seems to her mouth no one would ever know. But she felt as if her body and soul would be rent apart with the violence of feeling that possessed her.

"There's a subject for your next portrait, Mr. Oastler!" one Fran and Cherry who could not see them could tell from her tone that for the moment they were alone. "Take little what's-her-name Rawlings."

"Mr. Oastler!" he echoed. "I thought I was 'Kelly'."

"Did I call you Kelly?" the laughing deep, jolly hoarse voice said. "When did I call you Kelly?"

"At the table about a minute ago."

"It must do something about my subliminal consciousness."

Fran and Amy and the two young men in their evening clothes went away laughing, the door closed behind them, and Judge Marshbanks and Kathy Oastler came back across the hall and stood chatting for a moment. Then the artist said that he must start on his way to Sausalito, and the Judge's host called to his dog game. But by this time the stairway was empty, and Cherry was back in the luxurious, dimly lighted guest room, standing perfectly still at one of the big windows, looking out into the darkness of the mysterious world, studying the scene of the night city with eyes that saw nothing, trying to think with her mind and not with any kind of furious emotion.

Rage and shame and jealousy and a hundred other new and wretched feelings beset her. She shaken and throbbing and blinded, she rested her face against the cool glass of the window and pressed one hand against the turbulent pain that was her heart.

Now, for the first time in her life, the guidance of the Sainte Dorothée's girl swept over her. A girl to be laughed at and pitied and despised. It was a place for girls who "innocent enough themselves, were nevertheless victims of circumstances that were not alike; girls who had no home to which to go, no families to welcome them and miss them.

She had accepted it, all her life long, as had the others; had merely times found it even a romantic situation, something over which his specular and dream of Cinderella. Those dreams had all melted away into the air of which they were born during this one encounter with Hitler. There was nothing desirable, nothing stimulating and unusual about being a penniless color-girl of twenty, trained for hard work and loneliness and heavy unfulness in a world that held pleasures, exquisite girls with heart-shaped lips and diaphanous frocks of pale yellow!

Cherry Fran, hated Amy, with all the vigor of her nature. They had laughed at her, and she was helpless. They despised her and there was no reason why they should not. Life would not be hard enough for her to right the burning wrong of it.

"They all love her," she whispered. "Why shouldn't they? She knows and she wears beautiful clothes and her father was the Judge's brother and she is here in Grace Church tonight, and those orchids on her shoulder—and everyone asks her for dances. She breaks a leg!

"It shouldn't matter if she did," her unhappy thoughts ran on. "I forgot make-up, think about clothes, and I'm like Fran and Amy Marshbanks broke her leg tomorrow night! They'd carry her to bed and give her flowers and books and smash fuss as they passed. She'd have one to see her dress if she'd been in the car. I wish she had to have it off!

"And it isn't my fault, is it? my fault?" she sobbed, suddenly clenching her hands and lifting her face against the window. "It isn't my fault if I'm like this! I'm like to have everyone crazy about me. I'd like to have a grandmother and someone like the Judge to care about me, and live in a place like this!

"And what chance have I to be like them and talk the way they do and wear the clothes they do? No chance, and it isn't fair, and I hate it!" she breaks her leg. "Poor Amy Marshbanks may never walk again!

"I suppose I ought to love her, because she's my enemy. Christ-tackerdown. "There was one fellow that believed in me, and he was goin' to grow and prosper, yah, sir, and I'd be proud to call him my friend!" he had said. The filmiest mansion had been pointed out to visitors for thirty years as a visible sign of the city's wealth and progress.

"It's a wooden house much bay-windowed and balustraded with impressive columns flanking the front doors, a carriage drive sweeping from the western side to a porte-cochere, calla lilies and roses and shiny-leaved laurels banking its foundations and forms. From all the northeastern windows—in rooms used now by surgeons—the city hall, the Presidio, Tamalpais, Alcatraz and Angel Islands, Sausalito and the bay cities lie in their fairway and hills.

Massive steps rose from the street to the brick bulkheads of the garden; more steps led up to the side front door that got on the street. But this door, too, was never used any more. Mrs. Porter used the side door, which was close to the garage, where there was a shallow step or railer be hauled and shoved impatiently into her motorcar.

On the second floor at the back where the southwestern sunshine poured in warmly even on winter days, was her apartment; a big bedroom furnished in heavy walnut carved into apples and pineapples and bows of shining wooden ribbons; a big adjoining sitting room, most of her waking hours were spent, and a bathroom. Next to these was the small room in which Mrs. Porter's personal woman slept, and upstairs Emma still lived in an apartment with much the same arrangement, if somewhat smaller and plainer, as in Judge Porter's days. Besides these, there were four big empty rooms on the floor below, and another, furnished, kept warm, always closed.

Over Elizabeth Ann Porter had had an adored, pretty, giddy girlhood. Here had been the generation that tanned flowers in a hair and danced slippers to ragtime again, and in her rumpled wing the richest and most eligible young men in a city full of mining and railway banking and shipping interests soon, she had flashed upon a stunned group of admirers as the wife of a prospective European honeymoon trip with her husband, and her wedding, dressed oyster pattes lace, with the guests received with the date and the names engraved thereon, and these plates carried home by the guests were treasured in many a stately home ever after.

Upon her return the beautiful young bride, all roses and gold curls, had become the proud mistress of a home on the great Gladwin mansion. It had been no new home for more than half a century. Her husband, in his old never lost its glamor for her.

Cherry, the old colored woman, did for her each morning everything that a lady's maid could do for a small child: superintended her breakfast tray, carried her into her bath, powdered her face, and while old body as if it had been a baby's, got her dressed, and then, seated comfortably in her chair with her pillows again. Then there was the evening, and the old lady knitted or worked at her petit point, and they planned for the day. If notes had been written, the night before they must be stamped and mailed; from the dinner menus must be carefully arranged; the newspapers and the mail were brought in; the newspapers and magazines discussed; the magic and Keno, a quiet little Japanese maid, carried out the vases for an hour, and brought them back, fresh-filled and radiant.

Perhaps there were guests in now, who must be asked to tea; perhaps presents for someone's birthday or wedding must be selected. Cherry was with her every two weeks in the house before she went away for an elderly frail, imprisoned woman was the center of a crowded and exceedingly satisfying life, filled to the brim with the things she made important, and the rituals that every day and tea hour and luncheon tray had become.

Emma was indispensable. she kept the whole enormous machine running; she knew where business papers were, and what the lawyer came about, and when to call the doctor. But there was nothing gay, friendly, companionable about Emma. She was the telephone or when it came to special shopping she was grimly inadequate. Also, she was a monotonous and disinterested reader. Mrs. Porter had a large mail; she had long been unequal to it, and had engaged a satisfactory girl to act as secretary from time to time with wavering results.

So that Cherry soon found that she had plenty to do like the others in the kitchen, and the two maids who kept everything before stated in order, and Keno who arranged the flowers, all the gardening as well as the used rooms, and Al who swept steps and driveway and sidewalk, and Marshbanks who drove the car, and Frank who drove, on all forenoons every day off and Sunday the gardener and Patrick the chauffeur. Cherry, having found the kitchen and the clocks and the man who came to take the laundry away and brighten and wash the cleaner, who called daily.

Cherry had only to be quietly helpful in every direction that her imagination and willingness could discover to make a place for herself almost instantly. She looked well in her new brown cloth dress with its gold buttons; she was a young, pleasant element in the dreary old house. And yet she wasn't the pretty, lighthearted type who'd be getting married as soon as she got here, the old lady reflected. She could take dictation, she wrote a square, neat, legible hand, and she had a fine voice when she read aloud. Altogether, Emma's protege promised well.

Cherry began her duties with the trembling feeling that by no chance could her Fran and Amy Marshbanks possibly be in such pleasant places. To be sure, she was a step from the world that in one brief encounter had lifted her, and, in his herself here, with a lovely room for her own, a housemaid to book for company, amazing meals served as regular—or indeed, irregular—hours, and a gentle, if aloof, helpless old lady to amuse seemed too good a fortune to be true.

From this she passed to a sort of exhilaration that she had succeeded. She answered the telephone and wrote letters and drove out in the park in her own open coat and becoming brown hat, in a pleasant driver of feeling herself liked and needed and approved. She could not help but preserve the impression she had so gallantly made.

The third phase came only after several days, and was one of doubt, boredom and weariness. She wanted needs and interest and companionship; she wanted a sense of living; indeed she was like a girl caught in a dream.

COUNTY HOME STUFF, FINDS RABBITS SCORN HIS FOOD OVERTURES

Scorning the offer of cabbage and other garden vegetables put out by the less experienced, to keep the pests out of the orchard, Instructor Mitchell Sinclair of the destroying young apple trees at the Hastings County Home, according to Mr. Elmer Sandercock.

The rabbits are feeding on the trees by eating the bark just below the branches while the depth of snow is such that the trees are too short to actually get into the branches to continue their destructive work.

And the crux of the situation is that a specific remedy might be secured before ammunition can be

274 Blood Donations Supplied by Air Force Personnel at Trenton Station

Personnel of the air stations of women of the city who go to the women in the district have been active in setting a splendid example to their citizens in the matter of blood donations for their fighting forces.

Periodical clinics held at the Kiwanis Centre here are large numbers of the boys in air force blue voluntarily giving their blood for Canadian soldiers, may live.

Another fine example of this unselfishness on the part of district air stations is the recent formation of a mobile clinic calling at the Trenton Air Station recently and securing 274 donors.

As a matter of fact, the station personnel went a bit farther than just giving their blood. They sent their motor vehicles to the Kiwanis Centre and with city taxis and automobiles owned by volunteer clinic workers organized the mobile clinic.

They took bottles, tubes and other clinic paraphernalia necessary to the securing of the blood while clinic nurses and volunteer workers travelled by motor car.

Five Station Doctors Attend.

At the station, five officers, headed by Squadron Leader James Forrester, worked with the clinic officials and in three hours the entire operation was ffinished. Eighteen beds were furnished by the station.

Clinic officials today spoke in appreciative terms of the splendid attended them at Trenton, and of the wholehearted support of personnel in the giving of blood. They have set an example of which they might well be proud, they said today, "and one which the residents of this city might well emulate. It would make a lot of people here think twice if they could see these fine young men step forward with a smile and give their blood. A large number of them have given several donations with some even reaching double figures."

Appreciation of the donations of soft drinks by the Coca Cola Company's branch here and butter by the Belleville Creameries was also expressed, while particular thanks was given, by the official to the unselfish little band of volunteer

Must Register Pistols, Revolvers

Commencing March 1st civilian-owned firearms must be registered, and be re-registered, Chief R. W. Frobert announced at the police station today following receipt of a letter from Commissioner S. T. Wood at Ottawa.

All types of firearms must be registered for the period extending from 1946 to 1950 and the registration must be completed before July 31, 1945, except those which include clubs types of pistols and revolvers which will require separate registration cards by applying at any police station, or police headquarters.

"Attention is also drawn to the necessity of exercising extreme care to see that such firearms are kept in a place of security, especially out of reach of juveniles and young children," said the statement.

"Owners are again reminded to report immediately to their local chief constable, any case where a registered firearm has been stolen, lost, or found. Any person desiring to dispose of a firearm can arrange for this through the medium of his local police department."

Prince of Wales Pupils Hear Talk by F.O. Welch

The school in which he received elementary education was not forgotten by Flying Officer Howard Welch, D.F.M., when he returned to Belleville during the past weekend. Overseas since 1942, the young Belleville airman spoke to pupils of Prince of Wales School on Monday morning and told them some of his experiences during the last two years of operational tours as an R.C.A.F. air gunner.

The young officer took the pupils on a typical bombing flight over Turin, Italy, but seemed loathe to speak of raids on Lorient and St. Nazaire when his squadron accomplished raided the German submarine pens on the French coast. Direct

Newspaperman Samples Joys of Retirement

(By "L.S." in the Vancouver Daily Province)

A friend of mine retired the other day. To be exact, he took his plunge into idleness on January 1st, the first.

As is usual in such cases, he spent most of the two weeks prior to this attending parties given for him by his office associates and received his usual deluge of flowery tributes for his past performances and pious hopes for his future welfare, judiciously mixed with as much alcohol as the exigencies of the season and the combined permits could supply.

These parties over, my friend went home to the apartment in which he lived for years, sat him down among his packed belongings, soon to be transported to his new abode, nursing a sore head and a glowing conviction that he was, perhaps, making a serious mistake in leaving all these good friends to carry on without him—not forgetting that their chief interest was the mild binge they were having, with him as a first-class excuse.

He is on a rural mail delivery route, has electric service and his plumbing is not all in the back yard.

He has a car, an AA ration and a 125-mile drive to the city. His nearest village is just an easy mile and a half. He has a 'phone and good neighbors close but not too close.

His income is adequate for all his needs, with something for emergencies.

He is a bachelor and is neither blessed nor cursed with the rustle of a woman's gown—or do gowns rustle these days?

He has his typewriter and a free lance assignment. His writing unhampered now by the old newspaper deadline, which increasingly oppressed him has grown in strength and beauty.

He has achieved a lifelong ambition in the installation of a carpenter's bench and workshop in his basement, where he can create all the disturbance and make all the noise he likes. He has a fine set of carpenter's tools and a flair for making furniture.

As a counter-irritant, he has at his back door a large woodpile which he regards with a certain resentment and increasing profanity. He has so split it himself—help, these days, is just not to be obtained), his fireplace is large and greedy. I sat in front of it with him recently; he had a bottle of rum—it was good rum. I was sorry to leave.

His lines are cast in pleasant places, he has escaped the City Jungle, the driving rush of the newsroom. He misses his friends, his friends miss and envy him. This has been his ambition of late. He has attained it, but he still has a question mark. In his mind—I wonder?

I think it will work out!

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

WI... ...A.F. Overseas, Feb. 27 (CP)—A second R.C.A.F. squadron is known to be operating in support of the 14th Army's drive against Mandalay.

Within 36 hours of its arrival at a forward base after a cross-continental flight from training stations in between India, the squadron's aircrew were carrying urgent supplies across the Chin Hills and Chindwin River to airships in the Shwebo and other sectors on the Mandalay front.

Arrival of the first R.C.A.F. squadron in the Burma front was announced in January.

In the first three days' operations, the second squadron moved more than 400,000 pounds of supplies in its twin-engined Dakotas, several of the crews making two or three flights a day.

Commanding officer of this outfit is Wing Cmdr. Ralph Gordon of Bobcaygeon, Ont., veteran of the R.C.A.F. who piloted the squadron in England last summer and flew on anti-submarine patrols as a flight commander from East coast Canadian airfields.

First operational flight of Wing Cmdr. Gordon's unit was led by Sqdn. Ldr. Richard Dennison of (290 York Apts.) Regina and (1005 (McArthur Blvd.) Winnipeg, a flight commander with an R.C.A.F. staff instructor with his commander at Macleod, Alta.

With the squadron are such men as P.O. John Soden, Cranbrook, B.C. and Plt. Off. Jacques Gagnon (1 Jacques Ave.) Toronto, both captains; P.O. Ernest G. Lee of (218 Dovercourt Rd.) Toronto and P.O. F. Ross Dyon of (1822 Gerrard St. E.) Toronto, both second pilots; P.O. Ernest Dixon of (936 First Ave.) Moose Jaw, Sask., and Plt.-Off. J. W. Dophin of (144 Spence St.) Winnipeg, both navigators; and Warrant Officer E. F. P. Carriere of (131 Tower St.) Sandy Lake, Ont., and P.O. R. W. Eves, Harley, Ont., wireless operators.

A Cree Indian, member of the R.C.A.F. is serving with Transport Command in the Middle East. He is W.O. Arthur Moses of the Saddle Lake Reservation in northern Alberta.

A graduate of the Alberta Normal School who plans to teach in his home province after the war, Moses spent four years at the University of Saskatchewan. He enlisted in November, 1941, and before being posted to the east, formed part of a crew ferrying aircraft from England to Africa.

Noah's Ark Found in Ice

(Condensed From "Life Digest," Melbourne, Australia.)

Five thousand years after Noah's dove hovered over the Ark which was grounded atop Mount Ararat, bringing good new about the flood in the shape of an olive leaf in its beak, a Russian airman named Vladimir Agavitsky, gliding down the slopes of the historic mountain in Armenia, suddenly heard his co-pilot yell: "Look down there."

Following his companion's pointed finger Agavitsky saw a strange object: a huge hull, with an overall deck length stranded against the shore of a glacial lake. The pilot circled his plane as low as he dared fly, noting all the details visible from the air—the stubby masts and curved deck; built at least as the vessel's designer expected wavys to wash right over it.

Back at his base, the airman related what he had seen to his fellows. All greeted it with a mock roars of laughter, except the captain, who insisted on taking a look for himself. When the plane had again circled the ship on the mountainside, and landed, the captain said:

"I believe what we have seen is Noah's Ark."

As soon as conditions permit, an expedition of experts will visit the scene to attempt final confirmation of the Russian captain's verdict—which three subsequent investigating parties have concurred in.

The First Great War was being fought at the time of the first "rediscovery of the Ark," and the Armenians had more to occupy their attention than ancient history, so the story spread slowly. But when it reached Moscow, two companies of special soldiers were sent to investigate. Scaling precipitous cliffs and making their way over the fields, they finally reached the Ark, measured it, drew plans of it, and photographed it thoroughly inside and out.

The Ark was found to contain hundreds of compartments — in keeping with the Lord's instructions to Noah: "Rooms shalt thou make in the Ark." Some were very large, presumably to accommodate the large animals — elephants, rhinoceroses, hippopotamuses. Others had high ceilings, probably for the giraffes and camels. Still others were lined with stout cages, for all the world like monkey houses at a zoo. Some had rows of tiny bars along the front, as if for the multitudes of birds.

A few days after the records had been sent to Russia, the Revolution broke out, and all the documents and photographs were destroyed, presumably by men who sought to destroy belief in all things Biblical.

In subsequent world turmoil, the "rediscovery" of the Ark was all but forgotten. Few Turkish officials, discovering a vague account of the Russian investigation of a few years before, decided to send a communication to the scene. After great hardships, the expedition reached the scene, and found the Ark in good condition, but largely embedded in ice.

An English expert in the party identified the wood of which it was built as the ancient "gopher" of the scriptures—a member of the cypress family.

Measurements checked closely with specifications laid down by the Lord in His instructions to Noah: "The length shall be 300 cubits, the breadth of it 50 cubits and the height of it 30 cubits." The cubit is generally held to be slightly more than a foot.

The sparsely-settled, half-wild mountaineers who lived near the resting-place of the Ark were reported to speak of the ancient ship, and even more unwilling to go near it. "Evil spirits" were supposed to have been seen at the windows, and it was a place to be avoided.

The inhabitants were, however, able to answer one question which had puzzled even those investigators most willing to believe that the vessel on the mountainside was indeed Noah's Ark, which had saved representatives of all the world's creatures. The Lord, in His wrath at the sinfulness of the newly-created earth, we remember, had sent the deluge. The problem was: How could a vessel, built of the stoutest wood, and "pitched within and without with pitch," withstand the ravages of 3000 years?

Dozy built of "gopher" or cypress bag been known to stand 1,000 years — but not 3000. And even though, in its present location, the Ark is sealed in a solid preserving coating of ice for 10 months in the year, the thawing and weathering for even two months of every 12 would long since have rotted the hull into nothingness.

But old residents explained that, in 1883, violent earthquakes had dislodged huge blocks of ice from the very summit of Ararat. And from one of these blocks, wondering explorers had seen this hull protruding, one July summer when the brief "summer" came. In other years, until 60 years ago, the Ark had probably never been touched by air, for it had been buried deep in eternal ice. Members of the expedition were convinced, with this final piece of evidence, that they had found the true Ark.

Another remarkable confirmation came later from Archdeacon Nouri of Jerusalem and Bahdan, a learned and noted traveller. After exploring the Euphrates, so rich in Biblical history, he reached Mount Ararat and, with his guides and servants, climbed to the resting place of the Ark. After thoroughly examining the vessel, he pronounced:

"I am positive we are beholding the Ark of Noah."

Great Tank Battle Looms Ahead On Plains of Cologne

By JON KIMCHE
(Reuters Staff Writer.)

The Germans report six American armored divisions waiting for the signal to advance behind the, United States 1st and 9th armies.

The Germans have no similar tank forces at their disposal since they transferred the 5th Panzer army to the eastern front. That left their western front with five to six Panzer divisions and the Germans are unlikely to risk these in an open battle in the plains before Cologne where they would be opposed by the full weight of the Allied tactical air force as well as Russian tanks and destroyers.

The German may, therefore, withdraw into the ruins of Cologne. The town, housing less than 10 per cent of its original population, 350,000 is an armed camp. Field Marshal Von Rundstedt, probably will avoid open battle and seek to conserve the Allied advance in the network of built-up areas and ruins that guard the Rhine crossings and the heart of the Ruhr.

But all the German spokesmen display great uneasiness as to whether this present attack really aims at a break-through or whether the so far unengaged British 2nd army will appear in the role which the United States 3rd played when it broke out from Normandy and raced east across France.

Neustettin Evacuated Says Berlin

Last Escape Route Along Baltic Coast Menaced by Reds

Zhukov Expands Oder Bridgehead at Kuestrin

London, Feb. 28. (CP)—The Germans announced the evacuation of Neustettin, today and said the Russians had raced on thirty miles to the north to Polinow, where they were within 15 miles of cutting the last escape route of German troops fighting in Eastern Pomeranyia and the Polish corridor.

Polinow is 13 miles north of Bublitz and only 30 miles from the Baltic. It is 13 miles from the coastal railway connecting Danzig with Stettin.

A transocean broadcast from Berlin said the Russians had reached Polinow and a military spokesman called the break-through "in that area toward Kosslin "and the dramatic event of the last 24 hours".

The capture of Neustettin and Bublitz by Red Army vanguards were constantly covered by the Nazi High Command spokesman said.

Neustettin is 90 miles east of Stettin and forty miles from the Baltic.

Moscow dispatches, however, said the Russians had forged even closer to the Baltic by taking the area northeast of Neustettin and were only about twenty miles from Kosslin, on the last railway route linking Danzig and Stettin.

A Reuters dispatch from Moscow said the Russian advance units had reached the Danzig-Stettin Road and were "in sight of the Baltic".

Another official dispatches from Moscow, however, said Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky's 2nd White Russian Army had been slowed by its push toward the Baltic by mud and fierce counter-attacks designed to prevent the closing of the trap on thousands of Germans in Eastern Pomerania and the rest of the former Polish corridor.

The German High Command reported that Marshal Gregory Zhukov's 1st White Russian Army had expanded its Oder river bridgehead below Kuestrin and driven east of Berlin.

In an order of the day, Marshal Stalin announced last night that Marshal Rokossovsky's 2nd White Russian Army had driven 45 miles northwestward into Pomerania in four days and had captured Polish stronghold of Chojnice.

44 Civilians Executed

At last report, Marshal Rokossovsky's forces were fighting forward 22 miles from the railway that last escape route hugging the coast between Danzig and Stettin. German broadcasters said the Russians already were hammering at the outskirts of Koslin, through which the railway passed.

In addition to threatening the entrapment of another force of Germans, this Stalin "double-envelope-conquer strategy, used successfully recently in the drive on Prussia and Latvia, brought a new menace to the Baltic port of Gdynia.

Marshal Rokossovsky's White Russian Army apparently continued largely marching men on the direct approaches to Berlin. Except for the Pomeranian drive, a Russian announcement told only of capture of 12 additional blocks in besieged Breslau and seizure of seven villages in Czechoslovakia.

The Germans said Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukraine Army had crossed the Neisse river at several points southwest of Berlin and around Dresden, but declared the Russians were repulsed.

AMENDMENT LOST

London, Feb. 28 (Reuters)—The amendment proposed by Conservatives criticising the British government's policy in Ireland was defeated in the House of Commons today by 326 votes to 25.

Three Scheduled To Take Last Walk

Fort Frances, Ont., Feb. 28 (CP)—Three men are scheduled to take their last walk shortly after midnight today, from the cells of the gallows in Fort Frances jail to meet with their fate for the hot stove torture death of Mrs. Viola Stevens of Flanders, Ont., last July 2.

Only an 11th hour intervention by the Department of Justice can save the men—Georges Shrypnyk, 38, and his brother, Anthony, 33, both of Atikokan, Ont., and William Schmidt, 31, of Fort Frances.

These men along with Elno Tillonen, of Fort Arthur, were sentenced to death last June 29 when a Supreme Court jury found them guilty of the charge after a five-day trial.

Tillonen had his sentence commuted to life imprisonment. The other three, sentenced to hang last Dec. 7, were granted last-minute reprieves until March 1, pending an appeal on behalf of Schmidt.

The Ontario Supreme Court dismissed the appeal for reprieve on the ground that the trial judge did not misdirect the jury properly, and the Supreme Court of Canada upheld the decision Feb. 20.

The Shrypnyks and Schmidt, accompanied by a strong Ontario police guard, were transferred from the Kenora provincial jail yesterday to Fort Frances.

Return of the prisoners recalled the excitement in this northwestern Ontario pulp and paper town last December when considerable public interest centred on preparation of the gallows in the jail yard. The enclosure being built on the direct approaches to Berlin. Except for the Pomeranian drive, Russian announcements told only of capture of 12 additional blocks in besieged Breslau and seizure of seven villages in Czechoslovakia.

The Germans said Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukraine Army had crossed the Neisse river at several points southwest of Berlin and around Dresden, but declared the Russians were repulsed.

Says Huns May Withdraw Over Rhine, Leaving Small Force in Ruhr Areas

(By JON KIMCHE)
(Reuters Staff Writer)

London, Feb. 28. (Reuters)—There are indications that Germany's Field Marshal Von Rundstedt is changing the plan of defence and that he may hold the area of Cologne and the Ruhr with a force of Munchen Gladbach with comparatively few troops, while withdrawing the greater part of his force across the Rhine. By doing this he might sacrifice part of the industrial capacity of the Ruhr which would come under Allied shellfire, in return for a certain amount of strategic freedom which he would have lost by staying on the west bank of the Rhine.

The four Allied armies attacking have not yet completely cut more than 1-3 of the total force remaining in Rundstedt's command for the defence of the Ruhr and the Cologne area, although the disorganization of Rundstedt's army behind the Rhine has been confirmed to the forward zone of the present battle. Yesterday's comparative immunity from tactical air operations will have eased Rundstedt's problem of reorganization.

It is not yet whether Rundstedt is still in full control of his armies will come when the 1st U.S. Army tests the defences of the Rhine Erft and when the 9th reaches the bulk of the Rheydt and Munchen Gladbach.

U. S. tanks have broken into the outer defences of Cologne, Germany, before a counter-attack of the U. S. 1st and 9th armies whose big guns are shelling the ruined Rhineland city.

NON-STOP ALLIED AIR OFFENSIVE IN THIRD WEEK

Berlin Hammered With Block-Busters for Eighth Consecutive Night

London, Feb. 28 (CP)—The non-stop Allied air offensive against Germany's railway system entered the third week today with another two-way bombardment in the making after Berlin was hammered with block-busters for the eighth consecutive night.

Along before noon, German radio stations had begun flashing alarms for the Reich's big and arduous sections of the country.

During the night, R.A.F. Mosquitos made two operations over Berlin. Port installations at Bremen, where the Germans are said to be rushing work on new type submarines, also were bombed last night.

More than 1,000 tons of bombs dropped by U. S. 15th Air Force heavies from yesterday's 15th, Air Force sorties into southern Germany, a spokesman hearty bomber attack last night on railway yards in the Verona area of northern Italy, and other operations in northern Italy and Austria, Allied headquarters in Italy announced.

BID FOR RUSSIAN PARTICIPATION IN JAPAN WAR MADE

House of Commons Hustles Toward Showdown Vote on Finland Issue

(Associated Press Staff Writer)
(By ALEX SINGLETON)

London, Feb. 28 (AP)—An open bid for Russian participation in the war against Japan was voiced in the House of Commons today as the House hustled toward a showdown vote tonight on the issue of the big, three-pin for Poland's future.

Maj. G. E. P. Thorp, Conservative, told the House of Commons he was faced with a long and arduous and probably costly campaign against the Japanese", and added:

"We cannot compel the Russians to share the burden of that campaign, but if co-operation means anything, the greatest co-operation we could ask for would be that of Russia in that war".

A few Conservatives led a bitter assault on the Crimea decisions by parting Poland. A vote on the Polish issue was scheduled tonight. Confidence Vote Expected.

A general vote of confidence on Prime Minister Churchill's government and general approval of the Yalta decisions come up tomorrow night.

Apparently anxious over the minority challenge to full-fledged unity behind the Crimea Charter, Mr. Churchill assigned Foreign Secretary Eden to open the debate on the decision on the floor and prepared to speak himself again tomorrow.

The rebellious Conservatives in Mr. Churchill's party charged that the treatment of Poland constituted that country's virtual partition in less than 200 years.

Pelts Govt. Bitter.

The Polish Government in London received with bitterness Mr. Churchill's statement yesterday to compensate Poland for land transferred to Russia from her territory in the west and north.

In another parliamentary in the House today, a member proposed a "Reserved Palestine" in Libya to provide refuge for hundreds of thousands of Jews.

The suggestion came from Sir Lambert Ward, Conservative, as government leaders marshalled forces to gain an overwhelming endorsement for Prime Minister Churchill's policies as the Crimea Conference showed a showdown vote of confidence is tallied tomorrow night.

An indication of Mr. Churchill's determination to democratize the Soviet British unity came in a reliable report that he himself would take the floor again tomorrow night to wind up the debate.

To Speak Second Time

Mr. Churchill's decision to speak a second time — a rare occurrence — at previously-planned government strategy — apparently was prompted by a Conservative group which felt it would lead a protest against the Big Three's treatment of the Polish problem. This group, which those far has attracted only 24 supporters, will attempt to amend the Prime Minister's confidence motion.

The amendments would express regret that the three great powers had decided to "transfer the territory under the territory of an ally contrary to treaty and to article 2 of the Atlantic Charter," and would regret the failure to ensure to those nations which have been liberated from German oppression the right to choose their own government free from the influence of any other power."

The debate now is set up for a three-day period. The vote presumably will come some time tomorrow.

ROOSEVELT BACK IN WASHINGTON AFTER CONFERENCE

Buoyed With Hopes For Enduring Peace, World-Wide Reduction of Armaments

Washington, Feb. 28 — (AP) — President Roosevelt returned today from the Crimea Conference with buoyant hopes for an enduring peace and world-wide reduction of armaments.

Back from a five-week, 14,000-mile journey to Russia by cruiser and plane, Mr. Roosevelt planned:

A report in person to Congress and the United States, tomorrow or Friday, on the meetings at which he, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin blueprinted the Allies' defeat of a "doomed" Germany and started the machinery for perpetuating eventual peace.

An appearance before United Nations Conference opening in San Francisco April 25, if official host, Mr. Roosevelt probably will welcome and address the delegates.

Then a vacation of possibly months with Mr. Churchill, after the San Francisco parley has finished its work. Britons frequently have suggested that the President visit London.

Came Ashore from Warship

Mr. Roosevelt came ashore at an east coast port, last night and at 11:30 o'clock he entrained for Washington, special train. He left here at 1:30 a.m. today and arrived at 9:30 a.m. today. Before motoring to the White House he conferred with King Farouk and with the rulers of Ethiopia and Saudi Arabia.

A report to included a speed run through the Panama Canal, a later at a time when German submarines were lurking nearby.

Before moving into catch-up conferences and a slate of chores that piled up during his absence, Mr. Roosevelt faced a sorrowful interlude — the last hoop honor for Arlington National Cemetery of Admiral Edward M. Watson, who died at sea Feb. 20 of a cerebral hemorrhage. Gen. Marshall accompanied the President to Yalta as secretary and military aide.

Mr. Roosevelt's arrival was accompanied by a strong escort of warships and planes.

The accounting on the second meeting of the Big Three will be broadcast.

The Three Conferees above ship, as his cruiser zig-zagged toward American shores, Mr. Roosevelt was reading soon today at Crimea Conference and spoken of his achievement for future world security.

It disclosed to reporters for three major news services, who met him in the White House traveled home with him, that the original basis for recognition of Germany was for Russia to take over Germanic areas, Britain the west and northwest and the U. S. the south and south.

This arrangement is subject to change, particularly in the proposed dictatorship of occupation, after Germany's defeat, because of a decision to offer France an opportunity to keep a thumb on part of the Reich.

Mr. Roosevelt viewed the conference at Yalta as one of a series of steps toward a better world. He felt the United Nations Security organization will develop into the best method ever devised for stopping war and eradicating some of its causes.

Enemies May Be Members.

Mr. Roosevelt even visualized Germany and Japan future members of the organization, at such time as they have demonstrated they are worthy of place in it.

It is his belief that they first must purge themselves, regain their self-respect, after they have shown for decades and decades an inability to live peaceably among nations.

The decision omitted from the conference communique, although disclosed when Turkey declared war on Germany and Japan, was that there no power not in the war would be invited to the United Nations meeting at San Francisco. (Cable dispatches have mentioned Marshal as the deadline for those nations to get into the war.)

Presidential aides did not interpret this as meaning, however, that Russia necessarily would declare war on Japan any time soon. Soviet diplomacy, they said, has been well established in the European conflict.

Yanks Chase Huns Across Rhine Plain in Greatest Break-Thru Since Normandy

Junction of Canadians and U.S. 9th Would Trap 15th Div.

By JAMES M. LONG, ASSOCIATED PRESS STAFF WRITER

Paris, Feb. 28 —(AP)— The United states 1st Army crossed the Erft river in a swift advance within eight miles of Cologne today while to the north the 9th Army had gained full control of the Roer dams on the heels of retreating and disordered Germans in the biggest break-through since Normandy.

A new blackout cloaked gains and prevented disclosure of town captured by the spreading 9th Army tanks, but German defences had collapsed into a virtual rout. When censors started damming up reports last night, the 9th Army was at the edge of the Ruhr and the gates of Munchen Gladbach.

Rushing For Getaway.

Field dispatches posited long columns of German transport rushing for the Rhine bridges and a getaway.

The 1st army plunged ahead so swiftly that it captured a bridge intact across the Erft canal, a natural defence. Infantry swarmed across the Erft at another place where it was not bridged.

Canadians on the north cleared 44 miles of the Rhine to the Waal-Rhine and beat upon the last swaying defens of the northern corner of the Ruhr at points 295 miles from Cologne, the nearest approach from the west.

In the centre, the American 3rd army swanned up to 3 1-2 miles on a 50-mile front and started an encircling movement against the ancient bastion of Trier.

The American 9th and 1st Canadian armies were within less than 30 miles of a junction in the Rhineland, a coup which might trap 15 to 20 divisions of Germany's best divisions.

A three-leaning blackout cloaked movements of the 9th Army, last reported within 13 miles artillery range of Duesseldorf and at the Rhine bridge at Neuss, Rhineland and fall centre of Munchen-Gladbach, and Rheydt. Canadian troops were pulling out of Munchen-Gladbach, a city of 127,000.)

A dispatch from Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters said the Canadians had driven to Rhineland sprang forward. At last report, U. S. 7th, 9th and 1st Canadian Armies were driving forward on a 50-mile front from Munchen Gladbach to Trier.

Another junction might trap the 10 divisions of Germans in the Saar basin and those strung along the Maas around the Netherlands towns of Roermond and Venlo.

10-Mile Advance

The American 9th and 1st Armies advances of 10 miles or more yesterday in the Rhineland battle for the defences of Cologne and Duesseldorf, overran hundreds of towns in the hundreds and topped town after town.

The Canadians, employing hundreds of tanks, had broken through at least two defensive belts of the Siegfried Line, the last section of the Siegfried Line in the area between the Maas and the Rhine rivers.

Nazis try to keep the apparently demoralized Germans from the Rhine dash on the full extent of the 9th Army's advance, but the town 1-hour curfew imposed last night on all its residents.

Resistance Weakening

To the south U.S. 3rd Army troops battled stubborn Nazis in the Eifel Mountain stronghold of Bitburg and Prum, Germans in the Bitburg-Trier highway in a general two-mile advance. Field officer declared that "German resistance is crumbling in the woods is kaput."

Japanese Halted By Liquid Fire

Manila, Feb. 28 — (AP)—Screaming Japanese, attacking behind the heaviest artillery barrage in the growing battle for the Marikina Watershed east of Manila, hurled a large-scale Banzai charge against elements of the American 8th Division today, but were driven off with heavy losses.

The attack occurred near Montalban, 12 miles northeast of Manila and close to the northern end of elaborately prepared enemy defences along the watershed.

Infantrymen spraying liquid fire cleared out Japanese in Manila's Legislative building, but suicide squads continued to hold out in the finance and agriculture buildings.

American troops occupied all of the Legislative sprucetree this morning after a night artillery barrage broke up a concentration of Japanese machine-guns on the second floor. Flame-throwers, using both gasoline and thermite grenades finished the job.

In the remaining enemy-held buildings, some Japanese committed suicide and, others were killed by their own officers as they tried to escape.

Headquarters announced, meanwhile, of the complete destruction of the enemy on Little Verde Island, between Luzon and Mindoro, and the virtual end of the Corregidor garrison.

CANADIANS TAKE THREE MORE MILES OF RHINE BANK

German Opposition On Flanks Lessens, Panzers Resisting Savagely in Centre

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the 1st Canadian Army in Germany, Feb. 28. (CP Cables)—German opposition on both flanks of the 1st Canadian Army lessened today, but in the centre, where the Canadians are increasing their pressure on the Hochwald Line, enemy panzer troops resisted savagely.

On the left flank British troops under Gen. Sir Miles Dempsey cleared Cas, one early paratroopers pulled out; British troops also occupied Donsbrugge to the south and north on the Rhine, giving the Canadian Army a front more miles of river bank.

On the right flank near the Maas River, other British troops advanced on the enemy defence westward. At several points white flags appeared on houses and there were indications the Germans were making at least local withdrawals.

German resistance continues south of Udem, where the remnants of the enemy's 8nd Parachtop Division are supported by armor and infantry thrust with anti-tank guns.

The offensive still was plagued by cloudy weather and air support could not be used.

Hundreds of tanks were being used in the drive that threatens to rip open the entire German northern front.

Canadians Smash Through Defence

Following a Thunderbolt attack, launched without artillery preparation dawn, these forces of the 1st Canadian Army smashed through the defences of Calcar and Cleve, Wehl and Zyfflich to the north to give the Army a front of 25 miles of Rhine shore southeast of Nijmegen.

Needen. Tanks and Infantry

Needen. Tanks and infantry swarmed through the forest along the railway line from Goch to Xanten, which is three miles east of Goch, in a three-mile advance. Elsewhere in the Rhineland battle, the Canadian 2nd Corps captured Calcar and occupied Wehl and Zyfflich to the north to give the Army a front of 25 miles of Rhine shore southeast of Nijmegen.

Introduced and introduced by Gordon Barsley was born in England and for many years since Lieutenant Nugent has taken a keen interest in the work among boys and he told a story entitled "Four Fine Boys". The first "Ted" a fictitious name, was a boy who had led pipe to a junk dealer and stealing it back and repeating the process. A visit to the home of the home and found it pretty demoralized. Second, "Bill" was a boy whose constant study the home was revolting. Third, "Jack" was a boy who left the father to show kids how to make boats and the mother to the sewing circle, was always leaving the living in the home, a different personality was revealed and he became a swell kid.

Fourth, "Bob" whose by name was unmanageable his mother stating that he was not her because he believed his mother was dead. He was a real friend of his sister. The speaker stated that Bob was a friend of his sister and was always breaking the dishes because he was washing for his foster home, given good training by his sister was now broke out he went overseas and is now home with a coat of England. "Bob" another boy was getting into trouble and by the aging of him following in his footsteps and by the training was able to steal a car and pack a revolver but through this home situation was fully explained to him by the speaker's heart and is now's successful business man.

The speaker showed that juvenile delinquency in 1942 as compared to 1939 had increased 54 per cent and when the proportion of boys to relation of girls was given it was every six boys the ratio is now one girl, to every girl there is a considerable increase. The increase in juvenile delinquency was also between the ages of eight to eleven this increase was 50 per cent. Professor Rogers says the nervous element has the biggest trouble with boys but the Big Brother gangs and in Toronto one social worker found twenty-seven problem children in a small area. "These are the boys who must be helped" he stated. He believed boys will accept good leadership. In closing he told of Bob who after he wanted a gift boy for Christmas and the Big Brothers contacted a man, who took the boy and that day he happily married and earning good money in a munitions factory.

Labor Shortage Affects Supply Hardwood Lumber

Potential builders or others who intend building or have a desire to own a lumber dealer and order a hardwood lumber for that matter, at a moment's notice, are due for a jolt.

In other words the wood isn't here in any standard quantity and won't be until certain labor and transportation affecting the industry are ironed out.

The first job fact that there is an actual shortage of the standard stock source. In fact, there are plenty of logs piled high at the sawmill yards, but there is the small matter of getting them out of the boys being overseas, sawmill men are up against a problem of their own insofar as getting the proper help is concerned.

Then again vital war priorities call for the major part of the hardwood that is available from time to time.

But in spite of this, small quantities of the material are trickling into the city, according to dealers state, but this in no way meets the demand for the large firm expects, carload in the near future and the smaller gets small lots at a time.

And that, according to dealers, is the hardwood situation at the present time.

Lobbyists See Possibility Of Early Ontario Election

Drew Throws Out Challenge to Minority Groups to Test Government

Toronto, Feb. 26 — (CP)—Opposition parties of the Ontario Legislature had Premier Drew's challenge today to test his Progressive Conservative administration if they so desired — a challenge in which some lobbyists saw possibilities of a none-too-distant Provincial election.

Revival of election talk stemmed from two developments at yesterday's sitting where the Premier crossed swords with Mitchell Hepburn and others to produce one of the stormiest House scenes since Mr. Hepburn's days as Liberal premier.

First the Premier, incensed by a point-by-point attack of his program by the C.C.F. opposition leader Jolliffe, declared: "If the Legislature is unprepared to support legislation of a major character, then this government will not continue to assume responsibility for government."

That came after Mr. Jolliffe, in an hour-long address in the Throne Speech debate, labelled government plans as "unpreparedness for peace" and making a five-point amendment to the Throne Speech motion. The amendment charged among other things that the government's attitude did not make for industrial unity and that it had failed to carry out its program.

Second development was the surprise appearance of Lieutenant-Governor Albert Matthews in the House at the Premier's request. He gave Royal assent to five measures, among them the new Provincial Active Service Voting Act. It provides a direct ballot for voting service men and women and a proxy vote for prisoners of war.

Hepburn Accused

The Premier explained Royal assent would make possible immediate discussion with the Dominion regarding voting regulations to be embraced in the measure. The government has promised these negotiations would follow as closely as possible those of the Dominion Act.

It was not Mr. Drew's support challenge which provoked the most hectic scenes of the day. Those came later when the Premier accused Mr. Hepburn of lowering the standard of debate in the House and made references to the Elgin member's non-appearance in the Grey-North by-election campaign.

Mr. Hepburn said he never had any intention of entering the Grey North campaign but he had "clout an invitation," which was more than the Premier could say.

For 10 minutes or more the Premier, Mr. Hepburn and A. A. MacLeod (LP Toronto Bellwoods) shot questions and charges at each other.

The Premier, pointing his finger at Mr. Hepburn, told him to keep personalities out of it if he wished to accept the consequences.

Such phrases as "Liberal-Communist Alliances" — a charge the Premier hurled at Mr. Hepburn and Mr. MacLeod — "Puppet" and "Dictator" were heard in the Chamber.

The Premier adjourned the debate and will continue either today or Thursday, with Mr. Hepburn and others still to speak.

Report Tabled

Report of a special House Committee which investigated lignite deposits in Northern Ontario was tabled. It said the committee did not believe the project was economically sound because of the lack of any substantial backing of industrial markets, but recommended work now underway be continued to provide more information.

In his Throne Speech address, opposition leader Jolliffe told the House his party still would consider legislation "on its merits," but added: "We find nothing in the Government's legislative program to suggest that they are seriously prepared to deal with the problems a post-war crisis will bring upon Ontario."

He declared the program of "the government at Queen's Park is the government at Ottawa's keenest opponent for peace" and moved his amendment asking that the House regret that the government's legislation had not developed industrial unity; that the government had failed to implement its promises; that it failed to provide legislation for adequate farm prices and farm security, and it failed to recognize the need for union security and that it had failed to accept its responsibility for planning and organizing employment in the post-war period.

Jolliffe Makes Charge

Mr. Jolliffe charged that while Premier Drew was attending the Dominion-Provincial conference, the government had refused to send a senior civil servant to Ottawa to carry out preliminary steps for such a conference at the Dominion Legislature. Every other province in Canada had been willing, National unity, he said, was the underlying motive behind Mr. Drew's attitude toward the Dominion-Provincial conference question.

These remarks brought from the Premier the charge that only on the basis of national unity, and that is that with equal opportunity there must be equality of obligation."

Mr. Drew said his government wanted to co-operate with the Dominion and other provinces but there were the rights of the people of Ontario to think about in any such dealings. He would always keep them in mind.

He said there had been much co-operation between Ontario and Quebec and named mining and health legislation as two matters on which the two provinces had reached amicable agreements.

Much had been said at the session about a minority government — 38 Progressive Conservatives against 32 C.C.F. members, 16 Liberals, two Labor Progressives and two Independents who recently split from the C.C.F. ranks.

So long as his government had the support of the majority, it would be a majority government, he said.

But when it became a minority government, he would not accept the responsibility to continue.

He termed Mr. Hepburn a jewel of "inconsistency" and quoted statements made by the Elgin Member respecting Prime Minister Mackenzie King and even Mr. Drew himself in an attempt to prove his point.

Hepburn Makes Charge

Mr. Hepburn asked if it were not true that Mr. Drew was a paid organiser for Earl Rowe, Progressive Conservative Federal Member, and that he later resigned and ran as an Independent and "got the worst trimming of your life."

"If you want to start that let's ask about your relations with the Member sitting beside you (Harry Nixon, Liberal Brant)," said the premier.

"I asked a question," insisted Mr. Hepburn.

"I was not a paid organizer and was working with Mr. Rowe," the Premier shot back, adding: "I first met the Member for Elgin when he was at the height of his power and took his worst defeat in East Hastings. He folded after that."

Harry Connor (CCF Hamilton East) got in a parting shot, saying that what the C.C.F. feared was that the two will knock themselves slap-happy and save us the trouble.

$14,000 Saving to Electric Users Passed by Commission

Ontario Hydro Reduces Horsepower Cost From $25 to $22

Reduction of power cost by the Ontario Hydro Power Commission for Belleville from $25 to $22 per horsepower means a saving of $14,000 to the electric users of this city and this was passed on to the consumers as from February 1st by a motion passed at the regular meeting of the Belleville Utilities Commission held on Tuesday afternoon.

The motion was made by Commissioner Follwell and seconded by F. D. Reid and passed unanimously. Manager O. B. Scott read the letter of the new rates that go into effect on February 1st and it was there that a reduction has been made in the residential entry department of the electric utility.

The letter also stated that work will proceed in the near future on the new sub-station to be erected at the corner of Catherine and Sidney streets and the high tension line from the Reid Street station to the new station. Options have been obtained on two lots at the above mentioned corner and when the property is cleared to the Utilities the work will be started. The Commission also purchased a new Dodge one-ton dump delivery truck from the Bateman Motors at a sum of $1,170. Another order struck has been disposed of by the manager. The Utilities also joined the Eastern Ontario Municipal Advertising at a cost of $10 and the A.M.R.U. at $25 a year.

A letter was read to the Commission to make a grant to the City Council for tax reducing purposes from the profit of the Utility, where there is a debenture debt to retire.

2. It is only necessary for an electric utility obtaining its electricity from the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario to deposit funds with the Council of the municipality to the extent and in such amounts as are necessary to provide for any payments required to be made on account of principal or interest issued for the construction and equipment of works for the distribution of electrical power and energy.

The resolution received from the City Council "that an enquiry be sent to the Public Utilities Commission asking for a statement as to what the corporation owns in respect to the local hydro system arising from the purchase made some years ago, or acquired since that date and also asking what city official made a demand on the commission for the profits of the electrical utility," was answered. The Commission will furnish the City Council with the property owned by the Commission and with reference to the latter part of the resolution "we would advise there was no official demand made on the Commission but there was an implied request made verbally by Alderman H. J. Clarke to the chairman of the commission. It is also understood the City Comptroller was advising the requirements of the act were in accordance with Ald. Clarke's request."

Modernized Photos Of Hastings Ex-Wardens Placed in Shire Hall

Some seventy-four ex-wardens of the County of Hastings will look down from modern photographs on meetings in the Committee Room at Shire Hall in the near future.

Forty pictures are already in place in ranks on the north wall and the others are expected to be completed soon to mark a tribute to the men who have ruled the destinies of the county since 1851.

The work of obtaining the pictures, especially of those wardens who lived and presided over the county in the late eighties has entailed a lot of effort on the part of County Clerk Eric Hynes and Miss Ruth Denning, his secretary. Old photographs had to be secured and enlarged to coincide with those of more recent date. They are of uniform size and handsomely framed. Names of the wardens are inscribed at the bottom of the photographs.

King Broadcast Likely To Clarify Political Picture

Ottawa, Feb. 26 — (CP)—Definite announcements on some points of uncertainty in the present political situation are expected in a radio speech to be broadcast by Prime Minister Mackenzie King on Saturday week.

Following a cabinet meeting, the Prime Minister's office announced last night that Mr. King will take the microphone at a time yet to be decided to speak on "matters of some inquiries that have been directed at the government lately."

The chief and most persistent inquiries relate to the date of the election and the calling of a further meeting of the present parliament, which expires April 17.

Other political developments may come more discussion. Progressive Conservative leader John Bracken is due to speak to the annual meeting of the party's Dominion Association here this week and in the Legislatures of Manitoba and Quebec governments face opposition which might force them to bring on elections.

The Prime Minister's speech is eagerly awaited by Members of Parliament and candidates for parliament across the country to see if they look for clues as to when to begin intensive preparations for the election and the lines of argument to develop in opposing or supporting the government at the coming election.

Two Axis Capitals

For the offending capitals of the Axis bombs are falling like hail. Berlin with its network of Nazi industries and railways has long since felt the strength of the British and American raids which have reduced a great part of it to ruins. Now Tokyo has been the attraction for U. S. squadrons with the numerous war industries in the Japanese capital as targets. Berlin has known what it has meant and Tokyo is getting foretastes of what is to come. Even Berlin has not yet felt all for the united power of air and land offensive impends against the German capital.

Neither of these two Axis cities could have foreseen at the start of the war what has come to them and what is yet arriving. Both capitals as the seats of the aggressors were confident that such things as have come to pass could never be thought of or much less realized.

What has come is a surprise and a death-blow to the Axis partners. The air strength carries on its mission that not only capitals of the enemy but the resistance of their forces is utterly crushed. What it means for Berlin it means for Germany and her armies and what it means for Tokyo it means for the whole of Japan.

The proud boast of the Axis used to be that their tyrannies were the assurance of victory, that the dictators could not fail. But it is the Axis that made the greatest mistakes and showed the least reason—they went to war. That was their mistake which they did not think a mistake. The democracies have the strength, the determination and justice and most nations of earth want democracy and liberty and none want Hitler's and Nippon's chains. At this time the German and Japanese capitals are a commentary on the falsity of the claims of the aggressors. All the deeds of evil that they could do have not won them the war, that they have done has headed them for defeat which will be so complete that the nations of earth it is expected will never again be threatened by marauder nations like the gangs centred in Berlin and Tokyo. These nations will be no held in check that they will not be able to terrorize the world and plunge humanity into year after year of war.

Berlin, Tokyo, Rome, as names and things that the peace-loving world detests and of which they will rid the globe.

British Shipping Record

The magnificent record in war of the United Kingdom shipping and shipbuilding and the vital part they will play in post-war restoration of world economy were presented in the annual report of the Chamber of Shipping. Up to the end of 1943, nearly three thousand United Kingdom ships—11,600,000 tons gross—were sunk but despite the grievous losses of the early years, the eventual success of the combined navy and air operations against U-boats, together with intensive shipbuilding, brought the net loss to under thirty per cent—a total of seventeen-and-a-half million in 1939, thirteen-and-a-half million in 1943.

Throughout 1944 the situation improved. The merchant navy in the landings on the Continent played no small part; the initial picture only thousand merchant ships of some three million tons participated; in the first hundred days, 2,200,000 men, four million tons of stores and five hundred thousand vehicles were landed. Previously published figures show the intensive character of the U. K. Wartime Shipping. In 1940-43 construction was 20 per cent over the comparable period of 1915-18 despite a 55 per cent concentration of labor on naval work and over half the remaining manpower engaged on repairs. To the end of 1943, 4,700,000 gross tons were built in U. K. shipyards and an expert opinion gives the 1944 construction at one million tons. There has been considerable amount of specialized building.

After the immediate post-war period when every ton of shipping will be needed, world shipping will have an unbalanced character, the report said, thoroughly unsuited to peace needs, with a preponderance of standard cargo ships mostly under the United States flag. Thus, though the problem of eliminating the surplus is worldwide the lead must be taken by the United States, says the statement.

For Great Britain, however, the shipping industry has proposed a solution of the division surplus into, first, a strategic or break-up reserve definitely surplus to the market requirements and secondly a commercial reserve, for example, of ships which from quality and expedition of employment can be regarded as "marginal" tonnage. On the U. S. proposal to dispose of surplus vessels to American and foreign shipowners, the report says, "superficially attractive as this suggestion might seem, the need for the disposal of surplus must be balanced with the need, equally vital to maintain the shipyards of Britain in full employment and for the re-creation of the British Mercantile Marine, with the most modern tonnage designed for economic trading.

Allied Music on the Rhine

(New York Herald Tribune)

The 18,000 plastic harmonicas which the thoughtful War Department has announced will arrive overseas soon are certain, we think, to fulfill their well meant and obvious purpose of furnishing a form of portable orchestration likely to cheer snow-bucking boys on the Western Front.

The mouth organ—for one prefers this simple name which always been popular with melodic amateurs, offering as it does the most music in the smallest space, the widest scope to the least talent, of all devices common to music-making man. The miniature labial calliope, when set in motion by the fervent inhalations and exhalations of an expert, has a nostalgic tonal quality capable of recalling the back porch of a farm on a summer night and thus making many a boy find "My Old Kentucky Home" that much nearer Berlin.

It is interesting to remember that the harmonica, which for so many years appeared the country under German labels, will now be plastically returning to the home of its ancestors in the uniform pockets of boys who never expected to be playing "mouth organ" in the vicinity of the Rhine and in two feet offering as to Teutonic snow. Our guess is that the first shipment of mouth organs will be so well received that an encore of at least 180,000 might fitly follow.

It is not too much to predict that the brisk measures of many typically Yankee tunes will yet echo along the Wilhelmstrasse—the victorious products of the almost breathless enthusiasm of G.I. mouth organs.

"Happy, Singing Hens"

(Victoria Colonist)

A correspondent writing to a Mainland newspaper the other day referred to the success she had had with her "happy, singing hens." The secret, said the correspondent, was to feed the hens correctly, house them under proper conditions, study their health, and then the hens would do the rest. The hens will be happy and singnot mefely cackle, but sing! We like the recipe. If that will make even one hen happy we are in full favor of trying it. Although a little shocked at the singing, we would be prepared to risk even that if one solitary living creature on this planet can be rendered happy.

But should it stop at hens? Supposing the world found a means of feeding people correctly, housing them under proper conditions, paying due regard to their health —would human beings, too, sing and be happy? If human beings had the same mentality as poultry, perhaps the results would be similar.

Men are not like hens. Hens can be happy, and when happy they may even sing—although we doubt it. Human beings will only be happy when they can live their own lives, upon their own plans, be they good or bad.

JUST FOLKS

HOME'S BEST

Who knows what home is best?

Not always the ones who stay there,
Thinking other spots more blest,
Wishing often they could stray there.
But, the soldiers dreaming of it
They're the ones who really love it.

Who know that home is best?

Ask the lads in jungles, tropic,
When they get a chance to rest,
What of talk's their favorite topic?
What is it they sit reviewing?
Home, and what the folks are doing!

Who know that home is best?

Not the ones of old scenes weary,
Seeking alien interest.
They may think the place is dreary!
But, the stout hearts, flying for it,
Sailing, fighting, dying for it.

Press Freedom Threatened

(Windsor Star Editorial)

At a time when world-wide freedom of the Press has become one of the major aims of the United Nations, this issue is not immediately threatened in this country. A bill introduced into the Ontario Legislature by Mr. George Bennett, C.C.F., member for Windsor-Sandwich, is a minor manifestation of the trend.

Mr. Bennett's bill would forbid newspapers to carry political advertisements or political editorials on polling day. On the surface, this may sound like an innocent proposal, and one that is perhaps backed by reason. Actually, it is extremely dangerous. It constitutes the first step toward legislative censorship of newspaper editorial opinion, and no hint of that can be tolerated by a free people.

One question which would arise would be as to what constitutes an editorial. Any report of a political meeting held on the day of an election, and carried in a newspaper on that day, would take place, could be construed as an editorial. Even if it could be proved to be manifestly ridiculous to allow the prohibition of such a report and forbid comment on it, the principle involvement would be to ban the publication of it. Editorial freedom here political authority would be stepping right into the business of controlling the publication of news, an even more dangerous principle.

If Mr. Bennett's bill were the only manifestation of a movement on the political groups to interfere with the freedom of the Press, it could be dismissed without much concern. It is not likely to pass, in any case. But it is not the only sign of the tendency.

Certain C.C.F. supporters in positions of some authority have made open suggestions from time to time, that a political party should be imposed on newspapers. Here, with the C.C.F. in power in Saskatchewan, there are more or less veiled suggestions that the government may acquire or establish a newspaper. That is a possibility that must be viewed with the utmost apprehension.

Let us face the fact squarely that newspapers owned or controlled by political parties would be no new thing in Canada. They have undoubtedly existed in the past. A comparatively few years ago were quite common. Now that is a different matter from newspapers owned and operated by a government in power. Once they are established, freedom of the Press becomes a thing of the past.

The one-time party organ has all but disappeared. It has been crowded through any access of journalistic virility, through a keener discrimination on the part of the public. Such newspapers became commercially unsound. Even political groups found that subsidization cost more than it was worth. Particularly when the readers generally turned to journals whose independence of party politics was such that they therefore could be relied on for an honest presentation of news and views.

Government operation of newspapers would bring about a condition in which all the people, through the C.C.F. government, would contribute to the support of one-party propaganda which they did not subscribe to. The only way to prevent such a movement is to oppose strenuously every step toward such a situation.

Tropics Hotter Than You Think And It Rains 'Horizontally' There

By KENNE PYLE

In the Marianas Islands — It is tropical where we are now, wonderfully tropical.

It looks tropical, and best of all, it feels tropical. Just now is the good season, which is to us like a pleasantest part of summer at home.

But it is hotter than you think, and you change your whole approach to the weather in here.

You get from the navy a long-billed "baseball" cap to shield your eyes from the sun. Your clothes closet has an electric light bulb hanging constantly in it, to keep it dry so your clothes won't mould. You change your leather belt for a web strap to a canvas one, for a leather one would mould on your arm.

You put on heavy-topped shoes again, for it still rains here and the red mud is sloppy. And instead of light sack dresses as you'd think, you put on hero shirts to help cushion your feet in the big seas, and to absorb the moisture.

Officers wear their sun-glasses cases hooked to their shirts as ours are unknown. There is no glass in the windows. Wide slanting eaves put out far beyond the windows in all the permanent barracks built by the navy, for when it rains it really pours.

And as someone said, it rains "horizontally" here. In the few showers since we arrived, I've seen that the rain does come at quite an angle.

Actually the rainy season is supposed to be over. Consequently, every time it showers during the day, the Californians in camp point out that the weather is "unusual."

Lieut. Cmdr. Max Miller and I are staying briefly in a room of a Bachelor Officers' Quarters (BOQ). Our famous feathers have put them up all over these various islands, since we took over from the Japanese last summer.

They've also formed form of immense Quonset huts, made of corrugated steel with concrete floors. Some of them are even two stories high, have a six foot down the centre, and individual rooms on each side. The walls are screened.

The outside wall is almost all screening, too, and the ceiling spaces are screened but have no floor, for it never gets so cold you'd want to shut the window. But it is pleasantly cool at night, and we sleep under sheets.

Each room has a clothes closet and a washstand, and a chest of drawers. And also two beds. These are the beds of the Old Marines.

They are American beds, with double mattresses, soft and wonderful. As everybody says, they're fifty beds than you'd have at home. I don't know how many beds I've served in Europe, and he laughed and said: "Plenty." So they've roughed it there, I feel self-conscious about sleeping like this over here. But if the Navy wants to get soft on me, I'm sure as hell going to sleep in them.

Naturally everybody on these islands doesn't live like that, for these quarters are only for transients—officers, nurses, and staff officers.

The great working camps of the Seabees and the troops are largely tent and corrugated cots in them. But on the whole, now that we have been improving the islands for several months, everybody lives pretty comfortably.

Max and I had a reception committee when we walked into our room.

A half dozen Seabees were throwing old lumber into a truck just outside our window. We hadn't been in the room two seconds until

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

THE HOPELESS PROGNOSIS

The other day I said that in exceptional cases the prospect of cure for great improvement in the future hopeless. Hopeless means having no expectation of lasting improvement or recovery of health.

In the early days of my country practice a colleague in another village called a surgeon from the city to operate on a boy with acute appendicitis, and me to give the anesthetic. When we reached the boy's bedside we found him, as the three of us were certain, moribund from general peritonitis. What was known as "inflammation of the bowels"—the consequence of rupture of the inflamed or gangrenous appendix that makes appendicitis so dangerous when surgical treatment is too long withheld. While we were considering how best to tell the parents that it was too late to attempt the operation, the boy's father solved the problem by announcing suddenly that he would not consent to operation. So the three doctors—the city surgeon, the boy's family doctor and me—men of experience, and I, the tyro fresh from the hospital lack, as you may well imagine, pretty cocky about our knowledge, took on the latest wrinkles in the doctor line and expressed our great sympathy for the family and retired, with a hopeless prognosis—we gave the boy more than 24 hours to live.

In similar circumstances I'd give the same prognosis today. Probably ninety-nine out of a hundred physicians or surgeons would.

Nevertheless there has been an excellent recovery and grew up to become a young manhood, only to lose his life finally in a railway accident.

In exceptional cases—I do not believe it would do any good to mention them—I would refuse in cases of a chronic or long enduring and progressive or worsening character. I believe the physician should administer or prescribe whatever anodyne, sedative, or "dope" if you please, seems to give the patient any success or comfort, and without regard for habitforming qualities. I say it is wicked and cruel to impose any federal, state or municipal restriction upon the administration of prescription of any such drug or narcotic by the attending physician in such circumstance.

The attitude of the federal, state and local government authorities is and for years has been equivocal and many thousands of unhappy diabetics in respect to the control of the narcotic traffic. It would be better to let a hundred criminals escape punishment than to harass an unlucky diabetic near mortality because of interference with proper use of such drugs in his practice.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Bone Meal

I have Been Told bone meal tablets act as a preventive of tooth decay. Have been unable to find them in local drug-stores. (Miss E. B.)

Answer—Bone meal is composed of about 15 parts of calcium in a hundred parts calcium carbonate and tricalcium phosphate. It would be more effective, I believe, to take calcium gluconate and dicalcium phosphate, of course always add vitamin D, which is essential for assimilation and retention of calcium.

Carbolic Acid

Please advise me the correct average dose of carbolic acid in a teaspoonful of water. (C. C.)

Answer—One to two drops of carbolic acid diluted with plenty of water. I doubt that taking carbolic acid internally every day for forty years, as you say you have done, has anything to do with immunity against any kind of disease. I should not advise taking carbolic acid in any dose for any purpose.

Dentist Is No Bogey

I've always been afraid the dentist would hurt. Please give me a remedy. Is it safe? Do you believe in filling teeth? (C. C.)

Answer—You look again and see whether your letter is dated 1946. You do not owe your life to the only way the teeth can be kept, brush or no brush. I believe in filling even the baby teeth, if cavity is discovered. For the sake of health, comfort, appearance and long years of life you should have your teeth looked after. Dentist is no bogey-free and relaxed, envelope bearing your address, for reply. (Copyright 1945 by John F. Dille Co.)

IT BEATS THE BAND, JOE!

The Associated Press, apparently short of news, recently sent out the following remarkable statement:

"The banjo originated in America. It is named after Joseph Sweeney, who, because he played so many instruments was called 'Band Joe' or 'Banjo'."

Probable the "reliable source" of this information was a newspaper contemporary, Bob Ripley, or "Believe It or Not" fame, who has repeatedly written:

"The banjo (the only American musical instrument) was invented by Joseph Sweeney, a musical Irishman who was so versatile that he was called a whole band in himself—hence 'banjo'."

It would be interesting to know what "musical instrument" he invented that joks and got Bob Ripley and the Associated Press to take it seriously.

Of course, that story is a lot of nonsense. Nevertheless, it does have given our serious stymologists much trouble.

The banjo was probably patterned after the crude native African instrument. A primitive type of banjo, made with gourds and grass strings, is still used by the natives on the Guinea coast. Its Senegam-among the Negroes of the South.

Chief Constable's Annual Report Shows Police Court Cases Increased In 1944

There was an increase of 309 cases in Belleville police court in the year 1944 over the previous year, it was revealed in the annual report of Chief R. W. Pophart submitted to the Belleville Police Commission today. In 1944 there was a total of 1036 cases entered in the city police court of Belleville, of this number 940 were males and 96 females.

Another remarkable feature in the activities of the local police department was the fact that every motor vehicle reported stolen in Belleville in 1944, was subsequently recovered and returned to the owner. Belleville police also were instrumental in the recovery of three motor cars stolen from other centres, Chief Probert's report revealed. Only one fatal accident occurred on city streets.

Commission Approves

The annual report of the chief constable is submitted to the Police Commission, that consists of His Honor Judge Cameron, chairman; Magistrate T. Y. Wills and Mayor A. E. Pollard.

The report in full is as follows:

The Chairman,
Board of Police Commissioners,
Belleville, Ontario.
Dear Sir:—

I respectfully submit, for the information of the Board of Police Commissioners, my report for the year 1944, including the criminal and other statistics, for that period.

There were 1036 cases before the Court, an increase of 309 over last year. There were 940 males and 96 females.

During the year there were 87 motor vehicle accidents investigated and reported to the Department of Highways. Twenty-nine persons were injured, one fatally, from these accidents.

Eighteen motor vehicles were reported stolen in the city. All these vehicles were recovered. Three stolen motor cars were recovered for other Police Departments.

There were 169 bicycles reported stolen, 156 of these were recovered and returned to their owners.

The number of transients given shelter at the Police Station totalled 358.

181 doors and windows were found to be insecure when checked by the officers on night duty. In each case the owners were notified and the premises made secure.

There were 680 dog tags issued during the year and 250 dogs were destroyed by Thomas Thorn, Dog Catcher.

The City Fire Department received 266 calls and police attendance was given where required.

Three sudden deaths were reported and investigated by the Department. One drowning, one motor accident and one from natural causes.

The total amount of fines and fees collected amounted to $10,470.70, all of which was handed over to the Magistrate for distribution.

To the members of the Department, to the City Council and to the city staff in general, I desire to extend my thanks for their splendid co-operation.

In conclusion I wish to take this opportunity of thanking your Honorable Board for the valuable assistance received.

Respectfully submitted,
R. W. PROBERT,
Chief Constable.

SOCIAL SECURITY IS TOPIC OF BILL FOR SOUTH AFRICA

Increased Pensions, Children's Allowances and National Health Centres Featured in White Paper

Cape Town, Feb. 26 —(CP)—The South African government's immediate social security proposals now are being disclosed in a white paper entitled "Some Aspects of Social Security" which has been tabled in the dominion's assembly.

In discussing the proposals, emphasis was placed on the word "some" in the paper's title and it was made clear that this was only the first instalment of the government's plans. The white paper proposes measures which it is estimated will cost £16,345,000 by 1947-48 plus an amount as yet unknown for extended health services.

The main proposals are: that the maximum old age pension be raised to £50 a year and the means limit be made more liberal; that invalidity grants and blind pensions be improved; improved grants under the Children's Act and the payment of allowances to poor families for the third and subsequent children; expansion of the scope of existing unemployment benefits so as to cover many more persons especially in the low wage groups, with retention of the principle that employees and employers and the state should all contribute; subsidies to provinces to assist in the provision of extended hospital services; the development of national health centres; the continuation and expansion of social services now rendered by government department; the introduction of other benefits, national income permit.

All these services would be state finances.

It was urged that all Europeans, natives and negroes in the dominion over 16 years of age, with the exception of housewives, be registered immediately to determine the scope of social security legislation once it were put into effect.

It has been announced that the South African air conference will be held here March 20 with delegations from Britain, southern Rhodesia, Kenya, Nyasaland and other British territories invited to attend. Discussions will also be held with Portuguese West and East Africa and the Belgian Congo.

A co-operative effort by a number of ex-servicemen to provide homes for themselves and their families has resulted in the erection in Turnbridge of four blocks of flats. The buildings were put up by the Ex-servicemen's Housing League, a body representing the Mount Beal and Springtop legions. They cost approximately $100,000, which sum, with the exception of a $20,000 grant from the city of Johannesburg, was loaned by the government at 3-4 per cent interest.

Welfare Minister Lawrence dealt in the Assembly with the government's housing policy saying that if there were a shortage of labor which made it impracticable to build 11,000 national houses before the end of next year, the government might have to take special steps. The possibility that the government might have to make use of certain members of the South African Engineering Corps to build houses was being explored. It intended to withdraw from trade unions because the rights of artisans had to be protected.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The "Kid Sister" Has a Tale of Woe.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am twenty-two years old, and my sister eight years older than I, so often embarrasses and annoys me that I have to avoid her. Would you please help me by answering some questions. My questions may sound silly, but to me they aren't. Perhaps you know how older sisters are?

Don't it impolite for my sister to introduce me as her "kid sister?"

I am small and my sister is tall. Should she accept a ride for us in her girl friend's car when there isn't room for us unless my sister holds me on her lap?

And she insists that I wear the bread leather belt on my new dress with the buckle in a careless, sideway position. I think a belt worn in this awry way makes me look untidy. But my sister thinks it's "cute." Isn't it rude for her to tease me in front of our relatives as if I were a child? She often squeezes me and lifts me completely off the floor while she stands behind me with her arms clasped around my waist. She says my relatives are always very much amused.

— Frances.

Yes, I know "how older sisters are"—sometimes extremely hard to take, and sometimes blessedly endearing. Your sister, obviously, is both of these, but I should say, from your picture of her, generally endearing and deeply and gaily devoted to you. I resent her introducing you as her "kid sister"—to me "Kid" is one of the most unattractive words in the language, and only the adorable Mr. Joe Kilgallen can make it even remotely pleasant when he says with his Quiz Kids: Do you bet, seriously, as a special favor to you, not to continue this "Kid" form of introduction.

Your other complaints are, I think, pretty superficial, and allow that she, being of a gayer turn of mind than you are, enjoys lifting you from your seriousness. Why not graciously accept the ride (it's an infrequent privilege these days) and sit on your sister's lap? You'll make an issue of the belt-buckle position, you're old enough to wear it as you want to do, say (haughtily) "I'm not amused" when she tries to tease you before your relatives . . I know older sisters well enough to know that the more you show your embarrassment or chagrin, the more their maddening delight in teasing you! I believe you've got a mighty nice sister. Take her spooning amiably —and enjoy her devotion to you, even though she sometimes shows it in fumbling ways. You don't complain that she's "mean" to you — and that's a great blessing.

Gift for a Girl Friend

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been going with a girl for several months, and would like to give her a gift for her birthday. I've read in your column that, unless a man and a girl are engaged, he should not give her too personal a gift, and that she shouldn't accept such a gift. So, what to give her?

Jack.

Good taste, sir . . congratulations! A bottle of perfumes is a "cavalier" gift, particularly if, by careful questioning, you can find out your lady's preference. And of course, books, and phonograph records of her favorite kind of music. Or a monogrammed purse, or a gala evening bag. Or sheer white handkerchiefs embroidered with her initials or first name, perhaps in her favorite color. Or a fountain pen, or a pencil for her purse; or an umbrella; or traveling clock; or bridge set; a compact or vanity-case; or a bill clip, monogrammed. Or would you like to plan to give her some good-looking letter-paper—perhaps note-size too, engraved with her initials or monogram.

Fashion Flashes

GINGHAM STEPS OUT and appears in smart frocks and hats. A plaid gingham of black and white checked gingham for the bloused bonnet crown and red felt for the peaked brim. The gingham crown sparkles with tiny red and gold sequins. There's a matching drawstring reticule.

PERSISTENCE marks the pepplum, for here it is again on coats and dresses. A pretty frock is fashioned of a circus print in red, white and black; the blouse is finished with a rippling peplum in black taffeta. The curved neckline is edged with taffeta, as are the short sleeves.

A NEW CROP of toppers is ready for late Spring. A smart model, made in suede-finish woollen has deep armholes and broad shoulders accented with curved seaming. Same seamed detail for the pockets. Softly bloused top over self belt; covered square buckle.

THREE CHEERS for the very new design. A dress of black rayon faille is made with winged sleeves and a full cape back. Nice when tucked into the belt to form a brief back peplum but nicest when left to swing free.

BEST ADVANCE NOTICE of Spring is the soft suit in navy wool with white touches. Navy blue wool-crepe makes a soft suit with a row of small white buttons down the front for closing, and at the flanged shoulders. A white pique collar is cut in petal shape.

THERE'S A NEW LOOK about the play togs made for summer. There's the very new culotte coat, really a flared tunic with a very pipped-in waistline. Nice in white pique with a big bright red flower print. Matching shorts and bra.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Flat Chest and Thin Shoulders

Rounded slenderness is what the beauty contingent is seeking. Some lucky girls have it; they can rest on their laurels and smile at the poor sisters who are increasing their calories and doing everything possible to put adipose padding on their forms. The plain-faced feminine shape has neither bumps nor sharp angles. The normal figure makes for health and vitality. Overweight is for the sedentary, reducing, a burden to the active around. Emaciation is a poor clothes carrier, doesn't suit any sort of front. Circulation is sluggish, the complexion is pale, the outlook tremulous.

A flat chest, together with thin shoulders and collar bones that are on the uplift, rob the evening gown of its charm—especially now, when the formal often appears to hang on by some process of enchantment, shoulder straps being well nigh invisible. The swan-like neck may be pretty, but it is pretty only on a swan. And scrawny shoulders will never measure up in the beauty survey. So here's what to do about it if you are too slim, can't make the lady's dress scales so much as tremble.

Stand erect, feet three inches apart. Hips back, tummy flat, chest high, head on the level, hands outstretched to the limit. Double up your fists. Hands straight out in front, then elbows bent and fists then out at the sides with a hard muscle pull. High again, out in front and repeat.

Next exercise; stand (all, hands down at the sides, palms against the thighs. Lift the hand slowly to the head, the backs touching. As the hands are lifted, go up on the toes, then send the hands forward and back, pulling on the muscles of the chest. Go up and down on the toes as the body swings forward and back. This may sound complicated, but it isn't. It will have a strengthening effect upon the muscles of the neck, chest and arms. As musculate improves, there will be more fullness.

These simple exercises are beneficial because they call into play many fibres that are not used in the ordinary course of the day's activities. They may protest against strain; they're lazy, haven't been made to work.

If you are below standard weight, the diet must include more food elements that build adipose tissue. Begin the day with a hot cereal with plenty of cream and sugar; nothing like it to fill out the hollow places and add the pretty points. A quart of milk a day will do more for you than your best corset for the calcium content. You can drink it, or eat a dish of it, of course, a certain amount of cheese, fish or fowl, vegetables and fruit.

Poultices for all ills of all times is important. Don't overlook deep breathing. Massage the chest and breasts with cocoa-butter every night.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Life of the Party in Company—Sulky and Silent at Home

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My wife must find me deadly uninteresting because she goes into ecstasies when we are at home alone together. But let anyone come in and she begins to show off and be very particular about her audience. Whatever of them seems to me like dull, frumpish old women, engaged in saving the world along the lines my wife has chosen. Others are callow youths or men like myself who missed the draft because of physical disability, though I wish they'd take me if only to keep my wife quiet.

I don't know where or how I failed as a husband. I pay the bills, make my wife a good allowance and hold a good job, but she surely can give me silent treatment at the home. What do you think is the matter with her?

'P. T. F.

Any number of things may be the matter with her, Perhaps she hasn't found you a sympathetic audience for the many things which makes her the life of the party. Are you grave and silent when she holds forth? She may have fallen out of love with you and be interested in someone else. Or she may be just contrary and takes out her spite on you because she thinks you'll stand for it.

Why don't you give her a little chaste treatment? Some home less often is be the victim of her silent void of maternal instinct.

Responsibility Rests With This Little Girl's Father

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My wife and I have a legal separation, though we have had a divorce though I had good and sufficient cause. We have one little daughter, age 8, to stay with her mother because I thought the child would have a good effect on my wife.

But the little girl comes to me to spend a week-end every other week, her entire talk is about mother's boy friends. She even told me about having a sip of cocktails from the glasses of her mother's friends. I feel now I'm not doing right by the child to let her remain with her mother, but in opening this question of the morality of my wife is abusive to me.

J. W. W.

It's so easy to let dreadful situations drift along, and excuse ourselves for not stepping in and attempting to right them. You realize now it was a mistake to have allowed your wife the custody of the little girl, and you have unconsciously led her the child. You'll have to re-open the case and request the custody of the letter. Consult the best lawyer you can afford and arrange to have the little girl put in a good boarding school. Your wife seems to be definitely unfit for the care of your child.

WHEN DUSK COMES DOWN

When dusk comes down upon a weary land
And shadows play on lake and stream and strand,
When o'er the earth a peaceful stillness broods
And not a note of discord e'er intrudes,
Then earns that burden and forget the day
With garish sunlight fade and melt away.

'Tis then we dream of joys that once were ours,
Life's sunny springtime and it's fleeting flowers,
Ambition, too, soars high in farther flight
When morn's bright sun shall drive away the night;
Then peaceful only are the thoughts that throng
And sweet the notes that blend in even song.

O, blessed season of repose and rest!
A surcease from the day's relentless quest!
When weary brain and brawn renew their power
In the calm quiet of the evening hour.

Like kindly benediction from above

Camp Borden R.C.A.F. Team Defeats Trenton Flyers 7-5 And Enters Command Finals

Winners Score Two Goals in Final Two Minutes of Play to Win Round by One Goal

Barrie, Ont., Feb. 28. (CP)—Scoring two goals in the final two minutes of play while their opponents were short-handed, Camp Borden R.C.A.F. advanced into the finals of the No. 1 Air Command by defeating Trenton Flyers 7-5 here last night. Camp Borden will meet the winners of the Centralia-Port Hope series in a sudden-death game in Toronto on Friday.

With the teams deadlocked in the final stages of the game, Marshall of Trenton, drew a penalty, Camp Borden stormed around the Trenton goal on a power play and were finally rewarded when white took a pass from Bedard and beat Robinson, Trenton netminder, on an assist-high shot. Wiles added another just for insurance less than half a minute later.

Trenton went into the lead after thirty seconds of play when Rasminsky took a pass from Prigon, skirted the Camp Borden defence and beat Goalie Pipher cleanly. Rasminsky gave the Flyers a two-goal edge less than two minutes later after he slatted in Prigon's rebound in a wild scramble in front of Camp Borden's goal.

The Bordenites broke into the scoring column at the six-minute mark when Wiles scored the first of his three counters on a pass from Hardy. They tied it up midway through the period when Bedard lobbed a long shot past Robinson, Hardy again making the play. Camp Borden led 2-1.

Wiles sent Camp Borden into the lead for the first time in the game early in the second period when he skated through the whole Trenton team and drew Robinson out of the net, before the puck over his leg. Perras tied it up for Trenton ten minutes later but Camp Borden immediately tied the score when Hardy tallied with less than eight seconds remaining in the period.

Less than two minutes after the final frame had started Prigon deadlocked the game for the third time by beating Pipher on a hard shot from just inside the blue-line. The lead was shortlived however, for Fowler shot Camp Borden ahead again at the six-minute mark.

The Flyers went on the attack and after missing several chances on Camp Borden's net, they finally registered the equalizer when Perras intercepted a pass and lab the puck over to Merpaw who bored into the clear and beat Pipher with a waist-high drive at the 16-minute mark.

Penalty Turning Point.

Marshall's penalty a few minutes afterward was the turning-point of the game. Camp Borden put on the pressure and clinched the game with White's marker. Wiles made it handsome half a minute later when he scored on a breakaway.

Other People's Views.

Maybe the above sub-heading should read —"As others see us". As say rals here's the gist of a conversation Heard between two Air Force sergeants and a civilian at the Dominion Bank corner Saturday night as they were awaiting the arrival of the city bus. Apparently the two sergeants have been stationed at nearby R.C.A.F. bases for some time past, while the civilian, who was the target for embarrassing questions regarding Belleville, was endeavoring to provide the answers.

"Did you see that swell hockey game last night?" asked No. 1 Sergt.

"Yes, it's too bad the ice got so sticky", replied No. 2 Sergt.

This was the cue for the interested civilian, who meekly got in his nickels worth with the remark— "Well, we did have an artificial ice plant, but somewhere in the shuffle it was removed from the rink".

"Say, buddy, do they have a recreational centre in Belleville?" Sergt. No. 2 came back again.

"No".

"Is there any curling in Belleville?" asked No. 1. And again the reply was in the negative.

"You know there are seven or eight bowling alleys in Belleville, but a fellow can't get in the odd game owing to so many leagues operating. There's surely room for another alley here" remarked No. 2.

"Well, we have a nice lawn bowling club operating in the summer", interrupted the civilian, apparently trying to change the atmosphere.

"Well, that's nice. By the way have you a Parks Board here?" asked No. 1.

"Oh, yes, but they don't do a hell of a lot towards recreation for the youngsters", replied the civilian.

"What about the city council?" asked Sergt. No. 2.

"Oh, they're just as bad in that respect. They try to keep the assessment down as well as the tax rate, so you see what were up against", explained the civilian.

"That's too bad, and you have such a nice clean city too", remarked Sergt. No. 1 as the bus drew into sight.

"That's the way it goes in Belleville and I don't expect much of a change", remarked the civilian as the trio boarded the bus. Unfortunately the party to hear this part of the conversation couldn't get a seat to complete the interesting topic if such could be termed as "many business".

Around the Town

Local hockey fans will have the opportunity of comparing the merits of junior hockey played in the "Little Six" with that played elsewhere in the province when Tools Holway's locals tangle with Max Jackson's Kingston Vics at the Arena tomorrow night. . . . The Vics have been playing all season in the Kingston senior league against ex-professionals and named senior-players. . . . However, against strong junior "B" clubs Jackson's sextette haven't made any too impressive a record, having been beaten by Toronto Chewies, St. Mike's Thuners, Smiths Falls juniors and other such clubs. . . . In their league standing the Vics have won five and lost nine so of shuffle it. Local fans appreciate the good hockey that has been played in the "Little Six" and already the choice seats for Thursday night have been reserved. . . . The locals came out of the doom-brook in Stirling practically unscathed, although their first round of O.M.H.A. hockey, but not before being subjected to something of a physical beating in "Can."

Remember When,

George "Twinkletoes" Selkirk, so tickled he giggled himself out of wrestling into baseball, was put on the spot ten years ago today when he was named successor to Babe Ruth, the game's greatest homerun hitter. . . . The Canada-born player promptly made good and tickled the New York Yankee fans with a first-year batting average of .312.

KINGSTON "VICS" OPEN JUNIORO.H.A. PLAY-OFFS HERE

Respective League Scoring Records Show Belleville Kids Enjoy Edge Over Limestoners

Although playing in two vastly different leagues the scoring statistics of the Belleville juniors is more impressive than that of the Kingston. Victorias, who open the first round-hotter O.H.A. playdowns versus Toots Holway's local kids at the Ilimer Arena Thursday night. The series is home-and-home games with goals to count and the second game slated to be played in Kingston Saturday night. The winner of this round will meet Oshawa.

Coach Max Jackson's Kingston "Vics" have been playing all season in the Kingston Senior-City hockey league and at present are in sixth position in an eight clubbed loop. The Vics have won five and lost 9 in 14 starts. Seven games also played a number of exhibition games with junior clubs throughout the province.

The Victorias' scoring record shows that Max Jackson's sextette have registered 82 goals in 14 league games while having 94 scored against them. However, in 15 junior OHA games Jackson's "Little Six" Tools Holway's locals have netted a total of 92 goals and had but 35 scored against them. The Belleville team didn't lose a single game in the Little Six series and haven't been beaten since January 19th last. The Kingston Belleville series, that opens here on Thursday night is attracting wide attention throughout Eastern Ontario.

HERSHEY BEARS BEAT ST. LOUIS

By The Canadian Press

Hershey Bears, appearing for the last time in a scheduled American Hockey League game, defeated St. Louis, last night handed the latter their fourth successive defeat as they trounced their foes 4-1.

While the Bears fixed their eyes on the possible leadership of the league's eastern division now led by Buffalo Bisons, it appeared less than possible for the Flyers to climb out of their cellar position in the western division before the end of the scheduled games.

The Bears took the 4-3 decision after the Flyers had rallied up a four-goal lead in the first two periods. The Hershey scorers were Norm Calladine and Don Webster in the first frame and Hal Cooper and Fred Robertson in the second period.

Despite fast and aggressive play on the part of the Flyers in the final session when the tables were turned, St. Louis amassed only two goals by Art Giroux and Vic Lynn to bow finally to Hershey.

It was Hamilton all the way, with Dillon Brady and company collaborating three in a row in the opening period, two more in the second and adding a lone counter in the final session. Sharkey Could Beat Dempsey Says Manager

Boston, Feb. 28 — (AP)—Johnny Buckley, manager of former heavyweight champion Jack Sharkey, doesn't like the idea of Jack Dempsey failing to list "My Boy" as one of the 10 best he ever met.

"Why Sharkey could lick him the best day he ever lived," said the ex-Navy hockey mentor and one his associate in the operation of a tavern with "the longest bar in Boston."

In fact, we could lick him today and we will if he gives us a match-all receipts to go for the benefit of servicemen."

"I mean that," Buckley said after scanning the list of the best 10 Dempsey gave out yesterday in San Francisco. Sharkey, who hung up his gloves a year ago was not available to speak for himself.

Sharkey could have beaten seven of the 10 men named by Dempsey, Johnny averred.

"Tunney and Cibbons were great fighters," Buckley agreed. "Fulton would have been a cinch for Sharkey; Gunboat Smith would have been easy; a Brennan bout would have been one-sided for Sharkey; Carpentier only weighed 158 — we would have beaten him, that's what the hell, he was a setup."

Johnny however, named them among others as the best he ever opposed. He didn't even give Sharkey honorable mention.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSSON NO. 618
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Timid bridge players scare easily. With a poor hand, they fear their pass will be wrong. With a strong hand, they are afraid their bid will be passed.

To enjoy your bridge, there are only a few simple facts to take into consideration. If your partner starts with an opening bid of one, your first response is practically cut and dried for you.

With less than three tricks or less than two high cards, you pass. With three tricks including two high cards, you bid. When you bid, follow the order of choice in T-A-N; takout, assist, no trump.

With enough tricks to help make a game, one-jump your bid at once if you can; also two sure tricks. Without enough for game or two sure tricks, do not jump at once.

That's the cumulative impression you should carry with you in every deal. It will take care of you accurately with any hand in the world. And you can be stoically sure about it.

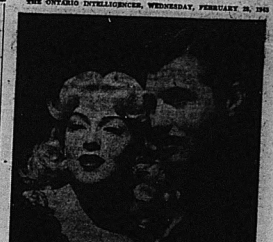
Yes, it-is, M-F-J!; Horse Sense is mighty fine bridge; so simple, so accurate, so free and easy on the response. What makes me so mad is that experts confuse it for no good reason at all.

Suppose your partner starts with an opening bid of one heart. Among other things, he promises five tricks. Make your first response with this hand:

♠A Q 9 5 2
♥Q 7 1 6
♦K 6 5 3
♣A 4

With seven tricks including two sure tricks you should one-jump at once. With a biddable spade suit, your immediate response should be a takeout to two spades.

A one-jump is a forcing-to-game signal. That gives your pair a chance to decide on 3NT; trump suit, if any. Thereafter, with the makings, you can look into the slam department.



With bridge as easy as it is, cut out the expert monkey biz.

Toronto, Feb. 28 — (CP)—Today was to have been the day when Colonel Sargent of the C.A.H.A. was going to announce the results of the telegraphic vote taken among members of the executive as to the advisability of holding an All-Star Canada playoff. Instead, when results made their way back to hockey head during the weekend, the blow was struck on Monday.

The shouting is o'er and for the first time since 1906 there will be no Allan Cup playoff. Curtailment got under in this fifth wartime season has finally reached the point where the Canadian amateur classic has vanished from the sport picture.

The Dominion amateur playdowns survived the four wartime seasons of the First Great War and were a military team with the cup in 1918 when Winnipeg 61st Battalion defeated the defending Winnipeg Monarchs and then successfully defended the trophy against challenges from Fort William and Regina. In the present war service teams won the championship in 1940 — Ottawa RCAF in 1942 and Ottawa "Commandos" in 1943.

Sir Montagu Allan's trophy has been around 45 days in hockey. It has travelled from coast to coast and carried with it the glory of well-deserved victory as well as the reflection of well-fought defeat.

The only doubt that will remain in the minds of hockey fans who will remember the 1944-45 hockey season — and a question that will probably be handed back and forth — is that of which team could have won the Allan Cup in 1945.

New This:

The same criticism and occasional favorable comment that the announcement made by Major Ian Eisenhardt with regard—if—the physical fitness branch of the Federal Health Department drew from sport columnists and commentators the country has faded from the sport picture. But one last suggestion must have merit. Instead, when results made their way back to hockey head during the weekend, the blow was struck on Monday.

DAY DISPLEASED ALTHOUGH LEAFS TIED HAWKS 3-3

10,000 Watch So Called "Battle of Bums" at Gardens Tuesday Night

By EDDIE LEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The great National Hockey League public, which usually hands hard things the hard way—by seeing for itself—hasn't changed a bit.

That's just what happened last night for the so-called "Battle of the Bums" between Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks at Toronto.

The Leaf front office several days ago abandoned bally-hoo and predicted it should be a dreadful affair.

So 10,000 customers, more than Maple Leaf Gardens has seen in mid-week for months and months, came out to watch and saw the teams deadlock 3-3 in a surprisingly spirited display.

If they believed the published pre-game notices about earlier Leaf-Hawk battles and went to see how awful this one could be, they must have gone away disappointed.

They saw at least two full periods of keen-sport hockey rimmed midway through the final period when Bus Brayshaw manufactured the tying goal for Chicago. Bill Mosienko and Wilf Field contributed the other Chicago goals in the second period.

Art Jackson set Leafs on their way with a clean-cut first-period goal and Nick Metz and Ted Kennedy beat goalie Mike Karakas for the other two both in the final session.

Maple Leaf fans were pleased, the Toronto management was not. Coach Clarence (Hap) Day was unwilling to back down from his Monday night statement that he is "un-

THE SECRET OF THE MARSHBANKS

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

CHAPTER 9

Outwardly, it was all easy and delightful. Cherry came into her employer's room not long earlier than half past ten o'clock every morning, but later than seven, Mrs. Porter only lost sight of the girl for brief intervals thereafter until ten o'clock at night. Cherry had immediately discovered her appetite for flattery and had promptly gratified it in their first days together. Now she had to pay the price for this concession with constant pleasantries.

"I like you because you're so frank with me, Cherry," Mrs. Porter said to her once. "I told Emma that you were a blunt little thing and she was afraid I didn't like it. But I do! I love people to be absolutely frank with me."

Cherry had felt a little compunction at this. She was not really honest, she had reflected uncomfortably, when she listened so attentively to long personal letters about Maysie, Pidgie, and Eddy, her three children who had all distinguished hood; about Porteous Porter, and Dovey's father, the old railway baron Henry T. Challis, and a hundred other persons of whom she knew nothing. But after all, she had her living to make, and being agreeable was part of her job.

Years would often fill the old lady's eyes; she was constantly in pleasurable, emotional tears. She told Cherry of many trips, of wonderful opera nights and dinner parties in London and Paris, of artists who asked to paint her, of beautiful gowns which her extravagant husband had paid for—husband who was all lovely and loving; everyone who had ever come into contact with her had been sweet to the suffocation point. Cherry felt her jaws ache with suppressed yawns.

After their drive there was the elegantly had about an hour to herself while Mrs. Porter was dining in her room. At about eight Cherry went up from her own dinner to read to her, and employed until half past nine o'clock. Then Fanny, came in to start the slow ritual of the sponge bath, the change of clothing, the lavish rub, the administration of various pills and tablets and the carrying out of flowers, the opening of windows and lowering of lights that were all part of getting the lady to bed.

At this time Cherry sometimes took Mother, the wheezy fox-terrier around the block. She might meet housemaids and butlers out with other dogs; she rarely saw anyone else. But after the long, empty day it was great enough to get out into the cool, fresh dark, and see the white streamers of the fog pouring in from the west and feel the sweetness of it on her face.

With her first sight of Emma, Cherry had had the feeling that the long years since last they had met were as nothing; and that she was a little girl of seven again, living in a small tiled house with a patio and a fountain, and running to and out of the bedroom where her mother lay always in bed. A thousand details, half forgotten until now, had rushed back to her, and she had longed for the moment when Emma, too, should recall Emma of the past.

But the days went by she began to perceive that that moment might never come. Emma had given a trilogy under question meeting her; there had never been any reference or even unfriendly in her manner, but there was a great wall between her and Cherry, and over that wall the girl could not see much as peep. Emma's quiet unfriendliness ruffled calm and abstraction were too daunting for even Cherry's eagerness. Whatever there had once been between Emma and Cherry the old nurse conceded nothing now; she was civil, she was willing to discuss what was headlined in the newspapers and the trifling daily affairs of the old lady upstairs, but there she stopped. She could not even frame the sentences that would lead to references to the past they had shared.

She and Emma had their meals in a small room off the big pantry downstairs. This room had been cut from the end of the conservatory that was full of ferns and begonias; it held just their table and their two chairs. But Keno and Fairfowl served them quite as daintily and capably as if they had been guests at a banquet, and Ming Wo sent them in meals only too delicious and tempting.

Mrs. Porter spent long, contented evenings playing solitaire with her white, heavily ringed fat hands, and listening to Cherry reading The Heart of Midlothian or Little Dorrit. The Rosary was her favorite story among them, and one night when she loved Tennyson's poetry and begged to have that read to her at odd moments but often she liked best to have the reading stop and to have Cherry turn her games and talk to her. At such times Cherry kept an eye on the clock and wondered if its hands would ever move around to half past nine.

At long intervals there was a dinner party at the Porter residence or a dozen smartly dressed women came to spend the day on the flattery and the attentive listening to which their cocktails with her upstairs and to dessert to have dinner by themselves.

Cherry learned, with shopping for her employer and infinite discussion and decision regarding the disposition and wrapping and mailing of gifts and the manifold duties of the long day, that she was busy enough. But it was not a satisfactory busyness; it left her feeling wearied without ever having accomplished anything.

To include any exercise at all in the twenty-four hours she performed the habit of riding early and taking a long walk about the streets or into the eucalyptus-shaded roads of the Presidio before breakfast.

But the freshness and sparkle of these winter mornings life seemed exhilarating enough. But after her breakfast she learned with incredipidity of the Porter mansion enwhelped. Well, anyway, I got my first pay yesterday and I'm going to buy myself a hat I saw on Polk Street, and love to everyone, Madeleine especially, and Elizabeth and all the Shriners and girls."

One day Cherry took an adventure. It came on a quiet, foggy afternoon when all the world seemed dull and quiet. Cherry was driving with Mrs. Porter when her companion said suddenly, "Look there — wait a minute—stop him!"

Automatically obeying these instructions Cherry seized the speaking tube and Merryweather drew up at the right-hand side of the road. Then the girl saw two bay horses carrying a man and woman were pacing along one of the bridle paths, and that the woman was Fran Marshbanks and the man Kelly Coates.

In response to old Mrs. Porter's gesticulations and her voice at the window she was energetically reined her horse close to the car and Fran gave Cherry two seconds' smiles and nod, and Kelly saluted her by touching his cap with his whip. He was presented to Mrs. Porter, and as the two women fell into a discussion of the life of Francesca for a series of concerts, he rode around the back and chatted with Cherry at her open window.

"Well, Miss—I have to call you Cherry, I've forgotten the other name—he began.

"Oh, do!" said Cherry, the dull park breaking into sparkles, the white winter sky turned June.

"Cherry then. What have you done to yourself? you look like another woman!"

"It's my hat," said Cherry. The Polk street creation was on her head, a picturesque hat that came far down over the streaked gold and brown of her hair.

She had on her favorite of the three dresses she had brought her, too—navy blue with two silver buttons on the pocket and belt clips. The brown coat was not quite an entirely fortunate note, but she loved the coat, and her happy feeling of this moment was that she was looking her best.

Her laugh rang out; he had not heard her laugh before, and as it had impressed Judson Marshbanks at the convent a month or so earlier, it impressed the younger man now as being extraordinarily fresh and pleasant.

He was tired that night and dirty and in his old cavalry uniform," she told him suddenly serious. "I was horribly unhappy that night."

"Unhappy!" he was genuinely surprised and concerned.

"Yes. I—well, I was," she said, a little ashamed now that she was embarked on confidence.

"But why? I thought you were sort of thrilled at coming down—Judge Marshbanks didn't tell us much about you, but I thought he said you'd been shut up in a convent most of your life."

"You're not 'shut up' in a convent, Cherry corrected. "You're really freer than other people. Can she know?"

He was traveling over her face; he was only half listening. "I don't know, now," he said absently.

"Any way, I saw Amy—dressed and had a good time to party," Cherry pursued, too hungry for sympathy, too dizzy with the relief of speaking to remember at last to her own terms to be 'cautious.' "and I'd never been in a country that before, and I knew I didn't belong there."

"How do you mean you didn't belong there?" he demanded, as she paused.

"Well, I didn't. I'd never seen a place like that."

"Like what?"

"Like Judge Marshbanks' house."

He looked at her a long time, thoughtfully. Or at least, if only for a few seconds, it seemed a long time to Cherry. She felt the warm color her cheeks and the slow beat of her heart.

"I suppose that's true," Kelly said at last in a hurried tone. "I'd read about girls making their way. Cherry pursued warmed to the very soul by his attentive sympathetic and half-amused look, "and certain and all sorts. But somehow, just that night, to see her so sad, and so happy and having such a wonderful time when I was horribly tired and I knew I looked so awful.

"Well, of course," he agreed quickly, as she paused in a sort of shame and embarrassment. "Amy you mean?"

"Amy."

She's not having such a wonderful time," he said. "It's all company and the trifling daily affairs of other girls are having a slightly better time, and that drives her wild. Mrs. Marshbanks, Fran, was speaking of it just a few minutes ago, and say-ing what a wonderful—"

"Oh, girls are fools all right," Cherry agreed, meekly, and as the man laughed with her, too.

"Mr. Coates," old Mrs. Porter said, breaking into the conversation and leaning across Cherry to catch his attention.

"Frances has promised to bring Amy to dinner with her two weeks from Thursday, and I want you to come too."

"I'm a dead loss at dinners," Kelly said laughing. "You'll never ask me again."

"Well, we'll see about that," said the old lady with light feather. "But you come, now! My nephew George's daughter, Dorothy Page-Smith, is going to be here—coming up with her mother from Santa Barbara, and I want all the she's been breakin' all hearts, and I want her to meet Amy and some of the other youngsters."

"Jud may be here; he gets back from Portland tonight," Fran said. "But he may have to go right back again. So Mr., Coates will acquire me. I'll guarantee him."

"And you tell Mrs. Dickson to get Mary Trainor and Lizzie Block on that committee!" Mrs. Porter adjured her vigorously.

"I will. I've not been going to the meetings, more shame to me," said Fran, "but I'm going tomorrow and I'll do what I can."

"And you tell 'em Cherry'll send them my check for two hundred."

"I'll tell them." Fran did not say anything about the generous check for one. And Cherry manfancied that her employer looked just a little crushed and disappointed as the riders cantered away on the bridle path again.

Famous British Submarine Lost

London, Feb. 26 — (CP)—H.M.S. Porpoise, the British mine-running submarine which early in June escaped Malta by sneaking supplies to its starving garrison, has been lost.

No details of the sinking were given in the Admiralty communique. Britain's most famous submarine apparently disappeared without trace on a patrol.

The story of the Porpoise and her daring: 14 months running supplies from ammunition to mail to Malta, was told in January, 1943. She was the first underwater craft to embark a cargo of high-test aviation gasoline for RAF planes in Malta, a cargo which turned her into a mobile mass of explosives that might be set off by a jar from enemy ships and aircraft attempting to stop her.

"We took out one of our 50-ton batteries and in its place stacked 46 tons of petrol and ammunition boxes, mail—mail—mail from home is good for morale," said Lieutenant-Commander Bingham, then her commander. "We took the spare tube pedoes out of the torpedo room and filled it with 4,000 gallons of kerosene bags. The total load was 10 tons." Another trip—this initial trip—came to be more or less a "dash case" to the Malta garrison, and "we had to take them in breakfast, lunch, tea and dinner."

Air Cadet Corps Will Continue Their Activities

The Royal Canadian Air Force will continue its support and interest in the air cadet movement following the war with the object of using providing a recruited feeder for peacetime activities of the R.C.A.F. according to Flt. Lt. Dawson C. Floyd, commanding officer of the local air cadet corps.

Consequent to the decision of the R.C.A.F. to continue its support and partially through wishes of the air cadet members, the Belleville corps will be continued, it was stated. This was the decision of the local committee following a meeting to decide future activities of the air cadet movement in this city.

But henceforth the cadet problems may well be the greatest with which the Belleville air cadets will have to face. Because with the completion of the five year period of financial support afforded by the Canada Cadet Club, the Belleville air cadet corps is going to be "on its own." To help finance the corps' activities for the new months a national tag day for June 2nd will be sponsored by the Air Cadet League of Canada.

Appreciate Rotary Assistance ... Although the Belleville Rotary Club has seen fit to discontinue its financial support to the Air Cadet movement in Belleville, local cadets were loud in their praise of the assistance rendered to the local corps during its formative period. From 1941 past two years the Rotary Club has been sponsor of the local corps, a committee approximately $2,000 for the purchase of uniforms and other equipment and for this assistance Belleville's detachment of cadet officials was expressed.

Indicative of the interest taken in the local Air Cadet movement in Belleville approximately 80 youths, 16 from the city and 64 from Albert College, meet regularly twice each week to attend lectures and drill.

Monday evenings the boys meet at the Collegiate for classroom studies in navigation, theory of flight, and administration, while Friday evenings the boys report regularly at the Armories for rifle drill, etc.

Hear Fines' Experiences

To retain interest of Air Cadet members the Air Cadets command has obtained the services of veterans with combat experience overseas to tell of their experiences to corps members across Canada. Programs calls for one of these returned airmen to visit each corps approximately once each month.

This week Flight Lieut. V. E. Scott, formerly of Oshawa, and recently repatriated from a prison camp, spoke to members of the Belleville corps telling of his experiences during the two successive tours of operations in the Mediterranean war theatre.

Noted Sunday School Worker Addresses Young People's Unions

Approximately 60 members of the three young people's unions from Bridge Street United Church, Trinity and Holloway Street met in the latter church Sunday evening during a combined Fireside Hour to hear their forward Movement Leader Miss Ruth Simpson of Toronto address them on "Christian Service."

Also attending at the fireside hour were representatives of the Centenary Y.P.U. The guest speaker was introduced by Miss Maude Burke with Miss Douglas from the Centenary Y.P.U. expressing appreciation of the gathering.

During her address Miss Simpson emphasized that there is no people's lives there is a purpose much bigger than self and that this purpose must be accomplished before they can become useful Christians. She also impressed upon the listeners the importance of a definite aim in life without which disappointment life as being a journey without a guide.

During the business period following the address Miss Simpson was discussed with Y.P.U. members individually.

The meeting opened with a worship service led by Misses Maude Burke, Peggy Woollard and Helen Arnott, while following the business period Miss Simpson led a spirited community singing. Misses Ann English and Norma Arkles favored with a vocal duet.

Assistant secretary in Sunday School work for the United Church, and supervisor of Sunday School in the home and on the air, Miss Simpson was brought to Belleville by the Quinte Presbyterial District Y.P.U. which is promoting the Forward Movement, in the Belleville area. She is also the guest speaker at the regular Sunday evening service at Holloway Church.

Talk on Mooseheart Heard by Moose Lodge

Approximately 35 members of the local Moose Lodge No. 1004 and their friends gathered at the Lodge Hotel on Tuesday evening to enjoy a social evening and to hear of activities at Mooseheart, Illinois, as related by one of the Order's officials. A number of applications from persons desirous of becoming Moose members were also received during the evening.

In the absence of Bro. Harry Reed, of Toronto, Bro. Conor Pierce, of Trenton, Grand Prelate for Ontario, acted as guest speaker for the evening giving members and their friends a very enlightening talk on Mooseheart, the home of the Order, where children of deceased members are educated.

He described Mooseheart as situated on 1,100 acres of land in the state of Illinois and representative of an investment by the Order of more than $5,000,000 in buildings. Children stay at Mooseheart until they graduate, the age of 18 with a high school education. There are more than 1,000 children.

Brother Albert Farrar of Trenton Lodge, recently returned from Mooseheaven in Florida, kept the audience laughing and relating human interest stories of activities at the estate. Photographs taken during his visit to Mooseheaven were exhibited during the meeting. Residents at Mooseheaven live in closely grouped cottages and if able assist in the work connected with the home. For those services they receive a small salary. In addition to food, clothing and housing facilities, the meeting refreshments were served and a social time spent by the members and their guests.

Corporation gained 25 and Steep Rock 4 on a turnover of 3 cents.

The tone was irregular in industrials for the utilities, foods, papers and investments. Golds and distillers-Seagrams gained ¼ and Hiram Walker was down ¼. Senior oils held steady.
